A declaration calling upon the Allies to give Russia "active general and military help" and demanding the repudiation of the Brest-Litovsk treaty, was adopted at a meeting here tonight by the newly organized Interparty League for the Restoration of Free Russia. The league includes all the Russian political organizations in New York which recognize the authority of the Constituent Assembly. The Bolsheviki and the Monarchists are the only groups not affiliated with it.

The temporary Executive Committee consists of A. A. Boublikov, former Commissary of the Duma and acting Minister of Means of Communication during the March revolution; Dr. S. M. Ingerman, leader of the New York group of the Russian Social Democrats; General C. M. Oberoucheff, Military Commander of the Kiev district under the Provisional Government; A. J. Sack, Director of the Russian Information Bureau in the United States, and M. Tarasov of the New York group of the Social Revolutionists.

LOOKS TO RUMANIA FOR FOOD.

Berlin Talks of Large Imports of Meat and Cereals to Come.

LONDON, May 16.—Berlin expects to receive 150,000 sheep and 50,000 pigs shortly from Rumania, and 100,000 tons of cereals in July or August.

COPENHAGEN, May 16.—A dispatch from Bucharest to the Vossische Zeitung of Berlin reports that the exports of foodstuffs and fodder from Rumania passed the second million tons in amount at the end of April.

AMSTERDAM, May 17.—Under the peace treaty with Rumania, says the Reichspost of Vienna, Germany has assured herself of possession of the telegraph lines, cables, and wireless installations on the Rumanian coast. The purpose is said to be to carry on an intelligence service on a large scale after the war, particularly by use of the wireless.

WILL STAND BY NOULENS.

Other Allies' Envoys May Quit Russia if He Is Forced To.

LONDON, May 17.—If the French Ambassador to Russia, Joseph Noulens, is compelled to leave the country, the other representatives of the Allies may follow him, says an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Moscow.

In Soviet circles, the message continues, it is expected M. Noulens will be recalled soon, but if France refuses to do so he will be declared to be a private citizen.

The recall of Ambassador Noulens was demanded early this month by the Bolshevist Government on the ground that he had made statements not conducive to friendly relations between France and Russia. A Moscow dispatch on April 25 said M. Noulens had declared that Germany was attempting to gain economic control of Russia, and that if the Allies should be forced to take military action in that country it would be merely in the nature of friendly assistance.

MARTIAL LAW IN ODESSA.

Thousands of Population Said to be Fleeing from Kiev.

LONDON, May 16.—Martial law has been proclaimed at Odessa by the Austrian commandant at the request of the Germans, according to Berlin advices forwarded in an Exchange telegraph dispatch from Amsterdam. Street fighting in Odessa is reported.

At Kiev Austrian patrols are in the streets day and night, and thousands of persons are fleeing from the city.

SEMENOFF'S ARMY GROWS AS HE MARCHES

May Isolate Soviet Government in Moscow from Territory East of Baikal.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—Information has reached Russian diplomatic circles here, indicating that the Semenoff movement in Siberia is meeting with considerable success. General Semenoff's forces are understood to be moving steadily toward Irkutsk, and it is expected that he will soon reach Lake Baikal, an objective which, if obtained, would isolate the Soviet Government in Moscow from control over the territory of Siberia east of Lake Baikal.

It is the expectation in Russian diplomatic circles here that the Semenoff movement will broaden into a wider one, which may contribute toward the restoration of Russia to the cause of the Allies and a more orderly Government. If Semenoff is able to obtain control over that portion of the Siberian railway running east from Lake Baikal to Vladivostok, an appeal may be made to the Allies to furnish assistance to the population of Eastern Siberia.

The information received here regarding the progress of the Semenoff movement states that he is being opposed by the combined forces of the Bolsheviki and Austro-German prisoners of war who have been released in Siberia, and that in one engagement his troops killed 200 Magyars who were enrolled among the Bolshevist soldiery.

The army of Semenoff is understood not to be large, but it is asserted that the men he does have are effective and efficient, and that as they advance westward through Siberia they are eliminating Bolshevist control and authority.

The Cossack leader is in touch with the anti-Bolshevist elements in Harbin and is receiving aid from that city, but is fighting independently of any organized political move. He has declared that his only object is to restore order and fight the Germans. Many soldiers of experience and unquestioned loyalty have rallied to his standard, and his task has been facilitated by the fact that he did not need a vast body of troops to obtain control over the region east of Lake Baikal.

The statement was made here today that General Semenoff has no marked political aspirations, that he is not a reactionary, does not favor the restoration of the monarchy, and that so far he has shown himself to be the only leader in Siberia who has been able to launch a movement that has met with any success.

PEKING, May 17.—Owing to the growing commercial and missionary interests in Western Shantung, the American Government has decided to establish a Consulate at Tsi Nan-fu. Mr. Bickford of Shanghai has been designated as Consul.

General Semenoff is receiving increasing Cossack support in Siberia. The Bolsheviki are retreating before his troops. The capture of Adrianousk is expected to lead to further success.

The Cabinet has again discussed without result the internment of enemy subjects.

HARBIN, Manchuria, May 14, (Associated Press.)—The advance into Siberia of General Semenoff, the anti-Bolshevist commander, has given the movement which he heads a new impetus, and he has received substantial reinforcements of Cossacks and Buriats. The whole of the starving Trans-Baikal population is reported welcoming him as a deliverer.

The Chinese Eastern Railway has agreed to take over the political administration and the operation of the Trans-Siberian Railway in General Semenoff's wake, and General Zuraboff, former chief of the Baikal Railway at Irkutsk, is in charge of the construction and repair work, particularly on the Onon Bridge, east of Chita, which requires much time and for which material is lacking at present.

Vice Admiral Kolchak, former commander of the Russian Black Sea Fleet, who recently was elected a Director of the Chinese Eastern Railway, and Colonel Orloff are collecting forces at Nikolsk, near Vladivostok, to proceed northward toward Ussuri, in an effort to free the eastern portion of the railway from the Bolsheviki.

PERSHING THANKS WOMEN.

Grateful for Christmas Stocking Sent from Orange, N. J.

Special to The New York Times.

ORANGE, N. J., May 17.—A letter of thanks from General Pershing for a Christmas stocking sent him by a committee of Orange women has been received by Mrs. Wilbur Munn of Fairview Avenue, this city.

"I cannot tell you the appreciation felt in this command at the thoughtfulness of you dear women of Orange," wrote the General.

"It has been a great comfort to this command in this first year to feel that the patriotic sentiments of our people are behind us. The concentrated thought of a nation and the good wishes and prayers of our patriotic women are a powerful aid to ultimate victory. I thank you for my share in your Christmas boxes, and on behalf of the entire command desire to express my appreciation of your thoughtfulness. May I ask you to make our gratitude known to your associates in this generosity?"

DEFENDS COMPACT OF TEUTON RULERS

Hungarian Premier Tells Opponents in Parliament It Is "Purely Defensive."

FORMAL TREATY DEFERRED

Means Checking of Entente, Says Burian—Vorwaerts Attacks Absolutism.

AMSTERDAM, May 17.—"The new alliance between Austria-Hungary and Germany will make for better mutual relations," said Premier Wekerle of Hungary in an address to the Lower House of Parliament at Budapest. "It can in nowise be taken as a hindrance to relations which might be established eventually with other peoples in the economic domain."

Premier Wekerle's speech was made in reply to a request from Count Karolyi, opposition leader, for more information as to what took place at the conference of the two Emperors initiating the new alliance.

"War aims were not discussed," the Premier also said, "for there can be no question of war aims. The alliance aims only at the maintenance of peace in all directions.

"Neither will the alliance be a hindrance to eventual entrance into the so-called League of Nations. The guarantee of this lies in the fact that we have arranged a purely defensive alliance."

Asks If Hungary Is Consulted.

Count Karolyi said he wanted to know whether the terms of the new alliance would be submitted to the House for consideration. Premier Wekerle referred the Count to the official announcement of May 12 relating to the meeting of Emperor William and Emperor Charles.

The Premier at this point was interrupted with the observation that the announcement conveyed meagre information. He replied:

The official communiqué could not contain more than what happened. The discussions took place on questions which led to a prolongation of the existing alliance and strengthening it for a long time to come."

Here the Premier was interrupted with strong applause from the Right and the Centre. He continued:

"The Emperors have agreed to request their Governments to open negotiations, but beyond this no formal treaty of any sort has been made. The negotiations will soon begin, and I think they will have the general approval of Hungarians, who will be satisfied that our interests are so well maintained by such a proved alliance.

"Naturally, certain military agreements also will be concluded. Agreements can be made during war which relate to common action but which have no connection with army organization. We shall in no respect give up our right of decision. No one doubts that closer economic ties are as desirable as possible.

"I repeat that we shall not give up in a single respect our independent right of decision. The validity of the economic agreement will depend on the approval of the house."

Baron Burian, Austro-Hungarian Foreign Minister, is quoted as follows in an interview with the Vienna correspondent of the Az Est of Budapest:

"Extension of the Austro-German alliance, which after long years of peace has stood the test of difficult times and has taken deep hold on the minds of the people, corresponds with what has become a historic necessity. It is necessary owing to the fact that Austria-Hungary and Germany are surrounded by a ring of enemies. The new alliance will be defensive and will serve to bring about peace. It will show the world that Austria-Hungary and Germany, united, cannot be beaten, and will convert our opponents to peace by the strength of our will for peace."

House of Cards, Vorwaerts Suggests.

Commenting upon the statement made by the Nordeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung, that the conference between Emperors William and Charles had "resulted in a complete union of military and economic interests" and the removal of "all differences which hitherto had existed in the military and economic organizations," Vorwärts says that "an alliance which rests only on the joint will of two monarchs cannot be much more than a house of cards."

Vorwärts adds that the removal of all military differences demands a common law of defense, which must again result in a common foreign policy. The removal of all economic differences, it remarks, demands a customs union, a currency union, and a common loan system, but these are all things which can only be arranged by a common Parliament.

There is a remarkable disparity between the advices from Berlin and those from Vienna regarding the scope of the projected extension of the alliance. Whereas the Berlin version of the pact, according to the Cologne Gazette, denies that the alliance is to be embodied in the constitutions of the allied empires, direct advices from Vienna on the same day affirm the contrary positively, declaring such embodiment to be a part of the program.

The importance of this lies in the fact that, should the proposals contemplate constitutional changes, they would have to be submitted to the Parliaments of both empires, whose assent would be necessary.

In Vienna there is no attempt to conceal the conviction that many stumbling blocks lie in the path of the proposals, inasmuch as in Austria-Hungary and Germany there are political parties and business interests with sufficient power to exert strong opposition to a realization of the ideas of a unified Central Europe. In Austria-Hungary it is expected that the Czechs and South Slavs will oppose it on national grounds, and certain industrial groups for economic reasons which are patent, as a tariff union is spoken of. In well-informed Viennese circles as well within the scope of the new agreement, although it is asserted that no tariff war against other countries is intended.

The main difference between the new alliance and the old dual alliance, it is pointed out, is that, whereas the latter was devised solely to counteract Russian expansion, the new arrangement will chiefly command attention in the aspect it bears of a defensive alliance against all comers.

Says Austria Is Absorbed.

ZURICH, May 17.—The Volksrecht, a leading Swiss Socialist organ, asserts that the new Austro-German alliance means nothing less than the annexation of Austria-Hungary by Germany. The Slavs are in greater numbers than the Germans in Austria, the newspaper says, and even the Magyars will oppose the Dual Monarchy being made subject to Germany. All this, the Socialist organ argues, will not alarm the Germans, who will proceed to restore order in Austria-Hungary as in other occupied lands, such as Poland, the Ukraine, Rumania, and Finland.

The Volksrecht adds that whether the Austro-Hungarian proletariat will bow submissively to the German yoke and agree to the indefinite prolongation of the war for German imperial aims remains to be seen.

The Vienna Arbeiter Zeitung remarks that if Germany and Austria-Hungary enter a permanently close political, military, and economic alliance, the Entente nations will do the same, and alliance will stand against alliance. Then the world will be divided into two hostile camps, the newspaper asserts, the war for German world supremacy will be followed by economic conflicts and a struggle for raw materials, and further warfare will thereafter be continually threatened.

THINK CHARLES SINCERE.

French Believe Emperor's Proposals Were Seriously Meant.

By CHARLES H. GRASTY.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 17.—The well-informed view in France of Charles's letter is not that it was a deliberate attempt to divide the Allies, but a sincere expression of the Austrian Emperor's state of mind at that time.

It was not treated with suspicion or contempt, but was dealt with seriously, and the matter was dropped only when it appeared that, while Austria had traveled a considerable distance in the direction of meeting the allied conditions, she was still unprepared to accept certain essentials to which the Allies were bound by interest and honor.

The second letter from Charles is held by the French Government, and shows the extent to which France and England met the Emperor and the reason that further progress was impossible. It is deemed inadvisable to publish this letter, which was private, and, like the first, was written by Charles in lead pencil in the peculiar handwriting which results from his holding his pencil in the palm of his hand.

GERMAN OPINION CAUTIOUS.

Press Not Informed of Details of Kaisers' Compact.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—A summary of German press comment on the recent conference between the German and Austrian Emperors reached Washington today in a diplomatic dispatch from Berne.

"The German press," said the dispatch, "has up to the present made very sober comments on the subject of the interview of the two Emperors. It contributes no information beyond the official communiqué. On the other hand, the correspondents at Vienna of German papers are sending many particulars.

"It is only after a dispatch from one of their Vienna correspondents that the German papers have spoken of the coming solution of the Polish question and announced that the treaty which was to be signed would be incorporated into the Constitutions of both empires. This is through the same source that the customs union has been mentioned, but the Cologne Gazette, in an article seemingly inspired, has formally denied the information coming from Vienna.

"It can well be asked what are the intentions of the German Government, which wishes to avoid giving any precise details concerning the object of the conversations of the two Emperors. Perhaps they wish to prevent the public from having knowledge of what is reserved first for the Parliaments of Berlin and Vienna.

"The Allgemeine Zeitung states that particular importance should be attached to the presence of the King of Bavaria at Great Headquarters. According to this Pan German organ, the Teutonic sovereigns first of all reached an agreement upon military questions of an urgent character, for before everything else the war must be ended. It was only in the second place that they considered making the alliance closer and more complete.

"The Tägliche Rundschau states that the conferences at Great Headquarters efface the incident caused by the publication of Emperor Charles's letter. It states also that Austria-Hungary must have obtained important concessions regarding the Austro-Polish question.

"The Berliner Tageblatt does not seem very assured about the future. It makes the following observations upon the subject of a solution, in an Austrian sense, of the Polish question.

"'It is said that the solution of the Polish question is directly concerned with the agreements which are to be signed. For some time it has been said that Germany would not be opposed to the joining of Poland to Austria if the latter power, both from a military and economic standpoint, were definitely attached to Germany. The approval of Parliament would be all the more indispensable, as it would be necessary to insert the clauses of the treaty of alliance into the Constitutions of both the allied States. Bismarck dreamed of a similar arrangement, but he gave up the idea in view of the attitude of the Czechs and the Jugoslavs, which since that time is far from being favorable.

"The Tageblatt concludes by stating that even in the most serious matters the opinion of the Reichstag and of the Reichsrat is no longer taken into account. It declares that for lack of definite information nothing can be said upon the import of the agreements just concluded in principle between Germany and Austria-Hungary."

VIENNA, May 17, (via Amsterdam.)—Emperor Charles and Empress Zita left the Austrian capital today for Sofia and Constantinople to visit King Ferdinand of Bulgaria and the Sultan of Turkey.

ARABS OF HEDJAZ WIN VICTORIES OVER TURKS

Raid Railway Stations, Take Many Prisoners and Destroy Tracks and Bridges.

LONDON, May 17.—An official communication dealing with the operations in Palestine, issued tonight, says:

Since May 6 there have been no events of importance on the main front of operations.

On May 7 our aircraft executed a successful bombing raid on the Amman Railway Station and Hedjaz [on the Hedjaz road?], and on May 9 an enemy airdrome and the railway station in the vicinity of Jenin were attacked by our air service.

The operations of the Arab forces of the King of Hedjaz have been continued with effect. On May 12 the Jadi Jerdun station and a post on the Hedjaz Railway were raided, thirty of the enemy being killed and 140 taken prisoners. A mountain gun and three machine guns were captured. Several miles of the railway track and three bridges were demolished. On the same date Arab troops attacked enemy defences about Maan, capturing 124 prisoners. Demolitions were effected on the railway near Akabat, El Hejazia, and Bain el Ghul.

Recent British operations in Palestine and Mesopotamia are regarded as entirely successful by the British General Staff. The main object of General Allenby's operations in Palestine has been largely realized. His object was not merely to occupy a large territory east of the Jordan, but to draw Turkish troops from the south and so ease the situation for the Arabs. This has been done to a very marked extent, and the Arabs have taken full advantage of the opportunity by raiding the Hedjas Railway at various points until now the entire line is virtually out of commission. The German troops still in the south have had their artery of supplies cut and are living on dates and whatever else they can obtain locally.

In Mesopotamia General Marshall's operations have been equally successful, although the British columns are competing against nature as well as against the Turks, whose policy of running away increases the difficulty. The Turks have long been planning a great offensive toward Persia and the Caspian Sea, and General Marshall's object is to interfere as much as possible with that plan. He has been successful in diverting a considerable number of Turkish units from that enterprise.

The War Situation

BY THE MILITARY EXPERT OF THE NEW YORK TIMES.

The configuration of the various battlelines in Europe, with a study of the advantages and disadvantages of each, presents an interesting comparison. On the western front all the bulges in the line are toward the west. First, we have the German salient, stretching out in Flanders toward Hazebrouk, and somewhat further down the salient which points at Amiens.

The battleline as a whole, however, is roughly semicircular, with the Germans on the inside of the circle and the Allies on the outside. In one sense the advantage of this position lies with the Germans. By being able to operate on the inside they have, first, shorter lines of communications, lines which are shorter by reason of the fact that they are interior. The Allies, on the other hand, have much longer lines, and it is correspondingly difficult for them to reach any particular point with reinforcements or supplies.

On the other hand, the position of the Allies, aside from the question of supplies, is much more difficult to break through. Extreme pressure may force the line to give way. It may, indeed, be advisable to yield ground rather than stand up against the shock of impact, with the possibility of later suffering a break.

But what happens when the Allies are forced to give ground! All the damage that is done is the giving up of more territory and a lengthening of the line to a greater or less extent. The line is, in fact, similar to a rubber band, the only limit to the elasticity of which in this case is the sea. As long as the Germans are kept away from the sea the line can stretch without complete disaster.

The Allies' positions will become more cramped as the distance behind the line between it and the sea is lessened. There will be a steadily increasing restriction on breathing space behind the lines, a steadily decreasing room for manoeuvre of troops, and a consequent difficulty of transportation, but no necessary disaster.

The German lines, however, can have no such elasticity. If we ignore the salients between the North Sea and Amiens, and view only the larger aspects of the battleline by regarding it as one great salient formed at Amiens by the change in direction from north and south to east and west, considering one side to be the line from Nieuport to Montdidier and the other from Montdidier to Verdun, we have a battleline which from its nature must be rigid. The Germans cannot under allied pressure yield ground, stretch their line out, and so take up the blow. No flexibility can be permitted.

For example, if the Allies should attack from the heights of the Chemin des Dames or Berry-au-Bac and force the German lines back only a few miles, Laon would fall, because the line of supplies from the east which feeds the southern part of the line passes through Laon and would be severed. Once Laon was in the Allies' hands the German position at the point of the salient would be threatened because of the impossibility of keeping up the supplies.

Similarly, if a successful series of attacks were launched from Verdun or the Champagne, vital lines, which run up to important bases, would be cut behind the German armies in the field, and they would have to fall back to protect themselves or be cut off. Any such gain as the Germans have made against the Allies, if reversed, would mean the end of the war, as the German Army, or a good part of it, with the majority of its artillery, would be captured or destroyed.

In the larger strategical sense, therefore, the advantage lies with the Allies, and must continue to lie with them unless they are totally defeated, and from the events of the last few weeks one can judge how far off that is.

On the southern flank of the allied line in Italy, this situation is completely reversed. If we ignore that portion of the Italian line along the western boundary of Trentino, (and we may ignore it for it is impossible to force it, as the mountains are penetrated in only a few places,) the line is roughly semi-circular, with the Italians on the inside. Here the Italians have the same advantages possessed by the Germans in France—interior lines and correspondingly short communications and facilities for supplying their forces. The Austrian situation here is very bad in this respect because of the paucity of roads and the long hauls. But the Italians, even if they could conduct an offensive successfully, would get nowhere except after long and heavy battling, as the Austrian line could do as the Allies can in France, yield indefinitely without great sacrifice of material advantages.

The Italians, on the other hand, must keep their line rigid. To yield at all might cause serious trouble. It is the old question of breaking a salient by crushing in its side. The elements of the problem remain the same regardless of the size of the salient. The problem differs only in degree.

All this indicates the possibilities of an allied offensive when it starts. That may not be until next year, but when it does begin it will be a battle to end the war. It would be folly for the Allies to throw their reserve army in piecemeal and have it destroyed little by little when, by sacrificing what is worth little here and there, it may be kept intact to deliver the final blow later. And if the final blow is to be delivered, it will have to be by the full force that the Allies can muster, all thrown into the fighting at the same time in a crushing attack.

RESNATI KILLED IN FALLING AIRPLANE

Accident to Noted Italian on Eve of His Attempt to Fly Over the Atlantic.

CRUSHED UNDER WRECKAGE

Disaster at Mineola Attributed to Airman Misjudging Distance at the Start.

MINEOLA, L. I., May 17.—Captain Antonio Silvio Resnati, one of the most famous members of the Royal Italian Flying Corps, was killed when his airplane fell fifty feet at the United States aviation field here today. He met death on the eve of making an attempt to pilot across the Atlantic one of the powerful Caproni airplanes, which was the ambition of his life. He was said that within a few weeks he was to have sailed for Italy to bring back through the air the largest airplane in the world.

Captain Resnati lost his life while flying a new Caproni triple motored biplane equipped with Isotta-Fraschini engines. The machine had only recently arrived from Italy and been reassembled at the aviation field. The Captain was testing it previous to attempting a nonstop flight to Chicago. Investigation started immediately after the accident is said to have shown that the cause of the fall was because the aviator had taken to the air without sufficient initial run.

Carefully Inspected Machine.

Captain Resnati came on the field shortly before 1 o'clock and his machine was brought out. As the airplane had only arrived from abroad a few days ago, it was carefuly inspected by the mechanics. They tried each part and gave the engines a test spin. The aviator, not satisfied with this testing, went over the Caproni with the greatest care. From tip to tip he examined it and he tested every wire and control. He started the motors, and it was not until he was satisfied that everything was in perfect running order that he climbed into his seat and, after strapping himself in, gave the signal to start. As the engines began to roar the biplane darted forward. As the wheels left the ground the aviator evidently began the turn which always begins the upward climb. The spectators observed that the left wings began to slant down and the right wings to rise. It seemed to those on the ground that the aviator was unaware of his danger until suddenly the downward movement of the left wings increased and in a second the great airplane was sliding down and out of control. So acute was the angle that when the machine hit the ground it did not skid, but turned over and collapsed, a mass of shattered machinery.

As soon as word of the accident was received by the officers of the Italian Military Mission in New York, Colonel Finda, its head, and Captain Hugo d'Annunzio, the flying companion and friend of Captain Resnati, started for Mineola. They arrived in time to take part in the investigation into the cause of the accident. The board that investigated was made up of Major E. L. Canaday, commanding officer at the aviation field; Major Thomas Hitchcock, officer in charge of flying at Mineola, and five other army officers. They found that the accident was not due to faults of construction, but solely to the failure to obtain initial speed. Captain d'Annunzio was deeply moved by the death of his friend, for he has made more than 300 flights with Captain Resnati, including many difficult feats.

Not an American Machine.

"The machine in which the accident happened was not an American made machine, as was at first reported," said Captain d'Annunzio. "It was a new Caproni biplane of the comparatively small type that has been used by Captain Resnati to make his many records in the United States in the last eight months. It had been received from Italy only recently to be used in place of the old machine which the Captain had used in cross-country flying exhibitions and in helping the Liberty Loan and the Red Cross drives. The biplane was equipped with three Isotta Fraschini motors and had only a small load sufficient to test the engines. It was being put in order for a non-stop flight to Chicago.

"The Captain was in the machine alone. The machine ran over the sandy ground for about 120 feet and then arrived at a point where there was a depression in the ground. Then the inertia caused by running on the sandy soil naturally ended. Captain Resnati was seen to operate the controls of the machine as though he believed that it had left the ground in flight. This was undoubtedly due to the recent illness of the Captain which had lasted more than a week and had dulled his senses. Next the machine was seen to stall and sideslip and it fell to the ground sideways from a height of fifty feet.

"Another evidence that Captain Resnati's illness had destroyed his usual alertness was that he failed to cut off the motors when the sideslip took place. Ordinarily it would have been the first thing he would have done."

In Many Noted Flights.

The biplane was a 450 horse power machine used for bombing. It had a span of 73 feet, was 35 feet in length, and 12 feet in height. It was only half as large as the Caproni triplane, which was also flown by Captain Resnati. It was also smaller than the Caproni machine which is being built in the United States, and is to be equipped with Liberty motors.

The dead aviator had been in many sensational flights. At Langley Field in September he attained an altitude of 17,000 feet, 1,000 feet higher than the previous American record, made by Victor Carlstrom. He also made a flight from Langley Field to Mineola with nine passengers in 4 hours and 2 minutes.

Captain Resnati was 25 years old and a native of Milan. He was a graduate of the Polytechnic of Milan and had been in aeronautics for a number of years before the war. His father and mother still live. The former is a noted surgeon, and one brother is a famous Caproni pilot. When the Germans broke through the Italian line on the Piave he was one of the first flyers sent out to cover the retreat and protect the Italian Army. Flying low and emptying his machine gun into the ranks of the enemy, he was wounded and forced to land in territory held by the enemy. He was taken to the prison camp in Bohemia, but escaped from there about two months ago.

Captain d'Annunzio said emphatically that there were no bombs on the ill-fated Caproni. It is also denied that the bed of the motor had been tampered with. The engine bed, it was said, had been examined before and after the accident and it had not been impaired.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—Captain Resnati's death was a great shock to all official Washington, to which he had become well known as the chief Italian aviator demonstrating the Caproni planes in America. His immense machine, with its enormous wing spread, which practically has been selected for the American army use as a night bombing plane, because of its tremendous weight-carrying capacity, had become a familiar sight over the capital. Nearly every day the roar of its giant motors called the attention of thousands of soldiers and war workers as Resnati or one of his assistants flew it over the dome of the Capitol, about the White House, where President Wilson always was an enthusiastic spectator, or over the Virginia hills across the Potomac.

Secretary Baker was particularly grieved by the news.

"That is too bad," he said. "I have shared the admiration of all Americans for Captain Resnati. His loss will be severely felt by our aviators, and to a degree by the whole army."

DISCOVER GERMAN PLOT IN IRELAND

Church outside Ulster, in which the writer believes he is speaking the mind of all good Irishmen in telling the Government force is no remedy and that no good can be derived from a sanguinary conflict with any section of the Irish people, while any Government which added civil war in Ireland to the anxieties already confronting the empire would be execrated by the conscience of all Christian men.

Chief Secretary Shortt, says a Press Association dispatch from Dublin, referring to the proclamation authorizing the statement that the measures for which he accepts full responsibility with the Lord Lieutenant, Viscount French, are directed solely against a dangerous German intrigue of which they have knowledge.

The Irish Government, it is added, are fully aware that the number of Irishmen and Irish women in active cooperation with the German enemy is very small, but many might unknowingly become involved, and they believe, therefore, they can rely upon the support of the Irish without regard to creed or political views in the measures they have taken. The Irish Government are determined to take every necessary step to stamp out the German plot.

The proclamation will be posted throughout Ireland Saturday morning and the arrests of the supposed leaders are expected to follow immediately.

IRISH UNITED ON CONSCRIPTION ONLY

Political Gulf Between Sinn Feiners and Home Rulers as Wide as Ever.

By CHARLES N. WHEELER.

Copyright, 1918, by the Chicago Tribune Co.

DUBLIN, May 17.—In view of possible developments in the next few days, it is important for the people in America to keep clearly in mind the fact that the present union of all political parties in Ireland affects only the conscription issue. I am writing with authority.

The gulf between the Sinn Fein revolutionists, led by Valera and Griffith, and the Constitutional Home Rulers, led by Dillon and Devlin, is as wide as ever as to the form of government Ireland should have immediately. This difference, for the present, is evidenced by the bitter contest in the East Cavan Parliamentary election, where the two factions are breaking up rival meetings and throwing rotten eggs at speakers.

But on conscription, the revolutionists, constitutionalists and the solid hierarchy are as one man in opposition. This explains why Valera and Dillon confer at the Mansion House almost daily on how to defeat conscription, yet at the same time are going after each other's scalp in East Cavan over political methods.

The Sinn Fein are avowedly revolutionary. They demand an Irish republic with complete separation from England. They stand for an independent State with a government like that of the United States and are opposed to a man to giving any aid to England in the present war. The Constitutionalists or Nationalists are for home rule within the dominion, declaring that under present conditions it is the only method that can save Ireland for anarchy and rebellion that will drench every parish with blood. What they fear is that England's attempt to enforce conscription will force the rank and file of the entire home rule section into the Sinn Fein camp despite their leaders, which they say will produce the bloodiest rebellion and set Ireland back 100 years.

The Nationalist leaders claim they are the only power in Ireland that now stands between order and bloodshed, and that even that power may wane if the Government goes ahead with conscription. They insist that home rule shall be granted immediately and conscription left to an Irish Parliament and that that is the only plan which will save Ireland from a fate similar to that of Belgium.

The more extreme Sinn Fein will accept help from any source, including Germany, while the Nationalist leaders tell me they want the help of America and the Allies in the war and are not in any way in sympathy with Germany. The forcing of rebellion over conscription, they say, would turn all forces outside Ulster pro-German in spite of their leaders, and they want the Government to put Ireland in a position to aid voluntarily, however small, by withdrawing conscription, which the people feel is rubbing it in on them.

It is England's determination to rule Ireland with an iron hand. The Nationalists now have seventy-seven seats in the British Parliament to seven for the Sinn Feiners, but many believe the relative strength will be reversed overnight if conscription is clamped on and a rebellion provoked. If conscription is forced, all leaders fear that there will be but one party left in Ireland, and that anti-England.

At the breaking up of the Nationalist meeting at Virginia, East Cavan, yesterday several members of Parliament were rotten egged by Sinn Feiners. Among the pelted, Thomas Lundon, the fighting member of the British Parliament from Ireland, got a heavy dose, Hayden and O'Donnell, M. P.'s also, were driven from the platform. J. O'Mahoney, one of the Sinn Fein leaders, pleaded with his followers to observe the right of free speech and permit the Nationalists to hold the meeting, but to no avail. Then O'Mahoney, Hean, Milroy, and Koshiel turned the fair day into a great Sinn Fein demonstration.

The disagreement as to method also affects the hierarchy. While most of the Bishops stand with the Nationalists, many of the Catholic clergy, particularly the young priests, openly defy the Bishops and are becoming a strong force in the Sinn Fein movement. Only on the conscription issues are all united to oppose and die if necessary before submitting.

46 GERMAN AIRPLANES DOWNED BY BRITISH

One of Haig's Air Brigades Accounts for 21 of Foe's Machines by Mid-Afternoon.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, May 17, (Associated Press.)—The ideal flying weather yesterday on the British front in Flanders constituted a bad period for the enemy air service.

One British brigade alone up to 3 o'clock in the afternoon had destroyed fifteen German planes and had driven six others down out of control, according to unofficial but reliable figures, which the correspondent learned. At least five other hostile machines were sent crashing down.

LONDON, May 17.—The official statement relative to aerial operations issued by the War Office today reads:

Great aerial activity prevailed on Thursday. Over twenty-five tons of bombs were dropped on important railway centres, airdromes, and billets behind the enemy lines.

Aerial fighting was intense early in the morning and again in the evening, thirty hostile machines being destroyed and five driven down out of control. Ten were shot down by our anti-aircraft guns, two landing behind our line. Their occupants were captured. Five of our machines are missing.

During the night ten and a half tons of bombs were dropped on different targets including the railway stations at Lille, Douai, and Chaulnes. Billets in the neighborhood of Bapaume, Péronne, and Roslères, as well as the docks at Bruges, were also bombed.

Cut German Bread Ration.

LONDON, May 17.—Reduction of the German bread ration from 200 to 160 grammes daily per person has been decreed, according to an official dispatch from Berlin reaching Basle. (The equivalent of 160 grammes is 5.6 ounces.) The reduction will take effect on June 16.

BOMBED SAARBRUECKEN IN SPITE OF AIR GUARDS

British Aviators Downed Five German Machines in Attack on Prussian Town.

LONDON, May 17.—In spite of determined opposition by German airplanes, British aviators on Thursday dropped bombs on factories and the railway station at Saarbrücken, in Rhenish Prussia, starting a fire on the railway. After bombing the town, the Britishers turned on the enemy and in aerial fighting, says an official statement on aerial activities issued at midnight, destroyed five of the enemy machines. One of the British airplanes was lost.

The official statement says:

Early Thursday our airplanes set out to bomb the factories and railway station at Saarbrücken, in Germany. On crossing the lines they were encountered by ten hostile scouts, and a running fight took place along the entire way to our objective. By the time Saarbrücken was reached twenty-five hostile machines had collected and were attacking our airplanes with the utmost vigor. In spite of these attacks twenty-four heavy bombs were dropped on our objectives. Several bursts were seen on a railway and a fire was started.

Having attained their objectives, our airplanes concentrated their efforts on fighting the enemy's machines, five of which were brought down. One of our machines was seen to be shot down. All of the others returned.

GILBERT KILLED IN FRANCE.

Noted French Flier Falls in Practice Flight at Villacoublay.

PARIS, May 17.—Eugène Gilbert, the French aviator, was killed yesterday when his airplane plunged to the ground at the Villacoublay Airdrome.

Gilbert was one of the leading French aviators in the years just preceding the outbreak of the war. When hostilities began he joined the French aerial service, and after a battle with the Germans was forced to land in Switzerland. He gave his parole and was not detained by the Swiss Government. Later he violated his parole and escaped to France, but was returned to Switzerland by the French Government. He recently escaped from Switzerland a second time, and rejoined the French forces.

MAURICE WAS CENSORED.

Home Secretary Justifies Deletion of Part of His Chronicle Statement.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 17.—In the House of Commons yesterday Sir Tudor Walter asked the Home Secretary whether General Maurice's personal explanation, published in Wednesday's Daily Chronicle, had been submitted to the censor and whether any deletions had been made in it. Sir George Cave replied that the letter had been submitted to the censor and that some words had been deleted. He said he had looked into the matter and was satisfied that the words had been properly deleted.

Sir Tudor asked if they had been suppressed because it was considered that they would give information to the enemy or prejudice the country, and, if not, on whose authority they had been deleted on other grounds. Sir George said that the words had been deleted because they contained a reference to a secret document to which General Maurice had access on account of his official position, and because the words, if published, would, he thought, have given a wrong impression of the contents of that document.

Speaking later in the house, Sir Tudor said it was within the right of the military authorities to inflict upon General Maurice whatever punishment they considered proper for his violation of military discipline, but neither they nor any other department was entitled to rob him of his personal honor by refusing him an opportunity to establish his good faith in the statement he had made and the letters he had written. In the letter which appeared in The Daily Chronicle Wednesday the most important point had been deleted by the censor, Sir Tudor said, and it was grotesquely unfair to deprive the General of the opportunity of justifying the statements he had made. That unfortunate gentleman, he continued, had been condemned unheard; his career had been ruined, and he had been driven from the army. He thought the authorities might at least have allowed General Maurice to make a plain, honest statement rehabilitating himself in the minds of the public at large.

SENATE PUTS OFF FIGHT ON INQUIRY

Chamberlain Resolution Will Be Taken Up Monday and a Compromise Is Probable.

"COVERT PURPOSE" DENIED

Proponents Resent President's Charge—Minority Report Assails the Measure.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—The threatened contest over Senator Chamberlain's resolution for an investigation of War Department activities was postponed today until Monday, with supporters of the resolution working hard for an adjustment of their differences with the Administration forces in the Senate.

As the situation stands tonight, after scores of conferences and much talk of compromises, the resolution, as reported by a majority of the Committee on Audit and Control, will come up Monday in the Senate. Its supporters today professed entire confidence that they had convinced Administration leaders that the measure did not mean interference with President Wilson's conduct of the war and that it would receive a favorable vote by the Senate.

Between now and Monday the proponents of the resolution will continue their efforts for a compromise based upon a clear understanding by Administration Senators of just what the Military Affairs Committee has in mind.

Misunderstandings in Senate.

A leading member of the Military Affairs Committee and one of those most active in seeking the compromise, said tonight:

"I think the matter will be adjusted without difficulty. Certain Senators opposing the resolution did not understand it. When it was explained to them they agreed that it was not vicious and expressed entire accord with its purposes."

The matter came up on presentation by Senator Thompson of the minority report of the Committee on Audit and Control on the Chamberlain resolution. A little later Senator McKellar of Tennessee, in charge of the majority report, rose to his feet to call up the resolution, but was forestalled by Senator Fletcher of Florida, who obtained permission of the Senate to take up the River and Harbor Appropriation bill. This, in turn, was laid aside to discuss minor bills from the calendar, and it appeared as though the fight was over before it had been begun.

Senator McKellar, however, had already begun talking compromise with Administration leaders. About the same time word was received that President Wilson, then en route to New York, had authorized Secretary Tumulty to deny emphatically that he was opposed to any aircraft investigation, but to state that he did oppose the "covert purpose" of the Chamberlain resolution.

Deny "Covert Purpose."

What the "covert purpose" was the President did not say. His use of that language angered members of the Military Committee, who declared the purpose of the resolution simply was a legitimate, thoroughly frank investigation of aircraft production, ordnance production, and the Quartermaster's Department.

But, taking the President's attitude as indicative of the attitude of the resolution's opponents in the Senate, the proponents of the investigation began a campaign of education. They explained to Senator Thompson and others that there was no covert purpose behind the resolution, and made plain just what the purpose was.

Some hours of that appeared to have convinced certain of the measure's enemies that they had taken a wrong view of the resolution, and that they, in turn, had conveyed a wrong idea to the President about it.

Various means of compromising the trouble, without having a smashing fight on the floor were discussed. At one time it was thought best to drop the Chamberlain resolution, by indefinitely postponing action on it, and to amend a resolution adopted in April, 1917, under which the Military Affairs Committee held its former War Department inquiry, so as to provide additional funds, and to let sub-committees sit during recesses of Congress.

Another plan discussed was the introduction of a new resolution, empowering the Military Affairs Committee, or a sub-committee, to investigate aircraft production. Under this plan, the committee would have proceeded to investigate ordnance and the Quartermaster's Department under the old resolution.

Chamberlain Measure Stands.

At a late hour, however, it had been agreed to make the fight, if there is to be a fight, or the compromise, if there is to be one, on the Chamberlain resolution as reported from the Committee on Audit and Control.

The compromise proposed is to limit the Military Affairs Committee to inquiry into aircraft, ordnance, and the Quartermaster's Department, give it ample funds and power, but prevent it from interfering with the general conduct of the war.

Brief discussion of the appointment of Charles E. Hughes as special assistant in the Department of Justice inquiry into Gutson Borglum's charges against the Aircraft Production Administration took place on the floor of the Senate. Senator Borah of Idaho took exception to published statements that Republican Senators disapproved of Mr. Hughes's acceptance of the task.

"I do not assume to speak for Republican leaders," said Senator Borah, "but I do say for some others who are humbler members of the party that they do not look upon the acceptance by Mr. Hughes of this position unfavorably.

"Ordinarily, I should not call attention to a matter of this kind. But this whole situation with reference to Aircraft is one of extreme sensitiveness throughout the country, and I, for one, do not want to be regarded as of those who look unfavorably upon this, if any one does. Indeed, I have heard no one criticise it. On the other hand, I have heard the President most highly commended by Republican members as having done a wise and patriotic thing, and Mr. Hughes highly commended for a wise and patriotic act in accepting the position, and I believe that is the view of Republican members of the Senate, including both the leaders and those [illegible]."

Senator Lodge interrupted to ask whether Mr. Borth knows of any Republican Senator who has disapproved the choice of Mr. Hughes or thought otherwise than well of him."

"No, the comment I have heard has been all the other way," replied Senator Borah.

"That is my own impression," said Senator Lodge.

Minority Report Submitted.

The minority report on the Chamberlain resolution, as submitted today by Senator Thompson, follows:

"Your committee to audit and control the contingent expenses of the Senate has had under consideration Senate Resolution 241, submitted by Mr. Chamberlain, authorizing and directing the Committee on Military Affairs to inquire into and report to the Senate the progress of aircraft production in the United States, or into any other matters relating to the conduct of the war by, or through, the War Department, and a majority of the committee, consisting of Senators McKellar, Smoot, and France, has favorably recommended the same, with certain amendments which have been reported to the Senate.

"A minority of the committee, consisting of Senators Thompson and Jones, are unwilling to join in the report submitted by the majority and are opposed to the passage of the resolution as amended, as it is little better than the original resolution and is a more 'drag-net' proposition, as wholesale inquiries into various branches of the Government are directed whether there is any necessity therefor or not.

"The resolution, as introduced by the Senator from Oregon, Mr. Chamberlain, contained very extraordinary provisions, which apparently were objectionable to all the members of the committee, certainly to the minority. In these circumstances it is not necessary to discuss at length in this report the many objections which could be stated to the original resolution.

"Briefly stated, the resolution as proposed to be amended by the majority confers no authority upon the Committee on Military Affairs which it does not now possess other than the authority to employ such agents or assistants as may be necessary and to incur expenses, including 'traveling expenses,' to the amount of $10,000, except that it does direct that the various investigations be made whether there is any cause therefor or not.

"In April of last year the Senate passed Senate Resolution 48, which is as follows:

"Resolved, That the Committee on Military Affairs, or any sub-committee thereof, be authorized during the Sixty-fifth Congress to send for persons and papers and to administer oaths and to employ a stenographer, at a cost of not to exceed $1 per printed page, to report such hearings as may be had in connection with any subject which may be pending before said committee; that the committee may sit during the sessions or recesses of the Senate, and that expenses contracted hereunder shall be paid out of the contingent fund of the Senate."

Not Averse to Inquiry.

"The undersigned minority are not averse to the full exercise of the authority conferred upon the Committee on Military Affairs by the above resolution to investigate the situation with respect to the aircraft, ordnance, appropriation, or any other branch of the War Department, as it may desire. We are favorable to a most thorough and complete inquiry into the aircraft situation, but call attention to the fact that the Department of Justice, which is equipped with every facility, now most actively engaged in that work, and that the Hon. Charles E. Hughes has just been appointed by the President to assist, which ought to quiet any apprehension that for any reason a full and completed investigation might not be made, even though the Committee on Military Affairs should not continue its efforts in that behalf.

"Under this authority, conferred more than a year ago, the Committee on Military Affairs has been conducting investigations covering practically all the activities of the War Department. On April 10, 1918, it submitted to the Senate a majority and as minority report upon the aircraft question. (See report 360, Parts 1 and 2.)

"Senate Resolution 48 has not been rescinded, and the committee retains authority to continue its investigations not only into the aircraft situation, but the Ordnance Department, and all other departments of the Government, as well as all expenditures of appropriations.

"In the view of the minority no good reason appears why any additional powers should be granted. No showing or evidence of any character was presented to your committee indicating that the employment of agents or assistants, or the incurring of traveling expenses is necessary, although the author of the resolution was given full opportunity to make such showing if he desired to do so. Any necessity for the employment of agents or assistants by the Committe on Military Affairs can only rest upon mere assumption. We know from the records of the Senate that the Committee on Military Affairs has already four assistants and clerks, and Senate Resolution 48 gives to the committee full authority to employ additional stenographers without limit as to number, and no request for extra help has been made by the committee.

No Action Taken.

"So far as we are advised, the Committee on Military Affairs has taken no action whatever with respect to Resolution 241 or with respect to the obtaining of additional assistants. No showing has been made to your committee which would furnish a reason for the incurring of traveling expenses. Provisions in a resolution authorizing a committee of the Senate to employ assistants and incur traveling expenses are unusual and extraordinary, and in the opinion of the minority should not be granted except upon a substantial showing of the necessity therefor.

"The majority of your committee proposes to limit the expenditures of the contingent fund to the sum of $10,000 for the purpose of employing agents and assistants, and for traveling expenses.

"The moneys in the contingent fund of the Senate now available for such purposes and for the purpose of defraying the expenses of the various hearings and investigations now being conducted by all the committees of the Senate do not exceed the sum of $10,000. Twenty-five committees of the Senate are now authorized to hold hearings and employ stenographers, and a number of such hearings are now in progress. Those now being conducted will probably consume the entire fund available for this purpose, and if the resolution as proposed to be amended should be adopted there would be specific authority for the expenditure of all the available funds, thereby depriving all other committees of the opportunity to continue their hearings.

"There are very few precedents in resolutions of this character for including traveling expenses, which means in this case that the committee, attorneys, agents, clerks, stenographers, and other assistants and employes may travel to any place in the United States as well as to the war front in Europe if the committee deems it advisable.

"It must be noted that the resolution with the proposed amendments not only gives authority but directs the Committee on Military Affairs to 'inquire into and report to the Senate on the progress of aircraft and ordnance production in the United States or into the status of Quartermaster's supplies, or into expenditures in any branch of the War Department.' If attorneys, experts, and agents be employed and undertake the performance of the duties directed by this resolution, in the opinion of the minority the sum of $10,000 will be only a mere advance allowance and large additional sums will necessarily be called for.

"It is evident that the numerous investigations specified will cause great annoyance and interference with the necessary war work now going on in the most important branches of the War Department. For the department to attempt to answer the requirements which may be made upon it under the terms of this resolution, much of the time of its officers and employes would be required, and the department would be prevented from devoting the time and energy necessary to the performance of essential work in the actual prosecution of the war, so vital to the country at this time.

"Wherefore, we, the undersigned, a minority of your committee, respectfully recommend that the resolution do not pass.

"WILLIAM H. THOMPSON,
"ANDRIEUS A. JONES.

"Of the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate."

DRAFT BOARD LOSES HUGHES.

Adopts Resolutions of Regret at Chairman's Resignation.

Charles E. Hughes, Chairman of the New York City District Board for the Selective Draft, has resigned that post in order to devote his time to the investigation of the aircraft charges made by Gutson Borglum and others. At a meeting of the Draft Board, which is the appeal board for the city, yesterday a resolution offered by former Attorney General George W. Wickersham was adopted unanimously, as follows:

"The District Board of the City of New York has received with profound regret the news of the resignation of its fellow member and Chairman, Charles Evans Hughes.

"Mr. Hughes took part in the organization of this board and at its first meeting was unanimously elected its Chairman, and from that time until the present he has sustained the burden of its successful operation. His unselfish devotion to the work of the board, his unfailing courtesy and consideration in presiding at its deliberations, his helpful and sympathetic aid to all of its members in the many perplexing problems which have arisen in carrying on its work, have contributed to the formation in the minds and hearts of all its members of admiration for his ability, respect for his judgment, confidence in his decisions, and affectionate regard for his character.

"Regret at the severance of his connection with this board is tempered by the knowledge that he had laid down this work to devote himself, with continued and augmented unselfishness, to another great and useful public employment at the invitation of the President of the United States.

"The District Board of the City of New York hereby registers as a permanent record this expression of its high appreciation of the value of Mr. Hughes's patriotic services to the board and to the nation, and its keen regret that Mr. Hughes's association with its members had been brought to this early termination.

"Resolved, That the Secretary be instructed to transmit to Mr. Hughes a certified copy of the foregoing resolution."

Under the Chairmanship of Mr. Hughes the District Board has disposed of more than 100,000 appeals from the decisions of local draft boards in addition to rendering final decision in cases where exemption was sought on industrial or agricultural grounds.

George L. Ingraham, former Supreme Court Justice, is the Vice Chairman of the District Board, and the impression is that he will be elected to succeed Mr. Hughes as Chairman.

TRACES OUR TROOPS WHO ARE CAPTURED

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—The War Department today issued a statement to assure relatives of American soldiers who are prisoners of war that they are being promptly informed of the men's status and movements, so far as it is possible to obtain the facts. This task is being performed by the Prisoners of War Section of the Miscellaneous Division of the Adjutant General's office in the War Department, with the cooperation of the Red Cross.

To date this section has forwarded information to relatives of about 300 imprisoned Americans, nearly 200 of these being civilians, including members of ship crews, who were interned in Germany. No reports have been received relative to the whereabouts of 183 Americans said by the Germans to have been captured in a recent engagement. Some of these probably have been included in the lists of the missing.

PHONE WIRE STRUNG ON VILLAGE CRUCIFIX

American Soldiers in Picardy Find Moroccans Utilized the Sacred Figure.

MAYOR HARDENED TO WAR

Old Refugee, Returning Home, Takes Discomfort Philosophically—In the Gun Pits.

By FLOYD GIBBONS.

Copyright, 1918, by The Chicago Tribune Company.

EIGHTH ARTICLE.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMIES UNDER GENERAL FOCH IN FRANCE, May 17.—To avoid impeding traffic through this little village on the Picardy front to which the American artillery battalion I have been accompanying had been assigned, it had become necessary, it seems, to elevate the telephone wires from the ground and send them across the road overhead. A large crucifix stands in the centre of the market place and that had presented itself as an excellent support for this wire.

So the sons of the prophet Mahomet, this village being garrisoned by Moroccans of the French colonial service, had utilized it with no intention of disrespect. The uplifted right knee of the figure on the cross was insulated and wired. War, the moderniser and mocker of Christ, seemed to have devised new pain for the teacher of peace.

At the foot of the cross had been nailed a rudely made sign conveying to passersby a warning in French that this was an exposed crossing and should be negotiated rapidly. Fifty yards away another board bore in red the letters "R. A. S.," and by following the direction indicated by an arrow I arrived at the cellar in which an American doctor had established a relief aid station.

The medico had furnished his subterranean apartments with furniture removed from the house above.

"Might as well bring it down here, and make the boys comfortable," he said, "as to leave it up there and let the shells make kindling out of it. Funny thing about these cellars. Ones with a western exposure—that is, with doors and ventilators opening on the side away from the enemy—seem scarcest.

German Builders' Foresight?

"That seems to have revived all that talk about German architects having had something to do with the erection of these buildings before the war. You remember at one time it was said that a number of houses on the front had been found to have plaster walls on the side nearest the enemy and stone walls on the other side? There might be something to it, but I doubt it."

Across the street battalion headquarters had been established in the basement of a house which appeared to be the most pretentious in the village. Telephone wires now entered the building through a broken window pane, and within maps had been tacked on the plaster walls and the furniture submitted to the hard usage demanded by war. An old man, conspicuous by his civilian clothes, wandered about the yard here and there, picking up some stray implement or knick-knack, hanging it upon the wall or placing it carefully aside.

"There's tragedy," the battalion commander told me. "That man is the Mayor of this town. He was forced to flee with the rest of the civilians. He returned today to look over the ruins. This is his house we occupy. I explained that much of it is as we found it, but that we undoubtedly have broken some things. I could see that every broken chair and window and plate meant a heart throb to him, but he only looked up at me with his wrinkled old face as he said. 'Oh, it is all right, Monsieur. I understand, c'est la guerre.'"

The old man opened one of his barn doors, revealing a floor littered with straw and a line of hobnailed boots. A night working detail was asleep in the blankets. A sleepy voice growled out something about closing the doors, and the old man, with a polite "pardonez-moi, messieurs," swung the wooden portal softly shut. His home—his house—his barn—his straw—c'est la guerre.

The evening meal of corn willy, relieved by onions and served on some of the Mayor's remaining chinaware, was concluded by a final course of fresh Spring onions. These came from the Mayor's own garden, just outside the door. The cook affirmed that it was no difficulty to gather them.

"Every night the Germans drop shells in the garden," he said. "I don't even have to pull 'em. Just go out in the morning and pick 'em off the ground."

Night in the Gun Pits

I spent part of the night in the gun pits along the roadside bordering the town. This particular battery of heavies was engaged on a night-long program of intermittent fire, laid down with irregular intensity on the cross roads and communication points in the enemy's back areas. Under screens of camouflage netting these howitzers with mottled bores, squatting froglike on the carriages, vomited flames of red, green and orange. The detonations were earsplitting, and the cannoneers relieved the recurring shocks by clapping their hands to the sides of the head and balancing on their toes each time a lanyard was pulled.

Infantry reserves were swinging along in the road directly back of the guns. They were moving up to forward positions, and they sang in an undertone as they moved in open order. Before reproducing the words of the song sung by these men as they marched forward to the firing lines it is necessary to assure the censor that there was not a keg of beer in the column or within fifteen miles and, besides, it can hardly be conceived that American soldiers would so much as taste the vile stuff if it were offered them. Now for the song, which ran:

Glor-ree-us!
Glor-ee-!
One keg of beer for the four of us.
Glory be to Mike there are no more of us.
For four of us can drink it all alone.

Some of these marchers would arrive during the small interval of silence at a position on the road not ten feet from the darkened, camouflaged howitzers just as one would shatter the air with a deafening crash. The suddenness and unexpectedness of the detonation would make the marchers start and jump involuntarily. Upon such occasions the crews would laugh heartily and indulge in good-natured raillery with the infantrymen.

"Hey, Johnny Doughboy, don't get frightened. We were just shipping a load of sauerkraut to the Kaiser," one ear-hardened gunner said. "Haven't you heard the orders against running your horses? Come down to a gallop and take it easy."

"G'wan, you leatherneck," an infantryman returns. "You smell like a livery stable. Better trade that pitchfork for a bayonet and come up where there's some fighting."

"Don't worry about fighting, little Doughboy," came another voice from a gun pit. "This is a 'tray forty' sector. If you don't get killed the first eight days, orders is to shoot you for loafing. You're marching over what's called 'the road you don't come back.'"

Ammunition Trucks Arrive.

A train of ammunition trucks timed to arrive at a moment when the road was unoccupied puts in an appearance as the end of an infantry column passed, and the Captain in charge urges the men to speed the unloading and fumes over delays by reason of the darkness. The men receive the big shells in their arms and carry them away to dumps, where they are put in readiness for the guns. The road is in an exposed position, and this active battery is likely to draw enemy fire at any time, so the ammunition train Captain is anxious to get his charges away in a hurry.

His fears are not without foundation, for in the midst of the unloading one German missile arrived in a nearby field and sprayed the roadway with steel just as every one flattened out on the ground. Five ammunition hustlers arose with minor cuts, and one driver was swearing at a shell fragment which had gone through the radiator of his truck and liberated the water. The unloading was completed with all speed, and the ammunition train moved off towing the disabled truck. With the day gun crew, which had helped in unloading, I crawled into a chalk dugout to share their sleeping quarters in the straw.

"What paper do you represent?" one man asked me as he sat in the straw unwrapping his puttees. I told him.

"Do you want to know the most popular publication around this place?" he asked, and I replied affirmatively.

"It's called The Daily Woolen Undershirt," he said. "Haven't you seen everybody sitting along the roadside reading theirs, and trying to keep up with things? Believe me, it's some reading matter, too."

"Don't let him kid you," the section chief said. "I haven't had to read mine yet. The doctor's fixed up a bath in the town, and yesterday he passed around these flea charms. Have you seen them?"

For our joint inspection he passed around a strong necklace with two linen tabs soaked in aromatic oil of cedar, than delivered an impromptu lecture on personal sanitation. His remarks were concluded abruptly by a peremptory order from without for the extinction of all lights. A candle stuck on a helmet top was snuffed and we lay down in the darkness with the guns booming away on either side.

So here we are, "Johnny at the ratchole," as they say in the ranks, and ready for the first command that Father Foch shoots in this direction. If an "up and over" is planned for this contingent, then I can say that its members look forward to experiencing "that grand and glorious feeling." If it is simply a question of sitting here and making Fritz suffer more casualties than we, then this organization avers that it is ready to hold out until the the harvest in Hades. In a nutshell, the gang's all here and wants to know. "Where do we go from here?"

Books for Women Voters

The coming enrollment of voters, the primaries, the registration of voters and the regular Fall election are momentous occasions for the women of New York, for they are just ready to take their places with the old electorate in "running" the affairs of the State. Women voters played a prominent part in the local option elections upstate last month, but now they are about to make state-wide use of their franchise for the first time. The following books should enlighten them as to their rights and duties as citizens:—

NEED $50,000 TODAY FOR SALVATION ARMY

Final Drive of War Fund Campaign Finds City's Gifts Totaling Only $200,000.

DANIELS GIVES PRAISE

Worker Back from the Front, Tells of Soldiers' Demand for Religious Services.

If the drive for $250,000 in this city by the General War Work Campaign Committee of the Salvation Army is to "go over the top," more than $50,000 must be obtained by this evening. It was said at the headquarters of the Campaign Committee, 122 West Fourteenth Street, that, in spite of the fact that only $200,000 had been reported last night, the committee was confident that the quota would be oversubscribed today.

A telegram expressing sympathy for the work of the Salvation Army and the present drive has been received by George Gordon Battle, Chairman of the Campaign Committee, from Secretary Daniels. The telegram follows:

Washington, May 17, 1918.
George Gordon Battle, 37 Wall St., New York City.

When we think of the Salvation Army we have in our vision consecrated men and women who carry light and help in the spirit of the Christ. They have won a deeper place in the hearts of civilians and fighting men during this war by the good cheer they have brought to the men in the firing line. I feel that all help should be given them. JOSEPHUS DANIELS, Secretary of the Navy.

Captain Ethel M. Renton of the Salvation Army, who arrived at an American port yesterday from behind the American lines in France, where she had been working, described the work of the overseas contingent of the Salvation Army last night. Captain Renton said there were more than 100 Salvation Army workers in France who managed forty-seven recreation and refreshment huts and rendered first aid to the wounded. Captain Renton, who had been in France since last August, said that members of the Salvation Army were stationed in dugouts under fire to give out hot cocoa and other refreshments to soldiers as they came out of the trenches at dawn.

Telling how the Salvation Army was liked by the American soldiers, Captain Renton said:

"I remember one day when we were marching with a regiment of American boys who were being transferred to take part in the recent offensive. We stopped one night in an open place where we had no shelter but a portable hut. In spite of the absence of any chairs, the boys clamored for a service. After holding a service for one hour we stopped, but they shouted for more, and it was not until those men had stood listening to us for three hours that they had enough."

George Gordon Battle, making his final appeal for the drive, said yesterday:

"It is the sacred duty of the men and women of our great city to contribute the modest sum of $250,000 for the overseas war work of the Salvation Army. Every cent of this money goes to the physical, mental, moral support of our American soldiers abroad. Can there be a greater obligation than to support our boys over there?

"The huts of the Salvation Army are close behind the trenches in France and Flanders. The men and women of the Salvation Army are comforting, cheering, and helping our soldiers there. They are protecting the health and morals of those noble young men. President Wilson, General Pershing, and all in authority certify that the work is splendid and deserves your hearty support. The soldiers who have returned to this country from the front, and who know the work of their own knowledge, are enthusiastic in their praise.

"We must stand behind the Salvation Army. We must help the Salvation Army to help our boys. This is the last day of the drive to raise this fund. Every instinct of patriotism and of loyalty and of humanity calls aloud that we respond to this summons. Let every one, whether he has contributed before or not, make today his final contribution.

"We have already raised about $200,000. Let it not be said that New York has failed to meet its full quota. Let us make up today without fail the required amount of $250,000."

HAS SEAPLANE RHEUMATISM

Royal Flier Tells of Many Impromptu Baths in North Sea.

Captain Gilbert Moore of the Royal Flying Corps arrived yesterday from France on his way to the British Embassy in Washington, in connection with the construction of airplanes and seaplanes in this country for use at the front.

He explained that he had been flying in seaplanes over the North Sea, scouting for German submarines, and had been spilled into the water so many times through engine trouble that he had developed rheumatism.

He brought with him a new sighting device invented by Major Wimperis of the Royal Air Force in England, which can be used in the open without lenses, and has proved of great value in enabling aviators to strike the objects aimed at when dropping bombs. The bombs, dropped while at a speed of more than 100 miles an hour, the Captain explained, generally hit anything except the object aimed at.

DRIVES 7,864 RIVETS IN A DAY

Shipbuilder Makes a Record in a Staten Island Yard.

According to a report at the Atlantic Basin Iron Works, in Summit Street, Brooklyn, yesterday, J. J. Briggs, a riveter employed there, has established a new world's record for riveting. Briggs is said to have made the phenomenal score of 7,864 seven-eighth-inch rivets driven in seven and one-half hours. This reported record, said to have been made on a Dutch ship undergoing repairs in Staten Island waters, completely overshadows any riveting performance thus far reported from Great Britain or the shipyards of this country.

Other workers at the iron works said Briggs, driving rivets at an average of 1,048 an hour, worked at such speed that his holder-on had to be relieved several times by another worker.

SHIP FRAMED IN 3½ DAYS.

Portsmouth, N. H., Builders Claim a Record for Ferris Type.

BOSTON, May 17.—The framing of a 2,300-ton wooden ship in three and a half working days, which it claimed as a record for the Ferris type carrier, was reported to the Emergency Fleet Corporation today by L. M. Shattuck, Inc., of Portsmouth, N. H., the builders.

Robert Jackson, Vice President of the company, in notifying John F. Vaughan, district officer of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, of the achievement, said the work was done by a gang of sixty men, and that in looking up the figures at Washington yesterday he found no company had made such a record in framing a vessel of this type.

The gang received a bonus and a special prize offered by the company in an effort to speed up work at its yard, where 2,000 men are employed.

APPOINT COMMITTEE ON STEEL SITUATION

War Industries Board and Executives of Plants Confer in Washington.

MILLIONS OF TONS NEEDED

Fate of Less Essential Factories Depends on Reports to Go to War Council.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 17. — When the members of the War Industries Board and the executives of the steel interests met here today a joint committee was named to determine upon ways and means to meet the demand that the war has made on the steel industry. Upon the findings of this committee will rest largely the fate of the so-called less essential manufactories and the length to which this Government will go to place the output of the steel mills under control.

The only announcement by the War Industries Board was contained in this carefully worded statement:

"The War Industries Board presented to the industry the increasing demands for steel to supply the military necessities for this country and its allies, and we have been discussing means of meeting this demand. The matter is under investigation. A joint committee of the steel industry and the War Industries Board is going to ascertain the facts and report them later."

On this committee are J. A. Farrell, President of the United States Steel Corporation; E. G. Grace, President of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation; H. G. Dalton of the Pickands-Mather Comapny; J. A. Topping, Chairman of the board of the Republic Iron and Steel Company, and E. A. S. Clarke, President of the Lackawanna Steel Company, all representing the steel interests, and these members of the War Industries Board: Alexander Legge, J. L. Replogle, and General Hugh L. Johnson.

There has been a determined agitation to have the Government commandeer the steel plants and take complete supervision of the output, but some officials have argued that this course would not bring about more favorable results than the present system of private operation. As the matter stands, there is little likelihood that drastic steps will be taken until the joint committee has reported and the whole matter has been placed before the Super-War Council, which meets with President Wilson on Wednesday afternoons.

The War Industries Board, under the leadership of Bernard M. Baruch, has not withdrawn, however, from its stand that the less essential industries must be curtailed if it is not shown beyond doubt that the steel mills of the nation will have a surplus after taking care of the unprecedented demands of the industries vital to the war program.

In this connection it was brought out at today's conference that the Shipping Board would need steel sufficient to build a fleet of not less than 12,000,000 tons in 1919, and that the program of the War and Navy Departments had been increased accordingly. The representatives of the steel interests were informed that these programs must be provided for despite any other claims, and that this situation must be taken into account in any findings reported by the joint committee.

The War Industries Board held that it was not its intention to disturb unduly industries not vital to the war, but that the time had come when the war needs of the nation must be considered before any other arguments received consideration. It was insisted also that the War Industries Board not only must have the power to see that the war industries were supplied 100 per cent., but must allocate whatever surplus was found.

Experts who have made a survey of the situation were firm in the position that there must be an expansion of the steel mills if the program were to be met, and that steps should be taken in that direction without delay. The question of Government control of the steel mills is involved in this development because additional capital must be supplied if the extensions believed necessary by Government officials are made.

The members of the War Industries Board and the steel interests were reticent about discussing developments at today's conference, and said only that the conclusions would be contained in the report which the joint committee would make later. It was reported that the committee would meet soon in New York, but no confirmation of this could be obtained.

BARNES FOR CALLING HAGUE CONFERENCE

Laborite in London Cabinet Wants Germany Forced In—Clemenceau Not Against League.

LONDON, May 17.—A suggestion that the United States might ask Holland to take the initiative in calling upon the allied Governments, to confer at The Hague, not in substitution for, but as a preliminary to the third Hague peace conference, was made by George Nicoll Barnes, Labor member of the War Cabinet without portfolio, in discussing the question of a league of nations last night. He expressed the hope that another Hague peace conference would be held after the war.

An allied conference at The Hague now, Mr. Barnes said, could be held without slackening the efforts to beat the Germans, and, "in fact might even induce Germany to respect her position in the world." People everywhere were ready for such a meeting, he said.

Mr. Barnes laid down the principle that a league of nations must be binding upon all powers and that all nations must agree to submit disputes to a world tribunal for settlement. He declared that there must be an agreement for a reduction of armaments, the suppression of private capital in their manufacture, and the inauguration of some international machinery by which effect could be promptly given to international decrees.

The inclusion of Germany in a league of nations, Mr. Barnes added, should not be regarded as a favor to Germany but rather as something to which she should be required to subscribe. It might well be one of the terms imposed upon her at the peace conference.

Mr. Barnes asked how a peaceably disposed league of nations could reduce armaments while a nation of 70,000,000 was left outside to form a rival league and again set the pace in all the devilry of war preparation.

In an address last night at Westminster, the view that the formation of a league of nations required a victory of the Allies was emphasized by Judge William H. Wadhams of New York. Without such a victory, he asked, how could there be a league of nations, including a power that had starved thousands of babies to death in Poland and committed the other atrocities there that had been recorded.

Judge Wadhams told how Dr. Frederick C. Walcott of the Rockefeller Foundation, who went to Poland to help in the work of aiding the starving populace, had described these horrors to him and recalled a proclamation issued by the German military to the effect that if the Polish men wanted food they should go to Germany and work in the factories. The German General, in an explanation of the order, computed that 3,500,000 Poles would starve, said the speaker, but added that afterward the Germans would come in and the country would be German, under no matter what name.

"Surely it is impossible that such a people, in such a mood, could form a part of the league of nations," Judge Wadhams said.

While in France Judge Wadhams talked with Premier Clemenceau as to his views on the proposed league of nations. He quoted the Premier as replying:

"I am not opposed to it. After the war, if it is the desire to have a league of nations it will be satisfactory to me, but my work now is to carry on the war. I am an old man and may not survive long after the war."

Judge Wadhams commented on the interest attaching to this statement because it had been reported that Premier Clemenceau was opposed to a league of nations, which evidently was not the case.

Nothing but misfortune and misery is in store for the world unless the great principles put forth by American and British statesmen are made effective in human life, said Professor Andrew C. McLaughlin, of the University of Chicago, at a luncheon at the Mansion House, given in honor of himself and Charles Moore, Chairman of the American National Commission on Fine Arts, by the Lord Mayor of London.

Professor McLaughlin said that he was thinking particularly of what would come after the war. The world in a large measure rested upon the shoulders of the American and British peoples. Despite some failings, the great heart of the American people, he said, was devoted to high and big things and could be relied upon to do the work of justice.

Among the guests were the Bishop of Hereford, the Dean of Westminster, the Dean of St. Paul's, the Chief Rabbi of England, Dr. Burrows, Principal of King's College, and many representatives of English universities.

EX-CZAR'S SISTERS WASH FOR FAMILY

Romanoffs Living in Penury in Crimea Frequently Attacked by Mobs.

AMSTERDAM, May 17.—The humble circumstances in which the "Romanoff family" has been living in seclusion on a small Crimean estate are described in a newspaper published in Kiev, a copy of which has been received here.

The newspaper says that the party consists of Nicholas Nicholaievitch, Dowager Empress Maria Feodorovna, her two daughters, Xenie Alexandrovna and Olga Alexandrovna, and their two children, with fourteen other persons. During the February revolution they were frequently attacked by mobs, which were especially hostile to Grand Duke Nicholas. The farmhouse in which the Dowager Empress lived was shelled three times.

The Grand Duchesses Xenie and Olga did the family washing and Grand Duke Nicholas taught the children, who, owing to perpetual fright, became nervous wrecks. Only rough soldiers' fare was allowed, meat and sugar being unattainable luxuries. The only amusements the prisoners enjoyed were gardening and reading, but books were scarce. The Grand Duchess Olga, sold part of her wardrobe to buy books, credit being refused her.

Architects Call War Conference.

The American Institute of Architects issued a call yesterday for a conference in this city on June 7 of representative architects' associations, the purpose being to bring about a federation of these associations so that the entire profession can co-operate in war time. The call points out the need for action, especially with the view of more intelligently placing their services at the disposal of the Government.

WILLIAM L. ABINGDON, ACTOR, ENDS HIS LIFE

Husband of Bijou Fernandez Cuts His Throat and Wrists with a Razor.

William L. Abingdon, well known as an actor, who lived at 235 West Seventy-sixth Street, committed suicide late last night at his home by slashing his throat and wrists with the blade of a safety razor. His wife, known on the stage as Bijou Fernandez, told the police that he came home and retired quietly. She heard groans from the bathroom, and running in there found him bleeding from his wounds. She called to her maid, who notified Patrolman Seibil of the West Sixty-eighth Street Station.

Dr. D. S. Likely of 300 Central Park West, was summoned, and Mr. Abingdon was taken to the private hospital of Dr. A. R. Stearns of 316 West End Avenue, where he died an hour later. Mrs. Abingdon said he had suffered from a nervous breakdown, and that fearing some such action as the result of melancholia, she had been watching him closely.

Mr. Abingdon was well known in America and England and was a member of the Players and Lambs Clubs in New York and of the Green Room Club, London. He was born in Towcester-Horthants, England, on May 2, 1859, and made his first appearance on the stage in 1881. He married Bijou Fernandez, and toured in the companies of the late Wilson Barrett, and among many well-known productions he appeared in important rôles in "The Silver King," "The Still Alarm," "Sweet Nell of Old Drury" as Professor Moriarty in "Sherlock Holmes" with William Gillette, "Captain Kettle," "Oliver Twist," with Amelia Bingham in "A Modern Lady Godiva," "The Devil," "The Sins of Society," "The Witness for the Defense," and "Behind the Scenes."

MERCANTILE CO. TO SELL BRITISH SHIPS

uncertainties with relation to the transaction have to do with the manner in which the British business of the company is to be wound up. It has hitherto controlled its fleet under the British flag through five British subsidiary companies, of which it owns either all or a great majority of the capital stock. These are the International Navigation Company, Limited; the Oceanic Steam Navigation Company, Limited; the British and North Atlantic Steam Navigation Company, Limited; the Atlantic Transport Company, Limited, and Frederick Leyland & Co., Limited. Of these companies the only stock in the hands of the public consists of £50, or $250, of the stock of the British and North Atlantic Steam Navigation Company, and £842,690, or about $4,213,450, of the stock of Frederick Leyland & Co., most of the latter preference stock, the International Mercantile Marine owning more than nine-tenths of the common stock.

Big Profits in 1915 and 1916.

All these companies made immense profits during 1915 and 1916, up to the time that the British Government requisitioned their entire fleets, paying them the standard "Blue Book" rates, together with fees for the operation and management of their own steamers for Government account, calculated on the basis of 5 per cent. of the gross freight list with freight rates as of January, 1916. Under this arrangement the companies' profits have been somewhat curtailed, but have continued to be very handsome, particularly judging by prewar standards of returns in the shipping industry.

The complication arises from the fact that, owing to the British Government's war restrictions on the export of capital, the International Mercantile Marine has been compelled to let its British subsidiaries' profits, to a very large extent, pile up in their treasuries. The exact amount of these undivided profits, in the case of the subsidiary concerns, has never been made public, but it is known to be very large—sufficient, it is supposed, to pay off all their funded indebtedness, amounting to some $13,250,000, and permit them to liquidate on a very handsome basis for the parent company, entirely aside from the sum to be realized from the present transaction.

Sale of Organizations Possible.

It is not certain, however, that the transaction contemplates the complete liquidation of the British subsidiary companies, at least until the end of the war, because the British Government has need of their organizations for the operation and management of the ships, which they are running for its account, as already stated. It is possible that the negotiations may include the sale of the entire organizations, as going concerns, with the ships.

Assuming, however, that the International Mercantile Marine Company will receive at least $125,000,000 in cash, no matter how much more it receives from the undivided profits of the British companies, this sum would be amply sufficient to wipe out its entire present funded indebtedness, pay off all the accrued dividends on its preferred stock, and even permit the liquidation of the company, if, as is rumored, it is desired to wind up its affairs and form an entirely new, strictly American company to operate the American ships of the fleet and such tonnage as is apportioned to it by the Shipping Board.

The company now has outstanding $39,061,000 of first mortgage and collateral trust 6 per cent. bonds, dated Oct. 1, 1916, and redeemable at 110 and interest, on any interest date, on four weeks' notice. The next interest date will be Oct. 1 next. To retire these, therefore, will require $44,138,030 in cash. Next comes $51,725,500 of 6 per cent. cumulative preferred stock, which is preferred over the common both as to assets and dividends, and has equal voting power with the common, and this preferred stock now has 67 per cent. of unpaid back dividends accumulated upon it. To pay off the back dividends on the preferred stock would thus require $34,656,085, and to retire the preferred stock at par a total of $86,381,585.

American Ships Valued at $11,562,000.

This total of $130,520,515 would thus leave the common stock in possession only of the American ships, and the various properties, pier leases, &c., assuming that the undivided profits of the British subsidiary companies suffice only to make up the difference between this sum and the $125,000,000 reported purchase price of the ships. On the same basis as the British ships, the American ships might be calculated as worth about $11,562,500, although they would probably bring considerably more if they could be put on the market today for immediate delivery.

With reference to the possible liquidation of the company, however, the preferred stock is not only preferred over the common both as to assets and dividends, but it has equal voting power with the common, and there is more of it outstanding, $51,725,500 as against $49,872,400 of the common stock.

The present International Mercantile Marine Company was formed in 1902. In October, 1914, it defaulted the interest on its 4½ per cent. bonds at that time outstanding, and on April 3, 1915, following application by the New York Trust Company, trustee of this bond issue, obtained the appointment of President Franklin as receiver. A reorganization plan was worked out by Aug. 1, 1916, the company's earnings in the meantime having increased so enormously as to permit its affairs to be disentangled, and in October the receivership was ended. Since then the company has been gradually reducing the amount of unpaid back dividends on the preferred stock, which then stood at 88 per cent., until they now amount to 67 per cent.

The dealings in both the stock and the bonds of the company on the New York Stock Exchange clearly reflected yesterday the belief in the financial district that the transaction, on terms highly favorable to the company, was to be successfully put through. The dealings in the 6 per cent. bonds were especially interesting. More than a million dollars of this issue changed hands during the session, opening at 94 and selling up to 97¾. The preferred stock sold up even more rapidly, going from 94 and a fraction to a high level for the day of 102, while the common stock advanced 2¾ points to a high of 20¾.

C. J. POST REPLIES TO POSTAL OFFICIAL

Director of Publishers' Advisory Board Issues a Statement on Zone System.

CALLS THE PLAN DISLOYAL

Shows American Periodicals Will Pay Under New Law Much More Than Canadian.

Charles Johnson Post, Director of the Publishers' Advisory Board, 200 Fifth Avenue, gave out the following statement today in regard to the postal "zone" law and the special discrimination against American magazines and in favor of Canadian periodicals in their circulation throughout the major portion of the United States.

"The dispatch from Washington published in this morning's papers," Mr. Post said, "states that a high official in the Post Office Department stated that any attempt on the part of American publications to seek as low postage rates as are given by the American Post Office to Canadian magazines could be, and be intimated would be, promptly blocked by the action of the Post Office Department and Congress in rearranging the postal treaty with Canada, thereby, of course, preserving the discrimination of higher postage for American readers of American magazines than is charged on Canadian publications.

"The interview sneered at the committee of the Publishers' Advisory Board now investigating the Canadian publishing and postal laws as affecting American publishers.

"But there are two points that were seriously overlooked by this high Post Office official interview. First, that postal treaties are not easily negotiated unless there are exact reciprocal compensations in postal opportunities and postage rates between the two countries involved; and second, that it is absurd to think that Canada would deny magazines to Canadians by adopting huge postage increases in order to assist the American postal department and our Congress in restricting and destroying the circulation of American magazines. The Parliament of Canada will not penalize Canadian readers to cover the errors of American legislation.

"Canada's attitude on postal matters—international or otherwise—is proven by the fact that she deliberately and carefully exempted newspapers and periodicals from higher rates of postage during the war—and as a war measure. This was done in order to preserve for Canada the widest spread and most accessible means of stimulating patriotism and education in patriotic self-sacrifice during the war. Through some mysterious mental processes our American Congress, during the greatest war crisis that this nation has ever faced, has raised the postage rates on American periodicals by increases of from 50 to 900 per cent., making reading matter as difficult and expensive as possible to American citizens and American homes. It has done this by reviving a postal 'zone' system that was abolished by Abraham Lincoln in 1863 after careful investigation and that has since then also been condemned by United States postal commissions and postal experts.

"There is a curious anachronism in the fact that two years before the American Revolution, in 1774, the British authorities, desiring to suppress the spread of liberty-loving ideals, raised the postage rates in order to restrict and discourage the newspapers and periodicals of that day. Now, 143 years later, during a war in which one of the greatest problems that faces this nation is, as Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo put it, at the beginning of the war, how to reach and stir the minds of our 100,000,000 population so that it shall act in unity, our Congress has revived a discredited postal 'zone' system in order to impose terrific postage rates on the circulation of magazines and periodicals throughout the nation.

"The Post Office official quoted in the news dispatches does not attempt to deny in any way the fact that a magazine printed, for example, in New York, Philadelphia, or Boston—the great publishing cities of the country—will cost from 5 to 10 cents per pound postage to a reader living west of the Mississippi, and that the same magazine, identical in quality of paper, in number of pages of reading matter, advertising, illustrations, and lithography, if published in Canada, will be transported by the American Post Office, handled by United States postal employes, and delivered to that same reader at a cost of only 4 cents per pound!

"There are important business publications that under this postal 'zone' law passed by an American Congress will have to pay 40c. postage on each copy in those very States and zones that a Canadian publication of similar weight and character would be delivered for 16c. per copy. And Canada postal charges on periodicals are but one-quarter of the postal charges of the United States Post Office for the same service.

"There is another important fact—not denied by this Post Office interview—that further shows the discrimination, accidental or otherwise, it is a fact just the same. And that is that the same American magazine may be sent to a Canadian subscriber in Vancouver, British Columbia, Manitoba, or to a Hudson's Bay trading post in the arctic circle at 4 cents postage per pound, while Americans must pay 8 and 9 cents postage per pound for the same publication.

"This discredited postal 'zone' system, enacted into a hastily conceived and clumsily devised law, gives privileges of low postage to Canadian readers that are denied to American readers, and gives American readers a low postage on Canadian periodicals and a tremendously higher postage on American periodicals published in the United States. The advantage is all to Canada and Canadian subscribers and readers, and it is absurd to think that the Canadian Parliament would join hands with either the United States Post Office or our Congress to throw away this special advantage to their country and their homes and citizens.

"The committee of the Publishers' Advisory Board is to investigate and consider the absolute cold facts of this 'anomalous Canadian postal situation,' and the situation is exactly as I have just described it—a most marvelous piece of legislative blundering in what is nothing more than a persecution of periodicals."

ROCKEFELLER LAUDS CAMPS

"Uncle Sam Is a Mighty Good Daddy," He Declares.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., returned yesterday from a tour of inspection for the Y. M. C. A. enthusiastic over the life of the drafted men in the army training camps near Washington and the navy camps at Newport News. He said that he had found only one dissatisfied man, and that was a new soldier who had not become accustomed to camp life.

"Uncle Sam is a mighty good daddy, and he's taking good care of his boys," added Mr. Rockefeller. "In one camp I met an interior decorator who did some work in my house. I asked him how he liked the life. 'I'm having the time of my life,' he replied. 'Here I have few hours of work, many of play and healthy exercise, and Uncle Sam does my worrying for me and feeds me and clothes me well all the time.'"

As a member of the National War Work Council, Mr. Rockefeller visited thirty camps, naval bases, and training camps. In speaking of these, he said: "One cannot visit those camps and inspect our war activities without being tremendously impressed with the immensity of the work we have undertaken. It taxes a man's comprehension to grasp the bigness of the work we are doing. And to note the rapid progress we are making is indeed very satisfying."

GEN. BELL RELIEVED.

Commander of Seventy-seventh Will Not Accompany Division to France.

Word was received from Washington last night that Major Gen. J. Franklin Bell, U. S. A., who has been in command at Camp Upton since that cantonment was established, has been relieved of the command of the 77th Division of the national army. General Bell returned from an inspection of the allied front in France several weeks ago and was examined by the Army Examining Board in Washington. The same board also examined Major Gen. Wood, who returned from Europe on the same ship. The War Department announced that General Wood had been certified as physically fit to command troops in Europe. The report in the case of General Bell was not made public.

It was said at division headquarters at Camp Upton last night that General Bell had not been notified, up to that time, that he had been relieved of the division command. The fact that he had, however, was announced in army orders made public in Washington last night. His successor will be the battle commander of the 77th Division.

General Bell is one of the few officers of the army who wear the Congressional Medal of Honor. He is a former Chief of the General Staff, and also a former Commander in Chief of the Philippine forces. He is sixty-two years of age, and will reach the retiring age in 1920.

NEW DIVISION FOR UPTON.

Arrival of 15,000 Men for Next Week Announced.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMP UPTON, May 17.—While the exact date of the arrival is not generally known, it is assured that Camp Upton will receive 15,000 new draft men within the next week. This will bring the total of new men in camp well above the 30,000 mark, the equivalent of a division.

Some of these men will come from New York City. The majority, however, will come from Massachusetts and Connecticut.

20 YEARS FOR DESERTION.

Camp Dix Private Sentenced to Hard Labor by Court-Martial.

CAMP DIX, WRIGHTSTOWN, N. J., May 17.—Twenty years at hard labor in Fort Jay, N. Y., and a dishonorable discharge from the army was the punishment meted out to Private Frederick F. Lipphard by a court-martial today. Lipphard, who lived at Camden, was a member of Battery F, 307th Field Artillery. He remained away from camp for four months and then returned voluntarily. He was placed under arrest and his court-martial ordered.

Andrew Holland, a negro, of the 350th Field Artillery, who was found asleep on guard duty, was sentenced to five years at hard labor and ordered dishonorably discharged, but Major Gen. McRae, as reviewing officer, changed the sentence of the court to six months at hard labor and a fine. Holland will not be discharged.

Under amended orders of Major Gen. Scott, Camp Dix was closed to all visitors by foot, rail or auto at midnight tonight, and the ban will remain on until Monday evening at 6 o'clock. No passes or leaves of absence will be issued to officers or men during this period. Railroad ticket agents have been advised to sell no tickets to the camp as passengers will not be allowed to leave the trains. The order, which, it is announced, issued for military reasons, originally covered only the Sunday holiday.

MORRIS TO GO TO CAMP.

Chicago Packer, Who Sought Exemption, Will Start May 25.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., May 17.—Nelson Morris, Chairman of the Board of Morris & Co., packers, will entrain in Chicago on May 25 among the drafted men who go to Camp Grant on that date. Announcement was made at his office today that he would have gone in the contingent of May 20, but could not reach Chicago from New York in time.

Mr. Morris has been in the service of the United Staets Quartermaster's Department in New York, where he was assigned when he applied for a "$1 a year" job in Washington. He filed a plea for industrial exemption, stating he wanted to be placed in the branches of service where he would be of most use to the Government. District Appeal Board No. 1, in Chicago, placed him in Class 1.

GAVE ALL, THEN ENLISTED.

President Commends Action of Young Nebraska Farmer.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—Linn F. Hanson, a young Nebraska farmer, who decided his country needed him and therefore sold his property, bought Liberty bonds, gave to the Red Cross and joined the army, has received a commendatory letter from President Wilson.

Hanson had 240 acres near Wayne, Neb. Selling that and all his goods he contributed $5,800 to the Red Cross, bought $1,000 worth of Liberty bonds, and gave $1,000 to his church. He then joined the military service and now is a member of an infantry regiment stationed at Pensacola, Fla. During the recent Third Liberty Loan campaign he took $4,500 worth of bonds. President Wilson has written to Hanson as follows:

"Indirectly through a friend, I have learned of all the circumstances of your joining the military forces of the United States and I want to send you this brief line to express my admiration of the spirit which prompted your action and prompted your whole course in connection with leaving your farm and throwing in your fortunes entirely and unreservedly with the great country we all love and seek to serve."

TO REWARD ALL ELIGIBLES.

Baker Cancels Rule Limiting Commissions at New Camps.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—Secretary Baker has directed that the regulations governing the Fourth Officers' Training Schools be modified so as to remove the restriction allowing only 50 per cent. of the total number of men entering the training school to qualify as eligible for a commission. Under this new ruling all who successfully complete the course of training and attain a fixed standard of proficiency will be listed as eligible.

The final date for filing applications for the Fourth Officers' Training Schools was May 1. As exceptions to the general rules governing the selection of men are not being considered, it is useless for men to apply for admission at this late date.

PLAN WHITMAN'S CAMPAIGN.

Committee to Direct the Governor's Fight in the Primaries.

George A. Glynn, Chairman of the Republican State Committee, will not manage Governor Whitman's primary campaign for re-election, it became known yesterday after Mr. Glynn, who was in the city conferring with local Republican leaders, had returned to Albany. A committee will be organized to take charge of the Governor's fight. An up-State man probably will be Chairman. Before leaving the city Mr. Glynn declined to discuss the Whitman candidacy except to say:

"I am devoting all my time to the enrollment of the women. The work is already well organized and fully under way in the small districts up-State, where the women enroll by filing declarations between May 15 and June 15 without personal appearance before the election boards."

Chairman Glynn, it was said, expressed his satisfaction over the evidence of the Governor's strength in the city, and showed no alarm over the boom of Speaker Sweet for Governor which was launched in Oswego on Thursday. Neither did he take seriously the progress of the boom of Attorney General Merton E. Lewis for the Republican nomination.

COUPLE DIE TOGETHER; HUSBAND SHORT $10,000

Cashier of Great Northern Hotel and His Bride Found Dead by Surety Company Agent.

When a representative of a surety company called yesterday at the home of Frank Soukup, at 2,444 Washington Avenue, the Bronx, to question him about his absence from his work as cashier in the Great Northern Hotel in West Fifty-seventh Street and about an alleged shortage of about $10,000 in his accounts, he was unable to gain admittance to the apartment, although the Superintendent said he was sure that Soukup and his wife had not left their rooms. He became suspicious and notified the police of the Bronx Park Station, and then summoned inspectors from the gas company after neighbors said they had smelled gas for several hours.

Policemen who entered the apartment were almost stifled by the gas flowing from four open jets in the kitchen range before they could open the windows. The bodies of Soukup and his wife, whom he had married only six weeks ago, were found on a mattress on the kitchen floor. The police saw evidences of a deliberate suicide plan. The mattress had been dragged into the room and all the cracks of the windows and doors had been stuffed with cloth to prevent the escape of gas from the room. No note of explanation was found.

The surety company agent told the police that it had been alleged that shortages in Soukup's cash accounts extended over a long period and that the total defalcation would be about $10,000. At the hotel no information upon the allegations was given except that an audit of Soukup's cash accounts was in progress. Miss Nettie Soukup of 499 East 198th Street, the Bronx, said her brother's habits were abstemious and that she would not believe the charges.

She said that her brother was married on April 1 last and that he and his wife, Winnifred, had lived frugally. Employes at the hotel said that Soukup had not shown signs of worry or uneasiness and had left at the usual time on Thursday evening, notwithstanding reports that his books were to be audited.

I. W. W. PLOTTED REBELLION.

Article Suggesting Revolution Introduced at Chicago Trial.

CHICAGO, May 17.—The members of the Industrial Workers of the World were advised through the official organ, Solidarity, on July 15, 1917, that by a quick, concerted revolution the American Government could be overthrown and the workers rise up as leaders, according to evidence introduced at the trial of 112 members charged with violation of the Espionage act today.

"In Russia they did not wait for democracy to come to their rescue," said the article, written by Joseph Graber, an Eastern organizer. "They took matters into their own hands and with quick action overthrew the Government. The same thing can be done in America through the I. W. W."

Letters between Graber and William D. Haywood, who, the Government charges, directed the alleged anti-war campaign from Chicago headquarters, told of strike agitation in the big industrial districts of Pennsylvania, Maryland, and other Eastern States.

To James Phillips, Secretary of the Marine Transport Branch of the Industrial Workers of the World, was assigned the duty of tying up Atlantic and Gulf Coast shipping last Summer unless public opposition to members ceased, according to evidence presented.

Incensed over the lynching of Frank Little in Montana, Phillips called a mass meeting in Boston on Aug. 6 last and wired President Wilson, threatening to call a general strike in shipping yards "unless these things stopped." Phillips on July 18 advised the membership through Solidarity that officers on I. W. W. "controlled boats" were forced to treat the men with respect.

"Once on the I. W. W. blacklist they may as well quit the sea, as cats (sabotage) in these parts are awful wild," he wrote.

Phillips advised Haywood in August that the Government was taking Germans and Austrians off of vessels and that these places were being filled quickly by members of the organization, "thus giving us job control."

SOKOLOFF MAKES BOW HERE

Leads San Francisco Philharmonic in a Program of French Music.

Nikolai Sokoloff, a young Russian musician, who has conducted a popular Philharmonic orchestra in San Francisco against influential rivalry, and who got his professional training in part with the Boston Symphony under Gericke, made his bow to New York as leader of a special orchestra of ninety players in Carnegie Hall last evening, before an audience of great size for a serious concert at this time of year. From "The Star-Spangled Banner" at the start to Chabrier's dancing "Espana" at the close, Mr. Sokoloff put a lively spirit of youth and quickening energy into the performance that was good to hear and earned much applause.

French music, of which alone his program numbers consisted, recalled the fact that Mr. Sokoloff had spent last Winter in the war zone, where he gave concerts for the soldiers and assisted in organizing American aid for musicians in France. Last night, with few rehearsals, he gave in broad outline Cesar Franck's noble symphony, a familiar monument of Belgian and French art, and after it, in memory of the late Claude Debussy, two favorite nocturnes, "Clouds" and "Festivals," and the famous "Afternoon of a Faun." The "Faun" was particularly well played by conductor and men.

Mr. Sokoloff was not wholly a stranger, for he had appeared as soloist here in former years, and his wife, who was in the audience, is the daughter of Rear Admiral Marix and Mrs. Marix, formerly Grace Filkins, the actress, an admired artist on the New York stage.

French Military Band Arrives.

Sixty members of the famous Republican Guard Band arrived yesterday from France, to make a tour of the cantonments and principal cities of the country at the request of Andre Tardieu, the chief of the French Commission at Washington. The musicians have all seen service at the front, and the majority of them wear chevrons for wounds received in battle, and also medals for distinguished services in the field. As the steamship was being made fast the band on deck played "The Star Spangled Banner" and "The Marseillaise." The band went to the Waldorf-Astoria.

"Jack O'Lantern" will end its run at the Globe on June 1.

Lambs' Gambol Begins on June 14.

The performances will take place at the Hudson Theatre, beginning on the night of Friday, June 14, with a performance in aid of the Lambs Building Fund. Two performances a day will be given on the following Saturday and Sunday for the benefit of the Y. M. C. A. War Fund, the Actors' Fund, the Stage Women's War Relief, and the Red Cross.

Mrs. Metcalfe's Play for Red Cross.

"Starting Something," a play written by Elizabeth Tyree Metcalfe, (Mrs. James Metcalfe,) will be played at the French Theatre for five performances next week in aid of the Red Cross. The first performance will be given on Wednesday night, and the play will then be continued for the balance of the week. In the cast will be Mrs. Metcalfe and Ethel Hornick, who will return to the stage on this occasion; Mrs. Jacques Martin, Lucia Moore, Donald Ross, and others.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Jeanne Eagels has begun rehearsals under the direction of David Belasco in a comedy called "Daddies." The piece will be produced in Washington on June 10.

The cast of "Pack Up Your Troubles," in which Sergeant Arthur Guy Empey and Rose Stahl are to appear, includes Frasier Coulter, Florence Martin, John P. Wade, Minnette Barrett, Harold Vosburgh, Clay Carroll, Nathaniel Sack, Emily Filzrey, and Martha McGraw. Rehearsals are now under way.

De Haven and Nice, dancers, have been engaged for "Sometime," a musical comedy which will be offered at the Casino this Summer by Arthur Hammerstein.

"Woman's Honor," a new comedy by Susan Glaspell, will be given its first performance Monday night at the Greenwich Village Theatre. It will replace "The Big Scene" on the current program.

Christie MacDonald will make her first appearance in vaudeville next week at the Riverside Theatre. She will be seen in a talkoid musical comedy.

The Century Theatre gallery for the opening performance of the Pelham naval show, "Biff! Bang!" which will take place on the afternoon of May 30, has been purchased by Mrs. E. W. Breitung.

NEW TUBERCULOSIS SERUM.

Prof. Lo Monaco Uses Sugar Successfully in Treating Soldiers.

PARIS, May 17.—Professor Domenico Lo Monaco, director of the biochemical section of the Lincei Academy at Rome, is credited by the Italian scientific press with a discovery which will revolutionize the treatment of tuberculosis.

Professor Lo Monaco, explaining his discovery, said he had observed that sugar had a remarkable effect on the secretions of the human organism. After seven years of study of these phenomena he became convinced that the secretions of saliva, bile and the gastric and pancreatic juices were modified profoundly by the introduction of sugar. This gave him the idea of applying this method to the bronchial secretions of consumptives. The first experiments made by this method on consumptive soldiers from the front gave results far exceeding his expectation, he reports. There was rapid improvement in most cases, and he obtained cures which appeared to be radical.

Professor Lo Monaco explained that the bronchial secretion is an indispensable medium for the existence of the tubercle bacilli, and that after an injection of saccherose the secretion diminishes and finally disappears, the bacilli disappearing with it.

CREEL APOLOGIZES FOR CONGRESS SLUR

Writes Pou Expressing Regret for "Indiscretion" in His New York Talk.

INQUIRY MAY BE DROPPED

Washington Believes House Rules Committee Won't Press the Resolution of Rebuke.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—By apologizing for [illegible] "indiscretion," as he characterizes it, reflecting upon Congress, George Creel, Chairman of the Committee on Public Information, has halted an inquiry into the matter proposed in a resolution offered by Representative A. T. Treadway of Massachusetts. While the Rules Committee of the House was considering today what action to take on the resolution, Representative Pou, Chairman of the committee, informed his colleagues that Mr. Creel had notified him that he was sending a letter explaining the speech made in a New York church last Sunday, which led to the introduction of the resolution.

In their discussion members of the committee, without knowing the contents of Mr. Creel's letter, which was not received until after the committee adjourned, severely arraigned the head of the Committee on Public Information. Until informed that Mr. Creel was sending a letter expressing regret the committee was disposed to act favorably on the resolution rebuking Mr. Creel. Action, however, was deferred, and it is now believed that the matter will be dropped with the retraction and explanation made by Mr. Creel.

Mr. Creel's letter, addressed to Representative Pou, reads:

My Dear Mr. Pou: While the Rules Committee has not yet indicated any course of action with respect to the resolution of Mr. Treadway, I cannot permit myself to remain under the imputation of having passed public and humiliating criticism upon the Congress of the United States.

My estimation of your honorable body is expressed in a pamphlet issued by the Committee on Public Information in October, 1917, under the title "First Session of the War Congress." Its remarkable did the record of achievement appear to me that I had it summarized for general distribution, and in the signed preface I tried to bear testimony to the courage and patriotism of the men behind the records.

Even were it not the case that I am so committed by the frank and uncompelled expression of an honest conviction, I beg you to believe that I am not so best to the proprieties as to indulge in attack upon the legislative branch while I am myself in the service of the Government.

At a time like this I would take shame to myself if I attempted to weaken in any degree the public confidence in any public body, much less the great legislative body of our nation.

At the Church of the Ascension I had spoken for an hour and for more than an hour answered questions bearing upon every phase of public misunderstanding. The question under discussion seemed so utterly silly, and its silliness was so well understood by the audience, that I made a quick and thoughtless answer that left itself open to exaggeration and distortion.

I admit the indiscretion and regret it deeply.

I have given my thoughts so wholly to the service of this war that I have, perhaps, been careless in the matter of guarding every word of my utterances against the possibility of misconstruction. But I have the feeling that sincere men see down to the heart of intent and will appreciate my desire at all times to avoid anything that might create the dissension and confusion so dangerous to our necessary unity.

Please let me take this opportunity to assure you of my willingness at all times to co-ordinate the work of this committee with the wish and thought of Congress. What we have done and are doing is always open to the inspection of the individual members or committee, and I cannot but feel that our task here would be wisely strengthened by more intimate contact and co-operation.

Believe me, sir, with assurances of deep consideration,

Very respectfully,

GEORGE CREEL.

Sharp Criticism of Creel.

Before members of the committee had been informed of the letter Mr. Creel was sharply criticised, even by Democratic members. Representative Pou, endeavoring to placate his colleagues, said that he had talked with Mr. Creel over the telephone and that the latter had expressed regret for his hasty and rash remarks. He also told the committee that Mr. Creel admitted having used the phrase quoted by the New York newspapers and was writing a letter of apology.

Despite the statement of Chairman Pou, several members denounced the attitude of the Chairman of the Committee on Public Information in this and other instances. Representative Treadway, author of the resolution, read some of Mr. Creel's signed editorials, showing his frame of mind toward Congress and other Governmental functions. He called attention to the stationery used by the Committee on Public Information, which says that the information issued is unbiased, unprejudiced information that can be depended upon by the public. He quoted precedents for the House passing a resolution calling upon the President to remove Mr. Creel.

Discussing the latter's New York speech, he said that the questions presented at the gathering were written before they were answered by the speaker in order that the speaker need not be compelled to make a hasty reply.

Excerpts from editorials written by Mr. Creel for a Denver newspaper, in which alleged disrespectful references were made to Congress and to the Constitution, were also produced by Mr. Treadway. He suggested that a leopard could not change his spots so quickly, and exclaimed:

"Mr. Creel is against the Constitution, against Congress, and against the judiciary! What in heaven's name does he respect?"

Representative S. D. Fess of Ohio said that he doubted whether Mr. Creel would have been appointed if President Wilson had known his views on government in advance of his selection.

Representative William A. Rodenberg of Illinois expressed surprise that President Wilson had not summarily dismissed Mr. Creel after the New York speech.

"I do not believe that any one except Mr. Creel has any doubt that his usefulness in an official capacity is at an end," said Representative Campbell, Republican of Kansas, in the course of criticism of the Chairman of the Committee on Public Information, in which he reviewed his several attacks upon Congress and other alleged errors of judgment.

"Mr. Creel does not dislike Congress any more than Congress dislikes him," asserted Representative Garrett, Democrat of Tennessee.

While the committee adjourned without learning the tenor of Mr. Creel's letter, it is known that his apology will entirely satisfy the committee and members of the House, and that nothing will be done in the way of an investigation.

ST. LOUIS WAR LA[illegible]OARD

Committee Named to Repres[illegible]tional Organization in That City.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—The National War Labor Board has selected its first permanent Local Committee of Mediation and Conciliation, composed of representatives of the workers and employers of St. Louis. It will endeavor by counsel and conciliation to intercept controversies threatening to arise in any of the industries of St. Louis and to bring both sides together under the auspices of the Federal Government in an effort to find a basis of agreement.

The St. Louis permanent local committee is composed of M. J. Cassidy, J. E. Woracek, and David Kreyling, representing the workers, and E. B. Pryor, J. S. Bemis, and M. E. Singleton, representing the employers. The workers' representatives were nominated by the Central Labor Union of St. Louis. The employers' representatives were recommended by the Chamber of Commerce and the Manufacturers' Association of St. Louis.

Similar committees will be established in the industrial centres in the country. They will be authorized to obtain information from every possible source and to act either upon the solicitation of one or the other side to any controversy, or upon their own initiative to call both sides to their counsel room for discussion of the points of difference.

When the local committee finds it impossible to effect an agreement, the fact is to be reported to the War Labor Board, whereupon jurisdiction will pass to a section of the board composed of two of its members, which will conduct hearings and adjust the case or, failing to do so, summarize the facts and present them to the board together with its recommendations.

Following the formation of the committee, Frank P. Walsh, who holds the Chairmanship of the board jointly with ex-President William H. Taft, issued the following statement:

"The Local Committees of Mediation and Conciliation of the National War Labor Board will constitute the forums of industrial peace in the United States. On these committees capital and labor will work hand in hand with a single aim—to win the war. They know only one necessity, the maintenance of maximum production, and they know one common law—the principles established by the board as the basis for the Government's mediation and conciliating action. These principles secure to the employer maximum production and guarantees to the worker his right to organization, healthy growth of the principles of democracy as applied to industry and the highest protection of his economic welfare."

WASHINGTON MAIL MISSES AIR POST

Lieut. Webb's Airplane Reaches Belmont Park with Only Philadelphia Letters.

DELAY AT CAPE CHARLES

With Gasoline Exhausted, Pilot Had to Land on Grounds of Philadelphia Country Club.

A mail airplane, piloted by Lieutenant Torrey H. Webb, U. S. A., arrived at Belmont Park from Philadelphia at 3:45 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The machine was on time, but it did not have any Washington mail aboard, due to the fact that the machine which left the capital with mail at 11 o'clock yesterday morning came to grief while flying over Maryland and did not reach Philadelphia until 7:25 o'clock last night. When it was seen that the airplane from Washington would fail to make connection, Lieutenant Webb received instructions to proceed to New York with four and a half pounds of Philadelphia mail, which he did. Lieutenant Stephen Bonsal, Jr., who was forced to land at Bridgeton, N. J., while piloting the mail machine from New York to Philadelphia on Thursday, came to New York as a passenger in Lieutenant Webb's machine.

It was the second time in the three days since the inauguration of the air mail service that the Washington mail has failed to reach New York on time. Last Thursday the airplane which left Washington with the first mail packets for Philadelphia and New York came to grief twenty-five miles out of Washington. The machine was piloted by Lieutenant George H. Boyle who, it was stated, lost his way and landed in order to get his bearings. In landing one of the propeller blades of his machine was broken and the flight was not resumed. Lieutenant Boyle was the pilot of the machine which arrived at Philadelphia just before dark yesterday. A report received in New York last night said that Lieutenant Boyle had been compelled to land at Cape Charles, Va., where he was detained several hours while necessary repairs to his machine were made. He resumed his flight about an hour after the arrival of Lieutenant Webb at Belmont Park.

Lieutenant Webb, who piloted the Philadelphia mail to New York, left Belmont Park early yesterday morning for Philadelphia to meet Lieutenant Boyle. He did not carry any mail. The regular southbound airplane carrying mail left Belmont Park at 11:24 A. M., six minutes ahead of schedule, in charge of Lieutenant Paul Culver, and arrived in Philadelphia on time. Lieutenant Culver transferred his mail to the Washington-bound plane, which left soon afterward and arrived in Washington on schedule time. Lieutenant Culver carried two boxes of mail, one for Philadelphia and the other for Washington. The boxes left the Pennsylvania Station Post Office for Belmont Park at 10:46 A. M. and arrived at the park half an hour later.

Postal officials said yesterday that, while the delays that have marred the operation of the aerial service in the last few days are to be greatly regretted, they were expected. A high official of the service said there was no reason for discouragement and that in a few days delays either way will be very few. At present, this official said, the aviators are using road maps to guide them and these are proving unsatisfactory.

"It won't be long," he added, "before the aviators become familiar with their routes, and after that the service will improve right along."

It was reported yesterday that six new machines, all of the latest type, are shortly to be added to the mail service. These machines, it was said, will be equipped with Liberty motors capable of developing 400 horse power and will travel at a speed of more than 100 miles an hour.

PHILADELPHIA, May 17.—Lieutenant Boyle, who left Washington at 11 A. M. today with the airplane mail from Philadelphia and New York, reached Philadelphia at 7:25 o'clock tonight. He was obliged to land on the grounds of the Philadelphia Country Club on the western edge of the city because his gasoline had become exhausted.

This point is several miles from Bustleton, the regular landing place for the air mail aviators. The mail was taken to the Central Post Office, and that for New York was forwarded by train.

In making his landing here Lieutenant Doyle broke one of the planes of his machine and narrowly escaped a more serious accident. Many persons were on the field, and in dodging them he struck a fence. The Lieutenant lost his way several times during the flight from Washington.

WOOL GIVEN BY WILSONS.

Clip from White House Flock to be Auctioned for Red Cross.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—President and Mrs. Wilson announced before leaving for New York today that they wished to add to the Second Red Cross War Fund by having sold at auction throughout the United States the wool which was recently clipped from the flock of sheep which had been feeding on the White House lawn.

The sheep, which were first pastured on the lawn about three weeks ago, were sheared this week, the clipping netting approximately ninety pounds of wool. The President and Mrs. Wilson expressed the wish to the officials of the American Red Cross that this wool be divided into packages of about two pounds each, a package to be sent to each State for auction, the proceeds to go into the second war fund. This wish will be complied with, and it is probable that the Governors of the States will be asked to act as auctioneers.

Owing to the shortness of time, it will be necessary to receive bids by wire.

GOVERNMENT ORDER TO CURTAIL USE OF LEATHER

Manufacturers Are Told That Supply Will Be Conserved to Make Shoes for Soldiers.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 17.—The Government is preparing to substantially curtail the use of leather in industries in order to suitably equip the United States soldiers and their allied comrades with shoes, leggings, and harness. This information was brought first-handed this afternoon to the National Association of Tanners, in annual convention here, by Fred A. Vogel, one of the heads of the Shoe and Leather Equipment Department for the army.

He said there was a big shortage and that the Government was about to issue an order demanding that no leather be used in the future except where it was absolutely necessary. The output of pleasure automobiles will be cut down as one result, he said.

"We shall require 4,000,000 feet of hides for shoe leather in both September and October," he asserted. "And there is not that much in sight today."

Mr. Vogel also told the tanners that a heavier shoe than was now supplied to our armies is to be manufactured. It will have four soles and the uppers will be of either re-tan or tan-bark leather, which produces a closer, weather-proof fibre.

The speaker declared that one of the biggest problems faced by the army with reference to footwear was that of training the men to be less wasteful with their shoes. The average American soldier seldom has more than one new sole put on his shoes before discarding them, and officers are having great difficulty in impressing them with economy.

FREE MILK WORKERS MARCH

Seven Floats, Illustrating France's Need, in the Procession.

The workers for Free Milk for France paraded down Fifth Avenue from Fifty-ninth Street to Twenty-second Street yesterday afternoon. There were seven floats, illustrating the purposes of the fund. Borden Harriman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Harriman, was a poilu; Poilie and Elsie Phelps, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Stowe Phelps, were Brittany peasants.

Among the young society girls who, dressed as milkmaids, pleaded for contributions were the Misses Mimi and Barbara Brokaw, Miss Marian Gould, Miss Wanden Mathews, Miss Ethel Norton, Miss Helen McGarrah, Miss Grace Hays, and Miss Alice Beadleston. The parade was led by the Catholic Protectory Band, and stopped frequently to receive contributions.

New Strength for Girls

Many young girls show plainly the results of the winter's war work, school work, or social activities. Their weakness, lassitude, and dull-eyed indifference to everything that requires effort, are Nature's warnings that nervous force is exhausted and vigor is at low ebb. The logical way to tone up the whole system is to reconstruct the blood from its very foundations.

Gude's Pepto-Mangan

is especially valuable for this purpose. It helps to create new, sturdy red blood cells, which carry health, vigor, and vitality—in the form of life-giving oxygen—to all parts of the body and brain.

Study this picture so you will know how genuine Pepto-Mangan looks.

Gude's Pepto-Mangan is a splendid general tonic and appetizer for the weak and run-down of all ages and conditions. Easy to digest, promptly assimilated by the blood, and exceedingly pleasant to taste. The medical profession universally prescribes Gude's Pepto-Mangan.

FRIENDLY WARNING—There are many imitations of Pepto-Mangan on the market, but you can be sure of getting the genuine if it bears the name "Gude" and is put up in the bottle and sealed package as pictured here. Ask for it by its full name—"Gude's Pepto-Mangan." For sale at all drug stores.

Why America's Army Will Decide the Battle in France

That America must furnish the reserves to win the final battle is a truth recognized not only in allied countries but in Germany also. "We must hurry to obtain a solid victory by arms before the full American forces arrive," admonishes one German paper while others seek to reassure their readers by decrying American efforts. Meanwhile, Secretary Baker's statement that we already have more than half a million soldiers in France makes it certain that we are more than replacing the British and French losses in the battle on the Western front.

You will derive immense satisfaction from reading the summary of the war which comprizes the leading article in THE LITERARY DIGEST this week (May 18th). It shows what is expected of the United States armies; how our soldiers are fighting, and how they have been decorated; what the Germans think of the American soldiers; how our shipbuilding is progressing, etc., etc.

National Crisis Brings Motor-Trucks to the Fore

The story of how the motor-truck is solving the problems of freight congestion, of increasing farm production and conservation of farm labor, of facilitating food markets, and of transporting passengers, is one of the most constructive and important narratives that could be written. Those who are interested in the great national questions will read with interest the latest developments of the national motor-truck era by Harry Wilkin Perry in this number of THE DIGEST.

THE LITERARY DIGEST appeals to, and is carefully read by, manufacturers, business executives, progressive retailers, everywhere throughout the nation, and this number will be of particular interest to them inasmuch as all varieties of commercial vehicles are pictured and described. Prospective buyers of motor-trucks are especially urged to buy THE DIGEST this week and read these interesting announcements.

SALVATIONIST TO COME FROM THE TRENCHES OF FLANDERS BRINGS A MESSAGE TO THE AMERICAN PEOPLE!

A New York Girl Addresses New Yorkers!

CAPT. (MISS) ETHEL RENTON
SALVATION ARMY.

"I speak for your soldiery in France, when I say—we need more equipment! We have 46 huts in operation, and we have requests from the military authorities over there for 400 more of them. It is a case of expand what is already established, and a proven boon to the armies of the Allies! If the men in the trenches were told today that the mighty city of New York hesitated for an instant to give to the Salvation Army the comparatively small sum it has asked in order to serve THEM, they simply would not believe it! Men and women of America—in the name of all you hold dear, awaken. Don't you know that money doesn't matter? Don't you know that nothing matters now but life and limb?

"I went to France with the first contingent of Salvationists which left here in August of last year. There is no phase of toil or danger that I have not since experienced. I am here merely to help in getting more workers and equipment, and I am going back to France as quickly as I can. This peace over here—this security and tranquillity, and evidences of this great Commonwealth still being unaware of the facts as they exist, are unbearable! The screaming of shells is music in that region of suffering and woe, compared with the peaceful turmoil and rackets of a great city! Knowing what I know—with all I have seen still vivid before my eyes, and realizing what great good I can do for my fellow man over there, I would not stay in this peace-ridden city an hour after I was permitted to start back, if I had to walk to France by way of the North Pole!

"The need for your help in this Salvation Army and other drives is so great that, with all you can do—with all the workers you can send, you can never—never—never meet the demand! Why are we over there?

First—General Pershing wants us!
Second—The military officers want us!
Third—The boys want us!
Fourth—The other organizations want us!

"There are never less than 1,500 troops billeted in one village or locality. At the very best, a hut can hold but 300 men. You know—or you soon will know—how many troops you have over there! Figure it out yourself. We can immediately furnish 400 huts and place 1,200 trained workers in the field, but we must have the money necessary to handle all this. The only thing that is holding us up is the want of money! The Salvation Army asked for $250,000 in New York! Thus far, there has been $215,343 collected, leaving the sum of $34,657 to gather within twelve hours! If you want to flash over a thought to France that you are giving this war absent-treatment, and, while wishing it well, won't go the limit for it, neglect to reach this poor quota of $250,000! Any soldier or sailor will tell you that!

"All chaplains of all denominations use our huts—all of them, and they are welcome! There we have Yom Kippur exercises when the Jewish day comes, and the Catholics are served in the same way whenever occasion arises! What is New York hesitating about? Money? If you want to forget that you were ever enslaved to money, and its power, come over where men are bleeding and dying, and where nothing matters but the CARE of them!"

(Signed) CAPT. ETHEL RENTON, Salvation Army.

THE WAR WORK OF THE SALVATION ARMY IS NOT ONE OF SENTIMENT!

It Is Practical and Rooted in Common Sense!

WHEN your boy at the front gets homesick or lonesome, he requires ATTENTION---deserves relief, as certainly as if he had broken his leg!

WHEN your soldier or sailor craves a bit of home atmosphere---yearns for home cooking, some music, a chat with a cheerful, trustworthy friend, wants a magazine or newspaper, or has writing to do and mending to look after---that's when the "Little Marthas of the Battlefield," as Paul Jarvis calls the Salvation Army women, step up to REPRESENT YOU!

WHAT has the Salvation Army to do in a War situation? Why does it take on extra responsibilities, busy as it is in times of peace?

WE HAVE answered the same irresistible call that came to us in the Boer War and resulted in---"Huts!"

We have over 40,000 of our members in the trenches, fighting for the Allies!

We have not (and shall not) slacked up with our work among the poor of all nations!

We have furnished 46 ambulances to the Red Cross, which have conveyed over 100,000 wounded from the front.

We have 800 war relief workers (mostly women) with the troops.

FIRST TO AID AND LAST TO APPEAL, TOILING WITHOUT WEALTHY INFLUENCES BEHIND US, WE HAVE ASKED OF GREATER NEW YORK $250,000. NOT FOR ANYTHING BUT WAR WORK WITH THE AMERICAN FIGHTERS! EVERY IMAGINABLE ENDORSEMENT, FROM PRESIDENT WILSON TO THE GREAT WELTERING LEGIONS OF YOUR DEFENDERS IN THE TRENCHES, HAS BEEN PLACED IN YOUR HANDS! WITH 12 HOURS LEFT TO US WE NEED, IN ORDER TO MAKE THIS DRIVE SUCCEED, SOME OF YOUR TIME—AND POSITIVELY SOME OF YOUR MONEY! SOME DAY YOU WILL WANT TO BE KNOWN AS AMONG THOSE WHO HELPED THIS DRIVE!

THIS SPACE IS DONATED BY A FRIEND, WHO KNOWS THE WORTH OF THE SALVATION ARMY AND DESIRES TO HELP THIS DRIVE WIN!

YANKEES CLUSTER HITS AND RUNS IN SUFFICIENT QUANTITIES TO BEAT BROWNS

YANKS ONCE MORE GATHER IN BROWNS

Collect Four Runs Off Sothoron, with Whose Retirement Their Scoring Ends.

RUSSELL IS IN FINE FORM

Holds St. Louis Hitless for Five Innings, but Then Errors by His Mates Let in Two Runs.

Since the anti-loafing law went into effect the Yanks have been very careful not to leave themselves open to any kind of suspicion and put in another busy afternoon at the Polo Grounds yesterday, rubbing it into the Browns by a score of 4 to 2. About the only one on the ball lot who was supposed to be working and yet seemed to be liable under the new law was Umpire Dick Nallin, who officiated on the bases. There wasn't a single protest about anything that Nallin did because he had little or nothing to do.

The Yanks made all their runs off Sothoron, grouping two tallies in each of the second and fifth innings. After all the damage had been done Manager Fielder Jones introduced several more boxmen. Rogers was exposed to view for only one inning, and during that time Wallie Pipp poled a three-bagger to left centre, when Earl Smith, who was cavorting in that neighborhood, got the flight of the ball confused with the sun, which sets in that vicinity of the city about that time every evening.

Big Dave Davenport did the flinging in the last two innings. Davenport, like Grover Lawdermilk of the same club, is built with the accent on one dimension—height. As he stood in the pitcher's box his shadow extended almost over to the left field fence. Allen Russell, in the seventh inning, rolled a wee bit of a grounder at Davenport's legs, but Dave is so tall that by the time he stooped over to get the ball it had slipped through his shoes out to centre field. If Davenport had been a few feet shorter Russell would never have been credited with a hit.

Russell's Rule Strict.

Russell did some pretty fine pitching for the Yanks, and for five innings the Browns did not get a semblance of a hit. In the sixth and seventh, tardy hits, coupled with a few defects in the Yankee defense, gave the Browns their only runs. At no time during the proceedings was Russell in danger, for he pulled himself together every time the St. Louis crowd showed signs of ambition.

The crowd was always on edge waiting for George Sisler, the St. Louis phenom, to do something, but his path to glory seemed to be forever blocked. In the eighth Sisler smashed the ball into deep right field, and it looked as if it were going to sail over Gilhooley's head, but Gilhooley is picketing that domain with unusual brilliancy these days and he rushed back toward the stockade and pulled the ball down, just as the populace was getting ready to give Sisler a great reception.

The crowd got its chance to give the youth his just deserts in the eighth when Marsans came to the bat. The Cuban shot a grounder down to Jimmy Austin and when Jimmy threw the ball over to first he must have imagined that Davenport or Lawdermilk was playing that position. The ball was high in the air and was headed for the field boxes. Sisler leaped into the air several feet and came down with the ball.

The Yanks got after Sothoron in the second. Pratt died at first and Pipp singled to left. Ping Bodie stopped one of Sothoron's shoots with his left arm and his painful experience was rewarded with a trip to first. Marsans hammered a single to right, scoring Pipp, while Bodie went to third. Hannah lifted a sacrifice fly to Demmitt in right and Bodie scored.

Yanks Attack Sothoron.

The Yanks renewed familiarity with Sothoron in the fifth. With one gone Hannah singled to right. Russell rolled an easy bouncer to the pitcher, but Sothoron made a bad toss to second to force Hannah and all hands were high and dry. Both runners advanced a station while Austin was throwing Gilhooley out at first.

Peckinpaugh crashed a hot drive against Sothoron's glove, the ball bouncing away toward centre field. Joe Gedeon made a great grab of the ball, but Peck beat his throw to first. Hannah scored on the play and Russell went to third. Baker contributed his bit to the day's work with a hard smash to right, which pushed Russell home. Baker and Peck had visions of a double steal, but Peck was nipped at the plate.

The Browns didn't get a hit off Russell until the sixth. In that inning Johns, batting for Sothoron, lined to Baker and Tobin hoisted a pop fly to Peck. Austin laid down a bunt and Hannah made a wild throw to first. This error upset Russell and Sisler then got the Browns' first hit, a single to right which sent Austin to third. Joe Gedeon followed this with another single which scored Austin.

In the seventh, after Demmitt had flied to Gilhooley, Nunamaker was safe when Peck made a bad throw to Pipp. Gerber bounced a hit off Russell's glove and Nunamaker went to third. Tim Hendryx lifted a sacrifice fly to Marsans, which scored Nunamaker.

INDIANS GET EARLY START.

Tally Five Runs in First Three Innings, Beating Athletics, 5 to 4.

PHILADELPHIA, May 17.—Cleveland gained a five-run lead in the first three innings today, and Philadelphia's uphill fight fell one run short, the Indians winning 5 to 4.

Burns's home run and Kopp's triple were the features of the local scoring. In the sixth, with runners on first and third base and one out, Captain Oldring came to bat in place of Shea, upon which Manager Fohl replaced Coumbe and Enzmann. A close play at the plate cut off the tying run, and Enzmann held Philadelphia safe thereafter.

GIANTS ARE GRIST IN MATTY'S MILL

Reds Crush McGraw's Men for Third Time in Row, Winning by 5 to 1.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, May 17.—The ineffectiveness of Pol Perritt, coupled with the inability of his mates to connect with the offerings of Rube Bressler, cost the Giants today's game with the Reds by a score of 5 to 1. It was the Reds' third successive triumph over the New Yorkers and the eighth consecutive victory for Matty's men.

Bressler was a bit shaky at the start, and the Giants reached him for a run in the first inning, but the southpaw soon steadied down and allowed only four hits in all. Young worked him for a pass in the opening frame, and advanced to the middle station when Bressler tossed out Kauff. Burns rapped the ball to the short field, but the pellet struck Young on the leg, automatically retiring him. Zimmerman singled to centre, putting Burns on third, and George and Heinie then worked a double steal, George scoring.

The Reds knotted the count in their half of the same inning. Groh singled to left and Lee Magee singled to right, Roush's sacrifice advancing the runners. Rodriguez went over back of second base for Sherwood Magee's grounder and threw him out at first, but Groh scored on the play.

Perritt retired the Reds in regular order in the second inning, but he lost his grip in the third and was derricked. Bressler singled through the box and Groh singled to left, after which Lee Magee poled a looping single to short centre, filling the bases. That spelled the end for Perritt, but Fred Anderson, who relieved him, didn't have any more on the ball than did Pol. Roush hit to Holke, whose throw to Rariden forced Bressler at the plate, but Anderson couldn't get the ball over for Sherwood Magee, who walked, forcing in Groh.

Griffith then singled to right, scoring Lee Magee and Roush and putting Sherwood Magee on third. Then he cantered to second on Young's throw to the far corner. Neale dumped a bunt in front of the plate, which Rariden fielded, throwing the batter out, but in so doing he left the plate uncovered and Sherwood Magee scored.

Cecil Causey relieved Anderson in the fifth and prevented further scoring on the part of the Reds.

The Giants had few opportunities to score, once Bressler settled down to work, but failed utterly to take advantage of even the few they had. One of these opportunities occurred when, in the fifth inning, Thorpe, batting for Anderson, tripled. There was only one down, but Young fanned and Kauff grounded to Lee Magee.

VAUGHN BLANKS PHILLIES.

CHICAGO, May 17.—Chicago shut out Philadelphia 2 to 0 today in a pitching duel between Vaughn and Main. Bancroft's wild throw of Merkle's grounder, which allowed Flack to score from second base after a single and a steal, was enough for the locals to win in the seventh inning.

Kilduff's walk and singles by Killifer and Vaughn netted the other run. Vaughn allowed only four hits, which were well scattered.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., May 17.—Nehf was invincible today and Boston defeated St. Louis, 8 to 1. Horstman was wild, and the visitors batted Doak's offerings almost at will. Only thirty-one men faced Nehf.

He gave them four hits, two of which came in the ninth, when the locals scored their only run. He did not pass a man, and up to the ninth inning only two men reached first. The score:

ROBINS PUNISH BUCCANEERS

Larrup Offerings of Harmon and Steele and Win by 7 to 4.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., May 17—The Dodgers took today's game from the Pirates by a score of 7 to 4 because they were able to hit the offerings of Bob Harmon and Bob Steele at will while Larry Cheney was holding the Buccaneers in check. The Brooklyn twirler presented two runs to Pittsburgh by a wild throw to the plate in the fourth, but after his team had again gone into the lead he tightened up and fielded his position in fine style, breaking down some hot shots from the Pirate batsmen.

Pittsburgh was the first to score, when Carey bunted safe, with two men gone, stole second, and scored on Stengel's single to centre. Two more runs came in the fourth inning, when Carey got a hit and went to second as Stengel was nicked on the foot by a wild pitch. Cutshaw sent them along a base, and on King's tap to Cheney the latter threw the ball over the catcher's head and two runs were tallied.

Brooklyn soon settled Harmon, getting a run in the second inning on hits by Schmandt and Miller and Schmidt's error. Ollie O'Mara hit the ball a mighty wallop in the third inning and scored a home run. In the fifth inning Harmon was driven from the slab when Brooklyn got two runs on hits by Olson, Daubert, Myers, and Johnston, with a pass to Wheat interspersed. Steele then went to the mound, and in the seventh inning hits by Daubert, Wheat, and Johnston scored two more runs, while the last and seventh tally came in the ninth inning on O'Mara's hit, a sacrifice, and a passed ball.

The Buccaneers rallied a little in the ninth, when Manager Bezdek rang in several subs, and they managed to get another run on three hits by Hinchman, Mollwitz, and Carey, but three men were left stranded when Casey Stengel hit to Schmandt and was thrown out.

Former Cardinal Will Substitute at Second for Doyle.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, May 17.—It was announced tonight that the Giants had purchased Bert Niehoff from the Cardinals. Niehoff, who has been ordered to report to John McGraw here tomorrow, will fill Doyle's place at second base until Larry recovers from the operation he underwent in New York on Wednesday. The new Giant was traded by the Phillies to St. Louis last Winter for Pitcher "Mule" Watson.

TORONTO TEAM DETAINED.

U. S. Customs Officials Question American Players on Draft.

TORONTO, May 17.—The refusal of United States customs officials to permit members of the Toronto Baseball Club to enter Canada from Niagara Falls caused today's International League game between Toronto and Binghamton, scheduled for this city, to be postponed.

The officials were dissatisfied with the evidence as to the standing of the American members of the team in the draft. All the team had passports, but the customs men wanted papers from local exemption boards in reference to the American players. The managers of the Canadian team expect to obtain the necessary papers so that a double-header may be played here tomorrow.

COLUMBIA VICTOR ON LINKS.

Rodenberg's Long Putt Decisive Factor in Beating Princeton.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., May 17.—Columbia University golfers gained additional laurels today when they defeated the Princeton team by a score of 4 to 2. The Blue and White representatives won both of the four-ball matches and two of the individual competitions. Had it not been for the sinking of a forty-foot putt on the eighteen green by Rodenburg of Columbia in his match against Thorington of Princeton the Tiger linksmen might have had a chance to tie the score. This skillful putt gave the match to the Morningside collegians by 1 up, and enabled Columbia to win the team honors.

The four-ball matches were played in the morning. A. L. Walker and George Bijur gained a point for Columbia when they defeated Herron and Cook, the Princeton representatives, by a score of 3 and 2. Walker played an especially strong game, and on the 260-yard hole was down in two. He was steady at all times, and his approximate card for the morning session was 75. He was ably seconded by Bijur, who returned an approximate card of 80. Herron, too, played golf that was at times brilliant, and his reward was an approximate 77. The strange part is that while Herron played excellent golf in both the morning and afternoon events he was forced to defeat in each case. In the afternoon, playing against Walker, he made a 78, but the Columbia contestant had a 73, and this was enough to give him the match by 4 and 2.

The second four-ball match of the morning round saw the triumph of Ward and Rodenburg of Columbia, the Princeton victims in this case being Thorington and Douglas, who were beaten 3 and 2. Having won the first clashes of the day Columbia began the afternoon sessions with confidence. Walker's play against Herron at times bordered on the sensational and, try as he would the Princetonians could not gain the upper hand. Walker was deadly in his short game, and his putting was equally accurate.

Bijur did not do so well in the afternoon. He has been a bit off his game lately, and Cook of Princeton was able to pull out a victory at 4 and 3. The second Princeton victory was registered by Kuser on the eighteenth green, where he defeated Ward of Columbia 1 up. Rodenburg saved the day for Columbia by dropping his forty-foot putt for the hole on the eighteenth green, in his match against Thorington, and thereby winning 1 up.

Moore is Beaten by Capron.

Joe Capron defeated George Moore in an Interstate Three Cushion Billiard League match at Thum's Academy last night by a score of 50 to 41. Capron had a high run of 8, while the best cluster for Moore was 4. The match went to seventy-one innings.

DAY OF SURPRISES ON JAMAICA TRACK

Widener Scores with The Portuguese, but His Columbine Loses in Arizona Handicap.

George D. Widener, the Philadelphia sportsman, narrowly missed gaining dual brackets yesterday when the second day's program of the Metropolitan Jockey Club was run off at Jamaica. As it was, he was responsible for one of the shocks in a series of surprises that had the form players all at sea.

Luck was a factor in both of the races in which Widener horses were battling for the money, and, after being on the side of the Philadelphian in the maiden race for three-year-olds, Dame Fortune withdrew her favors, so that the Widener entry, Columbine, was beaten a short head in the Arizona Handicap, which was the feature of the card.

The Widener colors were dominant in the third event, in which fifteen horses that had proved disappointments as two-year-olds went to the post, with M. L. Schwartz's Common Law and the Greentree Stable's Debadou the most fancied. Odds of 15 to 1 could be obtained at post time against The Portuguese, an imported horse entered by Mr. Widener, and while the favorite, Common Law, met with all kinds of bad racing luck, The Portuguese had plain sailing all the way and came through in the stretch to win by a length from Common Law. Debadou also was in close quarters most of the way, but managed to finish third, two lengths behind Common Law.

In the race for the Arizona Handicap, which followed, Mr. Widener's Columbine was well supported for the scramble over five and a half furlongs, in which the Beverwyck Stable's Ima Frank was favorite and Top o' th' Morning second choice. There was a jam on the back stretch from which L. Leavitt's Arnold quickly drew clear to open a big gap.

Meantime Columbine and Ima Frank had all manner of trouble, so that when the stretch was reach the Beverwyck representative was forced to fall back. Ensor had a clear path then with Columbine, and the filly made up so much ground that Buxton managed to land Arnold, the winner, by only a head. Gloomy Gus came strongly in the last sixteenth and took third place, two lengths behind Columbine.

Two good things in the shape of highly tried two-year-olds went wrong in the first and last races. In the opener P. M. Burch's Elected II. was made an odds-on choice, but was forced to bow before the speed of J. W. May's Nanknoehr, which led all the way and won by a length and a half.

In the closing five-furlong dash P. A. Clark's Celt colt was made the choice over The Wanderer on the strength of a startling private trial. It appeared that Dunboyne was just recovering from bucked shins and The Wanderer, which is a half brother to Roamer, had no trouble in taking the purse for owner J. W. McClelland.

As a result of the crowding on the opening day Johnny McTaggart was set down for three days. This did not prevent further mischief, for Colonel J. D'Estrampes's Bill Simmons threw Jockey Van Kirk in the second race.

STUYVESANT WINS IN TANK.

Swimming Team Gains Laurels in Event for Junior Contestants.

Stuyvesant High School nominated the strongest team of swimmers in the indoor swimming event for first year men, held in the City College natatorium last night, under the auspices of the Public Schools Athletic League, and gained the championship with a total of 28 points. This was 8 points better than the total compiled by De Witt Clinton High School, which finished second. Townsend Harris Hall was third with 16 points. The High School of Commerce athletes finished fourth with 12 points.

The meet came as a climax to a number of indoor swimming meets which had previously been held in the same pool, and attracted a large entry of the more prominent junior high school swimmers. The seating capacity of the natatorium was taxed with the large crowd of schoolmates, relatives, and admirers of the youthful swimmers.

Stuyvesant victories were registered in two of the seven events which counted in determining the championship team. These were the 800-foot relay swim and the 50-yard event. In the other events enough minor places were secured to give Stuyvesant the victory.

A disqualification deprived Stuyvesant of a third victory. This punishment was meted out to Perry, the school breast stroke star, who won this event but was disqualified for unfair swimming. This gave the victory to Horwath of Commerce.

All the races resulted in close finishes, but one of the most impressive victories was that scored by Polstein of Townsend Harris Hall in the 220-yard swim. He won after a spirited race, by about one yard, while Wasser, Stuyvesant, gained second place by a touch over Susskind, High School of Commerce.

The summaries:

PIMLICO MEETING CLOSES.

Bondage Scores Again on Getaway Day in Maryland.

PIMLICO, Md., May 17.—The meeting of the Maryland Jockey Club, the most successful ever held here, ended today, and as a result hundreds of horses and turfmen are now on their way to New York to take part in the campaign there. Mrs. James Arthur's Bondage, which ran Cudgel to a head and later won the Belvedere Handicap, again proved that he is entitled to rank with the handicap performers of the year. In the Chesapeake Handicap, at a mile and a sixteenth today, Bondage picked up 117 pounds and had no difficulty in disposing of Rhine Maiden and Hauberk, the only horses to oppose him. As usual on getaway day, there were a number of winners at good prices in the mutuels.

STARS ARE BEATEN IN TENNIS DOUBLES

Tilden and Donaldson Lose a Spirited Match to Bassford and Steinkampf.

It is not by any means unusual for several surprises to crop out during the course of the annual open tournament of the Harlem Tennis Club, and in this respect the event lived up to reputation yesterday, when the advance was made into the final round of the doubles competition. The fortunate teams were composed of Vincent Richards, the national boys' champion, and William Fisher, in the upper half of the draw, and Henry Bassford and Harry J. Steinkampf, in the lower half. In each instance the teams which fell by the wayside were those which had been looked upon with favor earlier in the event.

Richards and Fisher caused the downfall of no less formidable a combination than that of Ingo Hartman and Elliott Binzen, the latter the capable Fordham racquet wielder, who was at one time holder of the national indoor junior championship. They were beaten in a brilliantly contested three-set match with the score 6—8, 6—3, 6—2. The success of Bassford and Steinkampf was gained at the expense of William T. Tilden, 2d, of Philadelphia and Cecil Donaldson, the Brooklyn youngster, who was in the forefront of many of the boys and junior tournaments held hereabout last year. In this instance two sets were all that was necessary to decide the issue, Tilden and Donaldson being forced to relinquish further ambitions in the tournament by a score of 6—4, 7—5.

The final match in singles between Tilden and Bassford will be played this afternoon at 2 o'clock, and the final in doubles will be contested tomorrow.

The summaries:

Doubles—Second Round.—Vincent Richards and William Fisher defeated Martin and Mersereau, 6—3, 6—8, 6—2; Henry Bassford and H. J. Steinkampf won from Clapp and Henderson by default.

Semi-final Round.—Vincent Richards and William Fisher defeated Ingo Hartman and Elliott Binzen, 6—8, 6—3, 6—2; Henry Bassford and H. J. Steinkampf defeated William T. Tilden, 2d, and Cecil Donaldson, 6—4, 7—5.

75,000 Will Parade as Campaign Opens to Raise $100,000,000 for a War Fund.

2,000 NURSES IN THE LINE

Noted Men and Women to Participate in Great Demonstration—President to Speak This Evening.

President Wilson will review the American Red Cross Second War Fund Parade this afternoon from the reviewing stand at Twenty-fifth Street and Fifth Avenue, and in the evening will open the campaign for a minimum fund of $100,000,000, with an address at the Red Cross meeting at the Metropolitan Opera House.

The parade which President Wilson will review will be the greatest Red Cross demonstration which has ever taken place in the United States, and also will be the greatest procession ever held of women engaged in war work.

Near the head of the parade will be the emblem of the Red Cross, a moving cross composed of marchers in red costume. Following the cross will be grouped a body of marchers, including some of the most noted men and women in the United States, among them several who by Presidential appointment are in charge of some of the nation's great enterprises in connection with the war.

Immediately following the Grand Marshal, General George R. Dyer, will march William C. Breed, Chairman of the War Fund Committee of New York; Gerhard M. Dahl, Chairman of the War Fund Committee, Atlantic Division; Cleveland H. Dodge, Chairman of the National War Finance Committee; Seward Prosser, Chairman of the National Executive Committee, and Robert W. de Forest, Vice President of the national organization.

Then will come on foot a group including Henry P. Davison, Cornelius N. Bliss, Jr., John D. Ryan, ex-President William H. Taft, Henry Clay Frick, ex-Ambassador James W. Gerard, Charles M. Schwab, Abram I. Elkus, Felix M. Warburg, Robert Fulton Cutting, Henry Morgenthau, Charles E. Hughes, Nicholas Murray Butler, and Alton B. Parker. The wives of several will march in the same unit.

With President Wilson in the reviewing stand will be Governor Whitman, Mayor Hylan, and Major Gen. Mann, Commander of the Department of the East. Mrs. Wilson will occupy a seat on the reviewing stand with the President.

There are to be 75,000 persons in the parade in Manhattan. At the same time there will be large parades in Brooklyn and the Bronx.

There will be at least 2,000 Red Cross nurses in line, garbed in every variety of costume worn by nurses all over the world. Mrs. H. P. Davison will head a large unit representing the Y. W. C. A., which has been engaged in giving vigorous assistance to the Red Cross.

Large posters were issued yesterday by the Red Cross bearing a picture of General Pershing and the following tribute which he has cabled to the Red Cross for its work in France:

> No other organization since the world began has ever done such constructive work with the efficiency, dispatch, and understanding, often under adverse circumstances, that has been done in France by the American Red Cross in the last six months.

The following cable dispatch was received yesterday by the Rockefeller Foundation from President George E. Vincent of the Foundation, now in France:

> Visits to France and Italy convince me that Red Cross work for families of soldiers, refugees, and other civilians has immediate and vital bearing on war efficiency. To limit work to hospitals and other direct service to soldiers would seriously weaken America's aid to her allies. The full program is essential.

It is expected that 20,000 persons will take part in the parade in Brooklyn this afternoon. Efforts are being made to have President Wilson appear on the reviewing stand. Colonel Roosevelt, who is expected to speak at the opening of the new Service Club at Coney Island, may ride down the line of the parade on his way to Coney Island.

Soldiers, sailors, marines, and a base hospital contingent, all with full war equipment, will be in the Brooklyn procession, with members of the National League for Women's Service, Woman's Motor Corps, Camp Fire Girls, Boy Scouts, shipyard workers, and others. Starting at Bedford and Division Avenues, the parade will move through Bedford Avenue to Lafayette Avenue, to Livingston Street, to Court Street. On the reviewing stand at Lafayette and Vanderbilt Avenues will be Borough President Riegelmann, President of the Board of Aldermen Alfred E. Smith, and Rear Admiral Nathaniel R. Usher.

TELLS BROKERS OF WORK OF RED CROSS IN FRANCE

Mrs. Belmont Says Work for Soldiers at the Front and Civilians Is Never Ending.

Mrs. August Belmont opened the Red Cross campaign in the financial district yesterday when she spoke of her experiences in France before 400 brokers and other workers of Wall Street on the floor of the Stock Exchange. While most of her address was devoted to what she had seen the Red Cross do in succoring wounded soldiers and homeless civilians behind the battle lines, Mrs. Belmont took the opportunity presented for some pointed observations about the United States mail service for the expeditionary forces. She said that homesickness was one of the factors which troubled young soldiers most, and the great delays which have occurred in the delivery of letters tended to aggravate the situation.

"If any one here," she said, "has any influence which could be used to improve the mail facilities in France I appeal to him to use it. It frequently happens that letters are from four to six weeks in traveling from the soldier's people to him."

The audience paid close attention to the speaker's description of the work of the Red Cross among the soldiers from the moment they arrive in camp in this country, but the greatest sympathy and interest were aroused when she told how the American Red Cross workers had aided the little children of France and Belgium.

"The repatriation of the people of Northern France, those caught behind the German lines, and the transfer of Belgians to France," she said, "has been conducted largely by the Red Cross, and hundreds upon hundreds have passed through a certain village on their way from Switzerland. The Red Cross has been active in that village for many months, helping the women and children back to their own land and to new homes. I happened to be there one day when 600 children came in, a greatt rainload of them. There were a number of Chasseurs Alpine—the Blue Devils—in the town, and they went down to the station when the train pulled in. These children were Belgians, and they came trooping from the cars crying, 'Vive la France! Vive la France!' at the tops of their voices. What did those French soldiers do but click their heels together and stand at salute until the tired little visitors had passed by them, on down into the town."

Mrs. Belmont said that the Red Cross had found much to do in caring for the French children living in the zone behind the lines where gas crept along the ground and found victims. Many were too small, she said, to know how to use the gas masks given to them, and others would forget, with the result that the death toll had been great.

"The Red Cross is doing a tremendous work for our boys," she continued, "and every American should have a part in it. Over there the workers soon forget everything else in their desire to help the soldiers and the civilians. Their work is never ending. Air raids by the Germans may cause them to hurry from bed to an underground shelter several times a night, but they are always back at their places in the morning.

"There are many things done by the Red Cross which are unknown or overlooked by the public in considering the work. If a soldier is reported missing, and none of his comrades knows whether he fell in an attack, was captured or, through illness or some other cause, did not accompany his company when an attack was made, the Red Cross men and women do not end their search until they know definitely what happened to him. Through the Red Cross American soldiers captured and sent to Germany are traced and receive food packages within twenty-four or forty-eight hours after the site of the particular prison camp is learned."

Mrs. Belmont said that one effect of the war on the American soldier was to obliterate after a time the feeling that he is a citizen of a State as differentiated from the United States as a whole.

"He becomes just an American," she explained. "The soldiers sent to France will return bigger and better men."

Preceding Mrs. Belmont, Major Eric Allport Lankester of the British Army described trench fighting as it occurred when his regiment passed through stiff engagements in Flanders. Major Lankester was severely wounded and is using his period of convalescence in work for the Red Cross campaign.

DAVISON EXPLAINS NEED OF RED CROSS

Its Work Abroad Is Vital, He Tells Guests at Hotel Astor Dinner.

DESCRIBES AN AIR RAID

Says Forces of Entente See One Way to Peace, and That Is to Fight, and Fight On.

Henry P. Davison, who returned on Thursday from France and Italy, where he had been directing the activities of the Red Cross, thrilled a large audience at the Hotel Astor last night with his description of the achievements of the Red Cross in France and Italy, where he said that the statement was frequently heard that "the American Red Cross is the second line of defense."

The dinner was given in honor of Mr. Davison by Colonel William Boyce Thompson, the Chairman of the Committee on Corporations of the National Red Cross, and was attended by most of the big figures in the business and financial world.

After giving as the greatest achievement of the Red Cross the discovery of the cause and the cure of trench fever, which had been accomplished with the aid of seventy of Pershing's men who volunteered to expose themselves to the disease, Mr. Davison told of the great work behind the lines, which had produced its chief results in supporting the morale and fighting spirit of the soldiers and the civilian inhabitants of America's allies. He described graphically a disastrous German air raid which he witnessed.

One of the works planned by the Red Cross for the safety of Pershing's men, he said, was the draining of some large swamps in France, a work which would cost in the neighborhood of $800,000. Mr. Davison said:

"I have just returned from my fourth visit to the war zone since the war began, and as my visits have been about a year apart I have had an opportunity to compare conditions from year to year. I believe that within the last three months there has been a greater change in Europe relative to the war than in any other period since the beginning of the war.

Only One Way to Get Peace.

"As you know, there has been a unification of the military system, and I believe there has been a unification of the civilian population. My trip in Italy, in France, in Belgium, and in England convinced me that at last the forces of the Entente, both military and civilian, have made up their minds that there is one way to get peace; there is one and only one method, and they have approved and adopted that method, and that method is to fight and to fight and to fight!

"There are today in Europe two battles being fought by the Germans, one against the soldiers in the front line trenches and one against the civilian population behind the lines; and that fight is being carried on from the English Channel to the Swiss border, and from the Swiss border to the Adriatic, and the principle upon which that fight is being carried on is, that they will so paralyze the morale of the civilian population that they will implore their Governments for peace. The theory is that if they can kill four children out of five the mother will importune the Government to sue for peace in order that her fifth child may live. It is the most hellish, devilish, diabolical crime and murder that can be conceived in the world.

"Now, gentlemen, that is the fight that you are waging today against the boche, and you are organized to carry on that fight from the English Channel to the Swiss border, and from the Swiss border to the Adriatic.

"I went into the village of Chalons, or the city of Chalons, a town of a population of about 25,000 or 30,000 inhabitants, about 6 o'clock in the evening, and I was told we were expected to dine at our canteen that evening at 8. About half-past 7 we started over to the canteen. As we went into the main street I noticed these people moving on, moving on, moving on. It was a concourse of people all going in one direction.

"After walking along with them three or four minutes I said, 'What is going on? What is this?' and they said that those people moved out for the night in the caves, and there I saw a mother walking along with a girl of 14, a girl of 12, a child of 7, and a child of 1 in her arms, carrying a mattress, carrying pillows, carrying any coverlets whatever, in order that they might have a decent night in a cave about a mile and a half outside of the town. That was my first vision and first view of people seeking refuge for the night from the bombardment of the boche. It was a constant procession, and it seemed to me that everybody in the town was moving out, and I think that is a true statement.

"I went over to our canteen and there I found the building immediately connected with the station. It had been an old warehouse and had been fixed up by the camouflage artists. It was a structure very large and very attractive in its decorations. In the main room there were tables where the soldiers could sit down and have their meal."

In the ticket office, Mr. Davison said, there were eighteen American girls who had charge of the accounts. Continuing Mr. Davison said:

"I walked into the cashier's office and saw the sale of the tickets. One of those girls stepped up and pulled down the window. I asked her, 'What has happened?' She said, 'The raid has come; we have just had our first alert.' I asked, 'What does it mean?' She said, 'It means we must get out.' I said, 'You come with me.' She said, 'Oh, never. Do you think that I, as the head of this canteen, could leave this building while there is a French soldier in it? Do you think that an American woman could run from a bomb in the presence of a Frenchman?'

"After the bombardment I found a crowd of people very near the hotel, perhaps 150 yards from it, and I walked down to see what had happened. A bomb had fallen there which had absolutely demolished two building, and killed thirty-seven people. As we stood there looking at this wreckage, and everybody was wondering what could be done, something struck me in the back, and when I looked around, there was an American dodging through the crowd with a pick and shovel, followed by twenty-five others.

"There were twenty-five Americans who happened to be driving in the ambulance service outside of the town who went to the rescue of these people. They worked there endeavoring to remove the debris and get the people out, hoping that some might be alive.

"While they were working, the boche came back. He sailed around in an endeavor to drop another bomb on them. He was not quite successful, but he was successful enough to drop one not fifty yards away which demolished two more buildings. We then retired, and through the fatigue of having motored so long that day we went to sleep.

Bomb Attack Renewed.

"We were wakened by the breaking of our windows. That indicated another bomb. So, through the night, that town was bombarded.

"In the morning, as we got up, we saw the people going about more or less as usual. There wasn't any sign of weakening anywhere. In three more days and nights the boche succeeded in putting the people out of Chalons. Now, gentlemen, what does it mean? It means that 25,000 people left their homes to seek refuge wherever it might be found, and they left them with nothing except that which they could carry.

"Well, that has gone on until several hundred thousand people have left their homes in France and in Italy with nothing to protect them, and with nothing by which they could live. Can you imagine the situation in a country where they have been carrying on this war for three years and nine months? The American Red Cross, through its organization, has been able to meet those people, not only to meet them, but to provide them with the things that were necessary, and finally to place them where they may continue to live until this war is over.

"If that were not the case, I should have a little more hesitation in saying that we were carrying on the fight, but it is the case, and it is that act which makes the French people and the Italian people say that the American people are today holding the second line of defense through the American National Red Cross."

Mr. Davison stirred his audience by descriptions of some of the work of the Red Cross in Italy, and continuing said:

"Now it all gets back to What is it all for? Is it just a humanitarian endeavor? Is it just charity? Not at all. It is just as vital that that work should be done as it is that we should provide cannon or airplanes, because if the morale of the civilian population back of that line breaks and has a corresponding effect upon the morale in the line that place can only be taken by the American soldier.

"So that when that work is done it is in direct defense of our own lines, and any money which the corporations may give to the American Red Cross which is spent behind the lines is in direct protection, not only of the lives of our own boys, but for the salvation of this world for humanity and for justice."

At the speaker's table at the dinner last night were Ethan Allen, George F. Baker, Sr., George F. Baker, Jr., Cornelius N. Bliss, William C. Breed, Charles F. Brooker, C. A. Coffin, G. M. Dahl, Henry P. Davison, Robert W. de Forest, Myron T. Herrick, Francis M. Hugo, T. W. Lamont, Ivy Lee, Ogden Mills, ex-Judge Morgan J. O'Brien, George W. Perkins, Seward Prosser, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., John D. Ryan, Jacob H. Schiff, Brig. Gen. Charles H. Sherrill, Colonel William Boyce Thompson, F. A. Vanderlip, and Felix M. Warburg.

PRESIDENT HERE FOR RED CROSS DRIVE

Grayson and Jesse Jones, Director General of Military Relief of the American Red Cross came along in another car.

On the avenue the way had been cleared by police arrangement so that the President rode unhindered through the crush of vehicles which throng the way on bright afternoons. Few people apparently understood who was coming, but, as the machines drew nearer and people on the tops of the Fifth Avenue buses recognized the city's visitor, the cheering rose as the President bowed and bowed right and left.

New York's streets nowadays are marked by men in the uniforms of many nations, and they turned where they were as the President went by, the foreigners looking curiously at the man to whom New York was stopping to pay homage.

A Smile for the Sailors.

At Fifty-ninth Street the motors turned into Central Park, and thence to Riverside Drive, where the people again had opportunity to greet the President and show him how unanimously New York stood with him. On the Drive the party passed a crowd of bluejackets, forgetting the monotony of drill and watch, in a baseball game. President Wilson smiled sympathetically when he saw that the sailors were too engrossed in their pastime even to look up as their Commander in Chief passed.

At Dyckman Street the machines turned back. At Fifty-ninth Street and Fifth Avenue the party passed the little procession of floats, representing a dairy, by which the Committee for Free Milk for France is endeavoring to raise a fund to supply powdered milk to wounded soldiers, children, and tubercular patients in that stricken country. Recognizing the purpose of the parade, President Wilson rose and bowed to the awed children swarming about the floats.

After a dinner at Colonel House's home the President and Mrs. Wilson, with Colonel and Mrs. House and Admiral Grayson, went to see Fred Stone in "Jack O'Lantern."

Not a person in the city except the theatre management and the police knew his intentions so there were no waiting crowds. Inside the theatre Captain McKinney of the Twenty-sixth Precinct had thirty uniformed men guarding every aisle and exit. In addition, under Inspector Faurot, fifty detectives were scattered in the audience.

The President came into the Forty-sixth Street entrance of the theatre just before 8:30. The audience, not knowing he was coming, were looking curiously at the police guards, when cheering was heard outside. Every one looked around and the astonishment and delight were audible when the President and Mrs. Wilson appeared in the lower left hand box. At the burst of cheering President Wilson smiled and bowed to the audience.

During the intermission, few persons left their seats, preferring to remain in the hope that something might induce the President to speak. There was no cheering at first, but when Mr. Jones, who had the next box to the President's, went in and shook hands with Mr. Wilson, the crowd began to applaud and kept it up for five minutes, only stopping when it became obvious that his visitor had something to say to the President.

Sees His Face on Another.

It was near the end of the performance when the attention of the crowd was diverted from the show to President Wilson, and the applause was so tremendous that he was forced to acknowledge it. It came about when Charles Aldrich, on the program as the man of a hundred faces, began personating well-known characters. After several representations, including Grant and Lincoln, the actor turned to the audience as Woodrow Wilson.

The people in the audience rose in their seats and cheered at the personation, and then turned, as one, forgetting the personator as they looked at the original. President Wilson, a trifle startled to see his double bowing at him from the stage, smiled and applauded. Mrs. Wilson and the other occupants in the box laughed heartily as they turned from the President to the actor.

The orchestra struck up "The Star-Spangled Banner," and the people went wild. They paid not the least heed to the stage. When the strains of the nation's hymn died down, the applause burst out again, and it was then the President told them he was only "a tired man having a good time."

The President's few words touched the house and there was a sympathetic note in the outburst that greeted his words.

After the performance Mr. and Mrs. Wilson departed through the Forty-sixth Street entrance, the audience rising and remaining motionless until he had passed. At the door of the theatre there was a crowd that jammed the street as the Broadway crowds fought and struggled to get a chance to salute the President. The police, however, got the way cleared and the party went directly to the Waldorf.

RED CROSS DENIES BAN.

All Loyal Persons Are Accepted for Foreign Service.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—General Manager Gibson of the Red Cross issued a formal denial today of a published statement that the Red Cross would not accept for foreign service any persons of German antecedents for as far as three generations back.

"The statement is entirely repugnant to the purposes and spirit of the organization," said Mr. Gibson. "While the Red Cross must necessarily be thoroughly satisfied of the unqualified loyalty of its personnel here and abroad, the rule of the Red Cross is that if, after investigation, a person is found to be thoroughly loyal and patriotic, he or she will be enrolled for foreign service, even though of German descent. Each case is determined upon its own merits."

CALLS TICKET SPECULATOR.

Swann Investigates Sale for Red Cross Benefit.

The manager of a threatre ticket office in the Times Building was summoned to the District Attorney's office yesterday to answer a complaint charging that he was reaping a personal profit from the sale of tickets for the special Red Cross benefit at the Century Theatre last night. The tickets were all sold by auction on May 10, under the auspices of the Red Cross, and are good for the two performances, the second of which takes place tonight. District Attorney Swann said:

"A woman bought two tickets for $25 each under the impression that all the proceeds go to the Red Cross. When she learned that the speculators were retaining their profit she made complaint to me. The tickets are all marked 'Entire proceeds for the Red Cross,' and I do not like the idea of speculation in them, so I had Louis Cohen, the selling agent there, to explain. Cohen said he had paid $17.50 for each ticket he had sold at $25. These are the regular $5 seats."

Mr. Swann admitted that there was no apparent legal way to proceed against the speculators under the circumstances, as it was known by the Treasurer of the theatre on the day of the auction that many of the tickets were being purchased by speculators.

FIND MORE RED CROSS LOOT

Capt. Denoyelles, Now in Custody, Shipped Bale to Ossining.

OSSINING, N. Y., May 17.—Another large supply of hospital requisites alleged to have been stolen from the American Red Cross by Captain Frank Denoyelles of the steamer Ossining, in the Government service in New York Harbor, fell into the hands of Police Chief James W. Tompkins here today. The recovery of this large bale, which the police left sealed until Federal agents arrive, followed a raid made by Secret Service detectives the day previous on Captain Denoyelles's flat in Ossining, where a ton of hospital supplies were seized.

The new consignment was shipped from New York to Captain Denoyelles on a river steamer and was seized at the dock in Ossining, according to the Ossining police. Captain Denoyelles has been taken into custody by the Federal authorities in New York. His wife and infant child are left practically destitute in Ossining, the police say.

The Manners-Taylor War Play Revived at the Century with All-Star Cast.

Lapse of time and the multiplication of war plays have only confirmed the first impression of "Out There," that it ranks with the Barrie one-acters as the most sincerely felt and moving stage transcripts of character and atmosphere from the conflict in Europe. Last night at the Century it endured the severest test that can ever come to a work of art, an all-star revival, and emerged triumphant. The audience that crowded the vast auditorium thrilled to the heroic mood of 'Aunted Annie, and expanded to the deep tenderness and heartfelt laughter of the hospital scene. The performance was given for the benefit of the Red Cross, and will be repeated this afternoon and evening. Those who witness it will have stored in their memories one of the most remarkable experiences in recent theatrical history. The receipts last night, with subscriptions, will total about $35,000.

Aside from Miss Taylor's performance, which ranks with her Peg as a character creation and sounds far deeper chords of human feeling, the most memorable feature of the play is the hospital scene of the second act; and this, fortunately, lends itself to the all-star treatment, being in reality a series of character studies loosely held together by their common relationship to 'Aunted Annie.

Chauncey Olcott was the irascible and pessimistic Irishman, who hated oranges and longed only for chocolate creams; O. P. Heggie was the Cockney whose heart's desire was a copy of "The Referee"; James K. Hackett was the huge Canadian who honed for big, black cigars; George MacFarlane was the Scotchman who was thrown to the verge of hysterics by the loss of his "bonnet"; George M. Cohan was the American volunteer who harbored an equal grudge against Washington and Potsdam, and whose hatred of Wild Woodbine cigarettes was only equaled by his longing for "tame" Egyptians; and George Arliss was the surgeon from whom Annie extracted the major part of these assorted treasures.

The gross quantities of personality and experienced art which were lavished on these sketches must be witnessed to be appreciated. Mr. Heggie's wide-eyed passion for "The Referee" quite reached the altitude of the passion of Androcles for the lion. The hourly smile which Chauncey Olcott ground out in obedience to the doctor might cause the death of an Orangeman; but he came across with a better grace when he was entreated for a song.

Mr. Hackett's delight when he stuck his black cigar in his face was really an emotional epic, and Mr. Cohan's performance was in every moment a masterpiece of laconic speech and rapt listening.

The other acts had the benefit of the services of Helen Ware, Beryl Mercer, H. B. Warner, and James T. Powers. Julia Arthur bent her powers to the rather unsympathetic part of the hospital nurse.

PROGRAM SOLD FOR $3,000.

Burr McIntosh's Appeal Brings About $10,000 in Subscriptions.

Indications at the end of the Red Cross performance of "Out There" at the Century Theatre last night were that the total amount of money brought in by the performance would be between $35,000 and $40,000. About $30,000 of this sum was obtained directly from the performance and the remainder was subscribed as the result of an appeal made by Burr McIntosh after the second act.

More than $17,000 was obtained in premiums at the auction sale of seats a week ago, and the receipts at the box office were about $7,700. The autographed program which is sold in every city brought the highest price yet paid last night, $3,000 being received. The sale of programs and flowers increased the total by $1,500.

Henry P. Davison, General Manager of the Red Cross, left the dinner given in his honor to make a brief address to the Century audience prior to the rise of the curtain.

WHY MR. BALFOUR EXPLAINED THE OBVIOUS.

Mr. BALFOUR was not giving any news, he was only repeating a commonplace, when he said, "If any representative of any belligerent country desires seriously to lay before us any proposals we are ready to listen to them." That has been England's attitude from the beginning; it is the attitude of all the Allies. It would be absurd to suppose that they would refuse to hear honest peace proposals, for that would be to suppose that they want to go on fighting forever, from mere love of carnage.

Why, then, if this is not news, but merely a stale and obvious truism—which it is—did Mr. BALFOUR take the trouble to say it? Because the pacifists made him do so. The pacifist form of attack has changed. All last year they were calling on the Allies—by which they really meant England and the United States—to "state their war aims." The demand was not sincere. The Governments stated their war aims, and restated them, again and again, and each time the pacifists would wait a short time, and then, as if nothing whatever had been stated, would renew the demand. "State your war aims." The origin of the demand was obviously German, and back of it was the hope that if Mr. WILSON and Mr. LLOYD GEORGE could be badgered into restating the war aims often enough one of them would in some unguarded phrase say something which would give offense to the other's country or to France, and thus excite dissension among the Allies.

This form of attack had to be abandoned after Brest-Litovsk. It rested on the hollow pretense that if the Allies would only state their war aims Germany would state hers, and it would be found that, after all, the adversaries were not so far apart. Brest-Litovsk blew that pretense to atoms. It became evident that, in the face of an enemy whose war aims were openly the dismemberment and military domination of any country silly enough to give her the chance, it was mere folly to go on asking the Western Allies to give her proof of their own sweet reasonableness.

And the pacifists were silent for awhile, casting about for a new way of sowing division among the peoples opposed to Germany. Now the English ones have found it, and presumably there will soon be an echo of it over here. Their new way is to insinuate that the British Government would not listen to any peace terms if Germany proposed them, that Germany has proposed them or may propose them, and that if she did Mr. LLOYD GEORGE would hide the fact from the unsuspicious Mr. WILSON—it is always their cue to affect great consideration for the President as an honorable but guileless man who is being betrayed by the malevolent Premier—and force the British and American soldiers into an unnecessary war to the death. There is no reason why they should affect so much solicitude for America, except that they hope to stir up doubt and uneasiness here.

So the question came up in the House of Commons, and Mr. BALFOUR was obliged—wearily and disgustedly, no doubt—to settle the ugly and malodorous phantom so carefully constructed in the laboratory of the pacifist Frankensteins. He did it by merely restating the bald truism that the Allies are ready, as they always have been, to listen to any serious peace proposals. Mr. ASQUITH expressed great relief and satisfaction at this assurance. Nevertheless, the question will come up again, and yet again, as if Mr. BALFOUR had never said this, for that is the pacifist method of attack. We have learned that much from the constant repetition last year of their formula, "State your war aims," no matter how often the war aims were stated. But the British pacifists might as well learn at the beginning that their attempts to drag the United States into this thing are hopeless and that they may spare us their fawning. It excites emotions not at all like those they seem to expect.

Hitherto no serious proposals have come from Germany. We have had only "peace offensives"; and, as Lord ROBERT CECIL so luminously said, "a peace offensive is an entirely different thing from a peace effort. A peace offensive would be designed to help the German armies in the field." It is, in short, a military manoeuvre; and we have had a constant succession of them for a year and a half, all designed, not to bring peace, but to break the morale of the Allies' troops and the morale of the people at home. The Germans and Austrians, as Mr. BALFOUR said, "never at any time, and now less than ever, have had the least intention of meeting our wishes." Those wishes, he said, were for "a peace which would secure the freedom of the world, the freedom of those who are in danger of German domination." Nothing less than this can be accepted, and Germany has not made and does not intend to make any proposals involving the securing of that freedom. She has made only, as he said, peace proposals which were not made to obtain peace, but to divide her opponents. This being the case, the insidious burrowings of the British pacifists can have no purpose except to divide Germany's opponents; to bring about the success of a German peace offensive, and that peace offensive will be "designed to help the German armies in the field." They will not go unnoticed when the history of the war comes to be written; they have made for themselves a place in it, peculiar and unenviable, and, what their descendants may come to regret, permanent.

THE MORE THE MERRIER.

"The more the merrier," says Governor WHITMAN, philosophically and shrewdly, welcoming Speaker SWEET's candidacy, if real candidacy it is to be, for Governor. In theory the primaries are everybody's. In practice they are the Governor's. The more Republicans enter, the greater his chances. United the Whitmanians stand; divided, and it may well be undivided, the anti-Whitmanians fall.

If Mr. ROOSEVELT, who, as somebody says in "Hector O'Halloran," hardly regards the Governor as a man a gentleman would be justified in borrowing money to entertain, were to sound to the primaries his terrible approach, the Governor's case might be more precarious. Even then, how could wicked WILLIAM BARNES of Albany co-operate with his ancient friend and now deadly opposite at Oyster Bay?

As it is, Lewises and Sweets, however able and skillful—and there are few deeper-revolving politicians than Mr. SWEET—will hardly ruffle the Governor much, at least at this introductory stage of the proceedings. He made a good plea for himself and the Republicans at the meeting of the New York County Republican Committee. Not a word about prohibition. 'Twouldn't be polite to talk that in Manhattan. He praised his associates, including his rival, Attorney General LEWIS. He stood on the "record." "It is all good," he said with a beautiful confidence. "We have made good on every pledge that we made to the voters four years ago and two years ago."

The Democrats will traverse that allegation, successfully perhaps. There is no inconsiderable "structural weakness" in the Governor's third candidacy, and his large hopes for 1920 are not widely shared. Still, if the Democrats are to beat him, they will have to put up the strongest candidate they can find, somebody of stainless loyalty and known ability. Mr. WHITMAN's "record" is that of the Republicans. If it is good, why shouldn't he be renominated, his friends insist. If it is bad, what chance has any Republican nominee against a satisfactory Democratic candidate?

Each party should be, presumably will be, eager to show itself more loyal, more devoted to winning the war, than the other. That being the case, State matters can receive full attention in the canvass, and Mr. WHITMAN's itching for the lightning can be treated as tenderly or cruelly as the Republicans wish. In the inconceivable contingency of a Democratic candidate of doubtful loyalty, the 169,000 plurality which Mr. WHITMAN got in 1916 compared with his 1918 plurality would be as a tadpole to a whale.

AMENDMENT AND MOONSHINE.

Senator UNDERWOOD has written to the Democratic Executive State Committee for the submission of the prohibition amendment to the people of Alabama. That amendment, he writes, is "the first effort that has been made since the establishment of the Constitution directly to trench upon the personal rights and liberties of the people." He thinks the people should pass upon the question.

The Mobile Register, which "would like to see the question voted upon," shakes a mournful head. It > recognizes and thinks all thoughtful persons recognize that, as there is no law for holding an election on the amendment, there are no safeguards that can be thrown around the ballot box, and no guarantee that fraud will not be successful in vitiating the people's verdict.

Senator UNDERWOOD says that "for many years we had primary elections without the sanctity of law." Was there fraud? Was there suspicion of fraud? Wasn't the result accepted cheerfully? Why shouldn't the result of an amendment primary be accepted? Usually it is the people who fear an unfavorable result, it is the Drys that so shudder at a prohibition referendum.

Meanwhile, we record without prejudice or comment the statement of Mr. JOHN MCNEEL, Collector of Internal Revenue in Alabama, that moonshine whisky is worth $8 a quart in some parts of that Dry State.

THE FAILURE OF THE U-BOAT CAMPAIGN.

The sinking or capture of twelve German submarines by British and American destroyers in "British waters" in the month of April is declared to have been a record. The statement has a special significance in view of what Sir ERIC GEDDES recently told the House of Commons:

> One result of the convoy system has been to drive the enemy closer to the shore, thus rendering the open sea safer for navigation. During the first months of the unrestricted submarine war 50 per cent. of the losses (of merchant ships) occurred more than fifty miles from land, and only 21 per cent. within ten miles of the shore. Today the losses outside the fifty-mile limit have fallen to 1 per cent., while the losses close to land have risen to 61 per cent. This transfer of attacks nearer the coast gives increasing opportunities for attacking the enemy by patrolling surface craft and airplanes, and enables us to save many vessels which would otherwise have been lost.

Before the convoy system was adopted, the cruising radius of the submarines alone limited their capacity for destructiveness. The solitary merchantman was their easy prey. Her single gun, if she mounted one, (formerly few trading ships were armed to resist attack,) afforded her very little protection. But when armed merchantmen, and after a while transports also, sailed in fleets, convoyed across the Atlantic by swift cruisers and destroyers, proceeding slowly and always keeping a vigilant lookout, a single submarine exposed herself to almost instant sinking if she fired her torpedo at close range. Attack by a flotilla of U-boats then became the tactics of the enemy; but this plan was soon abandoned. It will be remembered that the German Admiralty at one time boasted that the convoy system was vulnerable to flotilla attack. The risk proved too great, however. Counting the armament of merchantmen, transports, and warships, there were too many guns ready to shatter a periscope breaking the surface, and there was the depth bomb of the 30-mile an hour destroyers to contend with. Some of these rangy scouts had a greater speed. As the submarine commanders found that they could make but little impression upon convoys in the open Atlantic, and as attacks in British home waters by single U-boats or flotillas could be made near the German bases, giving the opportunity to use more units and refit quickly, that plan of campaign had to be adopted exclusively, even in the teeth of the British-French-American patrol.

It may be said that the Allies now had the submarine menace where they wanted it, that is to say, where they could deal with it methodically and scientifically. The tally of twelve U-boats officially sunk or captured by destroyers in the month of April will probably not be a record when the returns for May come in; and from month to month the number of submarines that will never report again at German bases should increase. Meanwhile hundreds of merchant ships will be leaving the ways in the United States and the British Isles.

There will soon be more merchant tonnage built than sunk. There should soon be more submarines sunk, trapped, or captured than the enemy can construct, equip, and find crews for. Admiral JELLICOE may have been too optimistic when he said that the submarine campaign would cease to be a menace by August, but he can't be many months out of the way in his calculation.

WHY MAILS ARE LATE.

It is unfortunate that the Post Office Department's air service enterprise is launched at the same time that the Merchants' Association makes its formal indictment of the general efficiency of the Post Office. The association has been investigating for five months and has sent 10,000 test letters to 800 correspondents throughout the United States. The envelopes of the American Bankers' Association in twenty-three banking districts were examined and the records of the railways were compared for the purpose of discovering whether the railways or the Post Office should be blamed for the irregularities.

It was discovered that the postal car service had been reduced upon 1,612 trains in a total of 6,636. In the attempt to reduce payments to the railways the mails were consolidated. The result was that the number of mails was reduced and that the mails were not "worked" on the railways as before. Hence, it followed that there were delays at the points of departure and destination. The department blames the railways for the irregularities, but the association finds the railway service not the cause. Truckloads of mail are often left because the car space allowed by the department is not enough to accommodate them. This is not an accident, nor chargeable to the employes. It is due to the department's policy of reducing mail pay to the railways by payment for space used, rather than by weight carried. When the assigned space is filled, or when the train starts with empty space and it becomes filled on the journey, further mails are refused and left till next time. The mails are carried in larger units and with fewer departures. Whenever one space is used instead of two the cost is halved, at the expense of the efficiency of the service.

The people who use the mails do not approve of economy of that sort. The Post Office is not so poor that it needs to use such methods. First-class mail matter has increased a quarter, and the parcel post service 40 per cent., and the Post Office boasts its profits. It would be prudent to use the increased income in increasing efficiency, at least up to old standards. The disturbance due to the deterioration of the service may be gauged by the statement that the Shipping Board conducts its correspondence between its Washington and New York offices by messenger. The Post Office is a popular institution, and there is no disposition to be hypercritical. No criticism is made of the personnel of the service, and the railways are acquitted.

The fault is fundamental. It lies in the anti-railway policy of the department, which was criticised when its enactment was procured and which is working as anticipated. There is no reason to suppose that these conditions are peculiar to New York. Doubtless similar conditions would be disclosed by similar studies elsewhere. But even if the conditions are confined to New York, it is not endurable that "almost daily" mails are delayed in the mass, not single letters. The statement that "at every large station from two to eight truckloads of mail are left for lack of room" may be denied, but cannot be excused. If the facts are as stated, the department must remedy the trouble, not for the sake of New York, but for the sake of the country, because every part of the country sends and receives New York mail.

PICK OUT YOUR MILLENNIUM.

It was a saddening induction into the intricacies of partisanship which befell the women voters who brought representatives of the four principal parties to lay their wares before them, so that each voter could make up her mind where to enroll. Saddening, but instructive; the ladies were at least able to discover that a party may have so many virtues that they cannot even be mentioned in a quarter of an hour of oratory. So when Mr. HILLQUIT had finished telling them about the Socialists and Dr. MEYERS about the Prohibitionists, Senator OTTINGER about the Republicans and Senator WAGNER about the Democrats; when their energetic Chairman had asked the audience, "Have you learned anything?" and the audience had enthusiastically shouted "No," then they followed the Chairman's advice and went home to read all the party literature they could digest before registration day.

But had they really learned nothing? Far from it! They had learned that there exists a party which is based on the eternal principles of justice and truth; a party which adores the true, the beautiful, and the good, and hates with fervor the false, the ugly, and the base; a party that stands for the rule of the people and the interests of the common man; a party which exemplifies in perfection those qualities which have made America what it is; a party without whose benison the sun would not shine, the skies would not be blue and the grass green, the earth would not bring forth her products in abundant fertility—a party, finally, which has always been a strong supporter of woman suffrage.

To be sure, there was some uncertainty as to which party this beneficent organization is. Dr. MEYERS said it was the Prohibitionist; Mr. HILLQUIT the Socialist; Senator OTTINGER the Republican; Senator WAGNER the Democratic; if the National Party, the Single Tax Party, and the few surviving herds of Bull Moose had been represented they, too, would have put in their claim. Fifteen minutes is a short time for an enthusiastic partisan who has to tell what his party is, and why; it is no wonder that the various panegyrics were interchangeable. It cannot be, as one feminine questioner suggested, that perhaps there is really no difference between the parties; the Socialists are certainly different, but Mr. HILLQUIT apparently found the task of setting forth their complicated theology in brief so impossible that he contented himself with painting a Utopia that differed in no perceptible way from those offered by the Grand Old Party, by Tammany Hall, and by the crew of the water wagon.

But this was no mere evening of sound and fury; after two hours of sounding brass and tinkling cymbal the curtain came down on a tableau of self-dependent strength. After the presentation of four interchangeable millennia, after the crowd has been driven to scoffing, wearied by the pointless oratory, the band suddenly strikes up "Hail to the Chief!" and there strides in from the wings, potent and invincible as Fortinbras at Elsinore, as HOFFMANN at Brest-Litovsk, his Excellency CHARLES S. WHITMAN. He knows what has been said about parties; he knows how the audience feels. So his first words are of reassurance. "In the discharge of the very onerous and exacting duties connected with my office I am no party man." "Partisanship is good, but there is something nobler than partisanship, and that is patriotism." So give your hearts to Allah and the keys of the White House to me; never mind which party you pick out, their spokesmen have guaranteed that you can't lose on any of them; but remember who is your friend. The education of the woman voter is progressing.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Neutrality a Mark of Inferiority. Some of us have not found, in the past, as many opportunities as we would have liked to agree with the opinions and assertions of CLARENCE DARROW. That is because he has so often chosen to devote his well-recognized abilities to the upholding of causes that either were lost or in course of deserved defeat. But one statement in a recent speech of his had at least as much of truth as can be possessed by any epigrammatic presentment of a generalization, and after only a little cogitation the majority of people will admit that Mr. DARROW was quite right. So he was, for that matter, in the rest of this same address, but in this particular passage his formulation of the truth had a special potency.

What he said was that nobody else was or could be so far wrong on any great question that involves the rights and liberties of men as he who remains neutral. "If you are a partisan," he declared, "you have at least one chance in two of being right; if you are neutral you have no chance to be right."

This would be entirely sound doctrine if it did not ignore the situation of him who, in regard to a given question, is not yet supplied with all the facts in it or with enough of them to justify him in reaching a conclusion. Even for such a person, however, on questions like those Mr. DARROW had in mind, neutrality is morally permissible only until he can inform himself of the facts demanding judgment, and he is under the strongest of obligations to attain this state as soon as circumstances permit. If he does not do so, his neutrality is a shame and a disgrace, and, instead of being superior, as he often claims to be, to the partisans of either side, he is the inferior of them all.

The present application of Mr. DARROW's apothegm is obvious. Its condemnation lands fair and square on every man and woman who has not yet decided between the causes of the Allies and the Central Empires. Only to savages in remote wilds is ignorance on that subject an excuse for any more mental balancings of the ancient and modern sins of the countries now at war. Others who boast of having "open minds"—who talk about "the war-mad nations" and see participation in fighting as itself a manifestation of brutality or unreason—these are they who fall into the category where Mr. DARROW by implication found people worse than Germans and pro-Germans.

A Triumph of Peace Is Reported. If LUTHER BURBANK has developed a "superwheat," that will be, after a fashion, an answer to the "supercannon" of the Germans, and the news of his achievement is good and important news. But in spite of all that Mr. BURBANK has done in the way of improving trees and lesser plants, announcements made by him are not received by everybody as promising a revolution in any domain of agriculture. That he is a man of genius in his own line is admitted with only here and there a murmur of dissent, but that is largely because, on the one hand, he does not follow the methods of orthodox science in making his experiments, and, on the other, because the commercial exploitation of his discoveries has not always been such as to commend itself to the part of the public attentive to such matters.

In criticism of Mr. BURBANK personally, however, nobody has a word to say, and it may very well be that he has evolved a strain of wheat better than any hitherto known. To increase the yield and quality of this most precious of all the cereals would be a benefit to the world to which few, indeed, would be comparable in value. The present record of the United States as a wheat grower is wonderful as regards quantity, but our average production per acre is not at all creditable either to our intelligence or our skill. Our inferiority has been due to the abundance, until recently, of our new and cheap land. Of that we have no more, and better methods are sought of necessity.

Soapbox Patriotism for a Change.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Why the devil should be permitted to have a monopoly of the good tunes and access to the public ear has always been a mystery.

The soapbox is the pulpit from which to reach the man in the street that runs. Recently it has been the exclusive stamping ground of the lunatic fringe that embroiders the latest ephemeral economic vagary, and serves as elevator for every self-anointed social uplifter. Soapboxing threatened to become the city's most popular outdoor sport. Now, why can't such a common, prosaic sentiment as American patriotism, too, be preached on our streets?

We've had so many kinds of firebrands on soap boxes that, for a change, we ought to have a new brand, made in America and making for Americanism.

Let young men of ours give us a little of the good old rambunctious, star-spanglistic propaganda—the proper kind. Too long, with easy-going American tolerance, have we been fed up on this internationalistic, economic-deterministic, biologic-interpretative impropergands! J. H.

New York, May 12, 1918.

Trench Fever.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

"Trench fever" is a mild fever, the symptoms of which are constipation, pain and "full" feeling in the back of the head, and pain in the groin. It has a rising temperature, becoming normal in forty-eight hours, followed by a mild relapse lasting from eight to sixteen hours. The French and English doctors have treated it with perfect success in practically the same manner that they treat colds; cathartics and light, nourishing diet. Incidentally, the "greenest" Tommy knows which particular "insect" causes it. To liken it to yellow fever is simply childish, and under the circumstances cruel. Surely the soldiers' families have enough to worry them without the thought that their boys are exposed to some dreadful new disease. L. W. I.

Another Community Drops German.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Kindly place Cliffside Borough, N. J., just across the river from "little old New York," on record as unanimously agreed on taking German, root and branch, from its schools. Its Board of Education so decreed with no uncertain voice in one of its meetings recently.

MEN OR GUINEA PIGS?

A Question for Obstructors of Scientific Investigation.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Only my grounded faith in the veracity and accuracy of THE TIMES enables me to credit the statement that the leaflet entitled "The Repentance of the Red Cross" was originally an editorial in The Christian Science Monitor. For that newspaper is published by the Christian Science organization and is the mouthpiece of the Christian Science Church.

And the chief of its teachings is that sin, suffering and death are unreal. Thus the sin of the medical men in experimenting upon animals, and the discomfort of those animals, and the illness and death of our boys from disease, and our anguish because of their illness and death, are all alike unrealities. Why, then, in the name of common sense (Mrs. Eddy, I am told, used to say that "C. S." stood for Christian Science and common sense)—why, then, in the name of common sense and Christian Science, are the Christian Scientists concerning themselves with the discomforts of rabbits and guinea pigs?

Were the medical experimenters Christian Scientists, and the logical men we take them to be, they would not need to trouble themselves "to ameliorate the suffering of the animal." Why ameliorate what does not exist? The fact that, despite those admissions of "confidential moments," medical men do allay the sufferings of the animal, merely goes to show how far our doctors still are from the truth as it is in Christian Science. In other words, they are merely scientists, and not "Scientists."

We must conclude that The Christian Science Monitor acknowledges the reality of the sufferings of guinea pigs and rabbits, and affirms the unreality of the sufferings of our boys. Then our sufferings on their behalf—heaven help us!—are unreal also. So let us not worry about typhoid and tetanus and trench fever. Our boys "over there" are only men, and we are only their fathers and mothers. And "pigs is pigs."

THE MOTHER OF A SOLDIER.

Shall Germans Continue to Teach?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The letter in this morning's issue of THE TIMES, signed by H. N. MacCracken, calls for this thought: While German aliens may engage in lawful occupations, would the manufacture of munitions to be used against the bodies of American citizens be regarded as a friendly act?

If not, how can we so regard the manufacture or distribution of a mental poison gas to stifle and weaken the morale of a nation?

In the daily walks of life, we continually meet with Americans who have been mentally poisoned in school, through an alien press, and by association with people who have regarded their naturalization as a mere "scrap of paper."

The only way to make any department of Government see the light is for the people to speak out loud. L. D.

New York, May 16, 1918.

The Answer to Germany.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Concerning the peace suggestions said to be forthcoming from the Central Powers, there is no better formula for every one to keep constantly in mind than that of the President of the Carnegie Institute, Samuel Harden Church, printed recently in THE TIMES and reprinted in a leaflet by the American Rights League:

"Let us say to the German Government and people: 'We have constituted ourselves a League to Enforce Peace. We are twenty-one nations in arms against you. Your armies stand outside your own boundaries. You have destroyed the peace and dignity of the world. We declare you to be the outlaws of civilization, and we mean to drive your armies back into Germany and make you pay the bill. Until that supreme and only object of this war is attained we shall not again discuss peace.'" E. S. J.

Long Delay in Cuban Mail.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

New York business interests having Cuban connections, and all other business interests in the United States whose Havana mail is received via New York, have endured in silence for the last two months an intolerable condition of delay in the mails. First-class letter mail which takes fifty-five hours in transit from Havana to New York is subjected to from two to three weeks' delay in the censorship office here. Tests have established this in a number of instances.

While there is no disposition on the part of any one to stint through inconvenience or sacrifice which are incurred through legitimate censorship delay, the unwarranted delay of three weeks or more impresses the writer with the necessity for some kind of action. K. J.

A Signal Corps Wants a Band, Too.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As you no doubt know, no appropriation is made by the Government for bands in the Signal Corps. The men in the Signal Corps, many of whom are from New York City and surrounding towns, however, are not unlike other human beings. What I mean to say is that our men enjoy music like other soldiers, and desire to have a band.

The matter of organizing and equipping a band has been left to the undersigned. I have found in our organization many excellent musicians, and that the only thing we lack is funds to purchase instruments.

From time to time, I have heard people say that they would be glad to contribute to a worthy cause if they only knew about it. I am writing this letter to THE TIMES with the hope of reaching such people.

Contributions will be very much appreciated and should be sent to the undersigned, marked "For Band."

THE PEACE THE KAISER WANTS

"Peace!"—loud roars the Kaiser,
"But by my good sword's might!"
"Peace!"—he still demands,
But does not spell it right!

A piece of martyred Belgium,
Another piece of France—
This is the peace the Kaiser wants,
One sees it at a glance.

A great big piece of Russia,
And of Rumania, too,
But leaves a piece of Serbia,
With which Friend Karl will do.

And when it comes to Poland,
A piece is not enough.
He wants the length and breadth of it—
His kind of peace is tough!

And now the peace with Holland,
Confronts him—so he's sore!
'Tis not his kind of peace, in faith—
He wants such peace no more.

So when that peace is ruptured,
The bloody, murderous Hun
Will take the piece where flows the Rhine
Before poor Holland's done.

Ye Pacifists, ye Bolshevi, s,
Sinn Feiners, too—beware!
Withdraw before it is too late,
Or die in dull despair.

For blessed peace he knows not—
The peace of humankind.
His only peace is born of greed—
To real peace he is blind!

LIBERTY SERVICE MEDALS.

A Plan to Give Recognition for War Work.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In THE TIMES of May 4 there was a letter from Dr. Cary Eggleston suggesting an "insignia for the war workers."

It may interest your readers to know that one of the last acts of public service performed by the late Ripley Hitchcock lay along the very lines suggested in Dr. Eggleston's letter.

As a Vice President of the American Social Science Association, which was organized in 1865, and of which Dr. Charles W. Eliot and Harry A. Garfield are now Directors and James B. Townsend is Secretary, Mr. Hitchcock formed one of a committee working in connection with just such an insignia.

As early as December, 1917, a resolution, which he helped to frame, was signed by Oscar S. Straus, Chairman; Simeon E. Baldwin, George Gordon Battle, H. Holbrook Curtis, and Ripley Hitchcock. The resolution read:

> In view of the fact that, except in the army and navy, no provision has been made by any competent authority for the recognition by a medal or other suitable insignia for notable humanitarian or patriotic services for the national welfare;
>
> Therefore, the Executive Committee of the American Social Science Association, one of the oldest nationally incorporated bodies, recommends that a medal to be designated "Liberty Service" Medal be authorized.
>
> The committee further recommends that the National Institute of Social Sciences be empowered, in accordance with the objects of its organization, to award and bestow said medal upon such person or persons as have rendered or may render notable services which merit such special mark of distinction and recognition.

Four awards have been made—to Major Grayson M. P. Murphy, American Red Cross Commissioner in Europe; John R. Mott, General Secretary of the International Y. M. C. A., and also of the War Work Council of the Y. M. C. A.; Miss M. Adeline Nutting, head of the Department in Teachers' College for Nursing and Health, and to Marcus H. Holcomb, Governor of Connecticut.

Sheep or Beans?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The statement in a recent issue of THE TIMES that a flock of sheep was pasturing on the White House grounds has brought to my attention once more the great importance of devoting our time and land to raising sheep or goats, instead of beans, thus furnishing not only our own wool, but mutton as well.

The whole country seems to have gone wild over the raising of beans, and why? As far back as 1856 Dr. James H. Salisbury made exhaustive experiments of the value of foods on the human body, and classified beans as one of the most detrimental articles of food to which the digestive organs could be subjected. I quote from his book, "The Relation of Alimentation and Disease," published in 1888, Page 19:

> The bean is chiefly made up of double-walled sacs of legumen, which are filled with starch grains. These sacs are as insoluble in the digestive fluids as woody fibre, and the only way in which the secretions of the digestive organs can get at the contents of these insoluble sacs is by the starch grains undergoing fermentation. This liberates large quantities of carbonic acid gas, which gas explodes the sacs. By the time the digestive fluids reach the contents of these exploded sacs, the starch is decomposed into carbonic acid gas, alcohol, vinegar, and yeast vegetation, products that are quite unfitted to afford healthy nourishment, but rather agents to feed pathological states.

I know of a large tract of land on Long Island upon which was raised last year mixed crops. Contracts were made last Fall for the planting this year of the entire estate in beans; also an enormous estate in California, the acreage of which previously raised timothy, is all devoted to beans. This must be due either to a lack of knowledge or appreciation of the situation, for in these particular cases—and I have no doubt there are many others—there is neither lack of patriotism nor capital, and profits are of the least importance. This loss to the country in food value alone—meat, butter, cheese, to say nothing of wool, hides, &c.—is well-nigh incalculable.

When American Meets German.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have received a letter from a former officer of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, who is a Sergeant of the United States Signal Corps in France, who says:

"Fritz now realizes whom he is up against on our sector, and takes no chances as he used to. When the French troops were in this sector both they and the Germans would go out every morning to a well which was located between their trenches for water, and not a shot was fired on either side. But it was very different when we took this sector over, for the morning after we arrived here Fritz came out forty strong for water, and immediately afterward there were forty dead Fritzes, as our boys are here to get every one of them we can get, and we are not making this as a tea party. So now Fritz is careful.

"The allied forces back away slowly, and as Fritz advances they mow him down with machine guns, so you see he is really gaining nothing. I am now in charge of a listening post in a dugout on the first line, which is very interesting and exciting. None of our boys wants this war to stop until we have Mr. Kaiser, and we are going to get him, rest assured. The Germans are making it quite hard for me to write with their heavy artillery." JOHN D. LINDSAY.

The Old National Guard and the New

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The 7th, 12th, 14th, 23d, and 71st Regiments compose more than half of the regiment known as the 165th National Guard Army. In a recent dispatch its Colonel mentions no other.

The injustice in the persistence in ignoring these other regiments and extolling another is very annoying to the veterans of the others.

The National Guard is a thing of the past, the old regiments are so intermixed as not to be specified. Forget the past, and call the regiments as they are, in this case the 165th.

GOVERNMENT PICKS COTILLO

State Senator to Go to Italy to Study Economic Conditions.

State Senator Salvatore A. Cotillo of the Twentieth District has been designated by the Government to proceed to Italy and make a study of economic conditions in that country, in order to furnish the Government with the information needed in affording immediate relief where such relief is most needed. The announcement of his appointment was made by Senator Cotillo yesterday. He will shortly sail for Italy.

Senator Cotillo, who is a lawyer, was born in Naples thirty-three years ago, and came to this country with his parents in 1894. He is a graduate of the De Witt Clinton High School and of Manhattan College. He was graduated in law from Fordham University. He was elected to the Assembly in 1912 and to the Senate in 1917.

HELP FOR RUSSIA.

Speedy Action Urged to Stop the Present Disintegration.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Being a citizen of the United States, but born and brought up in Russia, the future of my mother country is close to my heart, and I would do anything in my power to help Russia, with one end in view, i. e., to establish a stable Government, representative of all the people and for all the people, and to defeat the designs of the Kaiser and his horde of Huns.

In common with many citizens of Russian extraction I have hoped against hope that time might develop a strong man in Russia who should be able to lead the people into the path to freedom. As was to be expected, the disorganization begun by Kerensky's first general order to the army and navy, hastened by the weakness of his short administration and completed by the subsequent shameful peace at Brest-Litovsk, concluded by the Lenine and Trotzky combination, has brought the country to where it is today, into the very pit of a dark abyss.

It is to undo all this—to fight with one hand the agents of the Kaiser and with the other to hold the Bolshevik in check, to show him that the Government cannot be run as the Kaiser would like to see it run in Russia—that we must concentrate our energies and select a Lafayette of 1918.

I believe there is in New York a Russian organization for national defense, the purpose of which is to preserve democracy for all the world and in particular to save the young Republic of Russia. This organization is enlisting Russian officers in an attempt to organize a body of men to go over to Russia and form there a nucleus of a great army of liberation, to free the Russian people from Teutonic and Bolshevist rule.

Will America help?

Let us not waste any more precious time, but make a start, which, I trust, may result in helping millions of our brothers and sisters over there who are suffering from a scourge such as, I believe, no country has known before.

THE SUPPLY OF NURSES.

Faster Training and Better Pay Suggested.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Few people are in position to speak with more authority than Dr. Goldwater regarding the need for more nurses at this time and what can be done to meet this ever increasing need. His article in today's TIMES, therefore, contains much food for thought.

In spite, however, of Dr. Goldwater's experience and ability it seems to me that he has overlooked some phases of the question which might aid in its solution.

Is it not possible that if all hospitals were to increase the pay of pupil nurses during the period of their training it might attract an increasing number and better class of young women into the nursing profession?

Under any circumstance it requires a considerable degree of consecration and enthusiasm for a well educated young woman to undergo the three years of hard, and much of it uninteresting, work which is necessary in order to secure for herself the right to apply for registry as a nurse, and especially so when one recalls that during this period she receives scarcely enough pay to meet the cost of uniforms required and the extra laundry charges which may be unavoidable; and to this is added the thought that her maximum earning power when her training is finished will be little greater than that of the girl who, after a few months in a business college, secures a position as bookkeeper, stenographer, or secretary and whose hours of employment and whose responsibilities, once she is established in such position, are minor considerations compared with that of the nurse.

It will not do to seek materially to increase the pay which a nurse receives for private nursing, for even now the cost of a nurse in sickness is a serious burden for all but the wealthy class, but I am convinced that if the years of training could be made more attractive not a few capable young women who are of necessity forced to turn their attention elsewhere under present conditions would be drawn into the hospital training schools and help to swell the depleted ranks of the trained nurses.

I am not unaware that an increase in pay to pupil nurses mould materially increase the already overstrained budgets of the hospitals. But the increase has had to be met in regard to such vital needs as food and drugs; why, then, should the need for an increased budget to keep up the equally vital need of an adequate supply of nurses be avoided?

Another thought is that in many cases of illness in the home and for not a little of the work in base hospitals for the army three years' training is unnecessary. In six months or a year an adequate amount of practical knowledge could be instilled into the young woman of average intelligence to make it possible for her to care for with entire satisfaction a considerable percentage of the cases of illness which occur in private practice and to take over that part of the work in military hospitals which does not require the technical knowledge of the fully trained nurse. In order to avoid any injustice to the registered nurse which might arise from such partly trained nurses being confused with a trained nurse; they could be given certificates as "sick room helpers," or whatever better title might be devised, and required to register as such.

The physician or family then, in engaging such person, where the needs of the patient did not demand the skill of a fully trained nurse and where financial considerations made the employment of a trained nurse impossible, would not be precluded from securing fairly intelligent care for the patient, where now only the haphazard attention of a member of the family is possible because of the absolute impossibility of paying $35 or even $30 a week for a trained nurse, for, of course, such a partially trained woman would command a pay considerably lower than that of her fully trained sister, and by carefully avoiding the word "nurse" in denominating this class the fact that she was not such, but was on a lower plane, would, I believe, be sufficiently understood to avoid injuring the nursing profession.

Such a body of women would, in civil life, be a real boon to the less well to do and would, if intelligently infiltrated into the work of the military hospitals, make it possible for the fully trained nurse to do double the amount of work where technical training is essential.

COLONEL CRITICISES HEARST AND WILSON

Gives His War Views in Foreword to Lewis Einstein's Book, "A Prophecy of the War."

DENOUNCES THE PACIFIST

Says Germany Will Be Our Natural Enemy Until Moral Attitude of Her People Is Changed.

The Columbia University Press has just issued a volume entitled "A Prophecy of the War," by Lewis Einstein, who has held various offices in the diplomatic service of the United States, with the following foreword by Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, dated Feb. 3, 1918:

"Mr. Lewis Einstein is one of the men whose work has kept alive the fine tradition of the union between American diplomacy and American letters, which is illustrated by such names as those of Lowell and Motley, of John Hay and Maurice Egan. In the two chapters of this little book he gives proof of a prescience in world politics very rare among American statesmen. He foresaw the war; he foresaw our entry into the war. He sees clearly the need that our association with the British Empire shall be one of the closest friendship because it would be an unspeakable calamity for us if the British Empire succumbed to Germany. And after the war Germany will once more begin her campaign to render America the dupe and tool of European militarism by breeding hostility to England—and with this end in view she will employ everybody, from organisers of German-American alliances to editors of German-American papers—and, of course, she counts in advance on the support of politicians like Senators La Follette and Stone and editors like Messrs. Hearst and Viereck.

"Under such conditions it is well to have Americans like Mr. Einstein—who, like myself, is not of English blood—point out why England is now what a century ago she was not, our natural ally, and why Germany, in view of the appalling results of her sordid and brutal soul-training for the last forty years, cannot be anything but our enemy until the whole moral and political attitude of her people is fundamentally changed. The pacifists of the Norman Angell type, whether in England or America, and the silly men and silly women who listen to them, are, as they have been, the potent enemies of the peace of justice and the tools of alien militarism. Unfortunately in this country, while there has at times been a repulsive social Anglomania among limited classes, the political danger has always been from the appeal of demagogic politicians to the anti-English vote. This manifested itself in the cautious meekness with which our governmental authorities protested against the repeated wholesale murders of our men and women by German submarines, compared with the hectoring attitude assumed toward Great Britain over mere property rights—a striking inversion of Abraham Lincoln's insistence on putting the man above the dollar.

"Mr. James Brown Scott, in his 'Survey of International Relations Between the United States and Germany,' justly remarks: 'The reader experiences a shock, on turning from the German to the British correspondence, to note the cold and unyielding terms in which American rights concerning property were insisted upon. It would seem as if the American Government feared a rupture with the Imperial German Government * * * and that the President and his advisers had determined that no act on the part of the United States, that no unguarded word or expression in correspondence with Germany, should give the Imperial Government a pretext, much less a cause, to turn against the United States if it should seem to stand in the way of the realization of the purpose (the destruction of England and the enslavement of Belgium) upon whose realization the German Government had bent its energies and upon which the German people had set their heart. * * * The neutrality which the President impressed upon his fellow-countrymen was not merely the neutrality of action; it was the neutrality of thought and expression.'

"This neutrality was neutrality between right and wrong; we persevered in it for two years and a half, and then the President, on April 2 last, announced that 'the wrongs against which we now array ourselves are no common wrongs; they cut to the very roots of human life. * * * Property can be paid for; the lives of peaceful and honest people cannot be. The present German submarine warfare against commerce is a warfare against mankind'; and again on Aug. 27 last—'the object of this war is to deliver the free peoples of the world from the menace and the actual power of a vast military establishment controlled by an irresponsible Government which, having secretly planned to dominate the world, proceeded to carry the plan out without regard either to the sacred obligations of treaty or the long-established practices and long-cherished principles of international action and honor, * * * which stopped at no barrier either of law or of mercy; which swept a whole continent within the tide of blood—not the blood of soldiers only, but the blood of women and children also and the blood of the helpless poor, * * * the American people have suffered intolerable wrongs.' All of this was absolutely true; and it was exactly as true when the Lusitania was sunk as it was two years later. It was true throughout the period of our neutrality.

"Under such conditions it is well to have a conscientious and high-minded American citizen, who is also a trained and able diplomat, write such a book as this."

HEARST'S ATTORNEY CHARGES CONSPIRACY

Asks Swann to Prosecute Persons He Accuses of Plotting to Stop Sale of Client's Papers.

A representative of the publisher of The New York American and The New York Evening Journal told District Attorney Swann yesterday that certain persons in Manhattan had "conspired to induce public bodies within the State of New York and other States to prohibit the sale" of these newspapers. William A. De Ford, general attorney for Mr. Hearst's newspapers, requested Judge Swann to make an investigation and to prosecute the persons and corporations so conspiring. Judge Swann, in announcing his intention to begin an investigation of the charges today, issued this statement:

"William A. De Ford, General Attorney for the Publisher of The New York American and Evening Journal, states that he has received information which warrants his belief that certain persons, (actuated by personal animosity and business rivalry,) have conspired together in this county, to induce public bodies within the State of New York and other States to prohibit the sale of The New York American and Journal, under the duress of the possible imposition of unlawful penalties and to the injury of the business of the publisher and its selling agents.

"He has presented this information to me with the request that I make an investigation and to prosecute the persons and corporations whom I find to have been guilty of so conspiring."

The District Attorney said he would proceed under Section 580 of the penal law, which has to do with the interference of the exercise of lawful trade, profession, property, or to prevent the carrying on of a legitimate business.

This request for aid from the District Attorney's office was believed to have a connection with the action of the meeting on Tuesday of the Common Council of Mount Vernon, when seven of the ten Councilmen voted for an ordinance prohibiting the sale and distribution in that city of all newspapers in the German language, and also The New York American and The New York Evening Journal during the period of the war. On Wednesday Supreme Court Justice Greenbaum, on the application of James W. Gerard, ex-Ambassador, issued an injunction restraining the town officials from enforcing the terms of the ordinance.

The complaint is also supposed to have a bearing on the action of Mayor Ruford Franklin of Summit, N. J., who, on Wednesday, ordered the printing of posters notifying the public that newsdealers there had agreed to discontinue the sale of the Hearst newspapers.

Judge Swann said he would subpœna certain persons today for examination. He withheld the names of the prospective witnesses, and no mention was made by him of the names of the corporations referred to in his statement.

Mayor Brush of Mount Vernon said yesterday he had received a large number of letters commending him and offering support and legal aid in regard to his action in signing an ordinance making it unlawful to circulate German language newspapers and the Hearst newspapers in Mount Vernon.

The Town Board of Oyster Bay yesterday forwarded to Congressman Frederick C. Hicks its resolution forbidding the sale of German language newspapers and received yesterday the following reply:

"In reply to your letter with enclosure of resolutions regarding the prohibition of the distribution of newspapers let me say that I approve of your action and commend your loyalty."

ROOSEVELT AIDS GUILD.

Colonel Urges Women of Oyster Bay to Join in Work.

Special to The New York Times.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., May 17.—To aid in establishing a branch of the Needle Work Guild of America in his home village, Colonel Theodore Roosevelt today spoke before more than a hundred women in the Town Hall. Mrs. Roosevelt organized the branch and has been elected honorary President.

In opening the meeting the Colonel said he had taken a great interest in this work of the guild, which is a national one, in its thirty-second year, and that he urged the women to do everything in their power to assist. The guild collects and distributes new garments to hospitals and homes throughout the country and is affiliated with the Red Cross.

"There is much suffering in this war, and as it progresses we will see more of it," he said. "We don't see the misery over there. We must sacrifice many things."

ZIONISTS WANT TEACHING.

Dr. Weizmann Says Some Power Should Hold Palestine in Trust.

LONDON, May 17, (via Ottawa.)—Speaking at an official dinner to the Governor of Jerusalem, Dr. Chaim Weizmann of London, head of the Jewish Administrative Commission, said Jewry was returning to Palestine to build up a great moral and intellectual centre. Zionists desired to create conditions under which the development of the Jewish people would not be a detriment to any of the great communities already established in Palestine. All fears expressed openly or secretly by the Arabs that they would be ousted from their present position were unfounded.

The Jews, said Dr. Weizmann, did not intend to take the supreme political power into their hands after the war. Jews and Arabs alike had watched the fate of Albania and Russia. Modern self-government needed a long and hard apprenticeship under trained and trustworthy teachers, and the Zionists desired that supreme political authority in Palestine be vested in one of the civilized democratic powers. This power should hold Palestine in trust until self-government became practicable.

Jewry would choose that power and would announce its opinion thereon after the war. Zionists did not believe that internationalization of Palestine or any form of multiple political control could be tolerated.

$20,000,000 DEVISED IN THE PALMER WILL

Sons Receive the Bulk of the Estate, in Trust for Their Children.

$515,000 GOES TO CHARITIES

$100,000 in Art to the Chicago Institute—Legacies of $30,000 to Mrs. Palmer's Servants.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 17.—The will of the late Mrs. Potter Palmer, affecting the disposal of an estate valued at more than $20,000,000, was filed for probate today. The bulk of the estate is handed down in trust to the two sons, Honoré Palmer and Potter Palmer, Jr.; $515,000 is bequeathed to various charitable organizations, and Mrs. Palmer's collection of paintings, to the value of $100,000, is given to the Art Institute. Mrs. Palmer's personal estate is estimated to be worth $1,800,000. The balance, amounting to about $20,000,000, was held in trust by Mrs. Palmer from her husband's estate. When Potter Palmer died sixteen years ago his estate was estimated at $8,000,000, so that in the intervening time, under his widow's management, it has more than doubled in value.

The two sons during their lifetime are to enjoy the income from the vast estate, and upon their deaths the income is to go to their children, until the eldest son shall reach the age of 21 years. Then the whole Palmer fortune is to be divided among the Palmer grandchildren, of whom there are seven.

Honore and Potter Palmer, Jr., are directed by their mother to expend $400,000 for the aid of such philanthropic or educational institutions as they may select.

To the United Charities $100,000 is left; to the Children's Memorial Hospital and Chicago Commons, $10,000 each, and $5,000 to the Legal Aid Society.

To the two daughters-in-law, Mrs. Grace Brown Palmer and Mrs. Pauline Kohlsaat Palmer, the sum of $100,000 each is left outright.

No mention is made in the will of Mrs. Lockwood Honoré, widow of Mrs. Palmer's brother, who died last Summer.

Loop property to the value of $15,000,000, including the Palmer House, is placed in the trust, which the two sons will have in charge. In addition, Mrs. Potter Palmer had 70,000 acres of Florida land near Sarasota, Manatee County, and near Tampa. The part on which Mrs. Palmer's Southern home stood is given to the two sons. Near Tampa, 19,000 acres additional are given to the two sons. A. C. Honoré, her brother, receives 15,000 acres. The rest of the Florida property is placed in a trust over which A. C. Honoré is made trustee for the benefit of his brother, Nathaniel M. Honoré, and his sister, Mrs. Ida Honoré Grant, widow of General Frederick Dent Grant, son of the former President.

To her secretary, Mrs. Pauline Furman, $8,000 is left; to her butler, Ernest Woods, $5,000; to "George Marshall of England, my former footman," $3,000. Legacies to the Palmer servants aggregated $30,000.

The Palmer mansion on the Lake Shore Drive, toether with all art collections, rugs, paintings, and bric-a-brac, is given outright to the two sons. Mrs. Palmer in her will directs her sons to collect from the art objects in her home any group in their discretion which will equal in value $100,000 and present it to the Art Institute. In the Palmer galleries are works of Monet, Manet, Degas, Besnard, and Renoir. In addition Mrs. Palmer had three-score canvases by American painters and modern Europeans. George Inness, Charles H. Davis, Alexander Harrison, Eastman Johnson, Henry S. Mowbray, Gari Melchers, Anders Zorn, and Munkacsy all contributed to her collection.

COPELAND ASKS LABOR'S AID

Committee to Confer on Spending Sanitary Conditions Fund.

At the request of Health Commissioner Royal S. Copeland, the Central Labor Federation at a meeting held last night appointed two members to consult with Dr. Copeland next Wednesday on the best means of expending an available appropriation of $60,000 to improve sanitary conditions for workmen in this city. Thomas Rock, the Chairman, also appointed a committee of twenty to arrange for a parade and celebration on Labor Day.

Resolutions were adopted approving "Ireland's demands for home rule, liberty and the right to govern herself," and opposing any extension of hours for Government employes through legislation now pending at Washington.

A letter from Secretary-Treasurer Bates of the State Federation of Labor urged support of Senator Hoke Smith's bill to re-educate and rehabilitate maimed and crippled soldiers or sailors after the war to enable them to be self-supporting, and that the bill be amended to include men and women crippled while plying their industrial vocations in this country.

COWS ARE COMING TO TOWN.

Big Herd Will Take Part in National Milk Exposition.

A big herd of cows will invade New York on Monday to participate in the opening of the National Milk and Dairy Farm Exposition at the Grand Central Palace. The cows will come by train, hoof, and motor truck and will be accompanied by 10,000 or more dairymen and farmers from all parts of the State. Governor Whitman will officially open the exhibition at 8:30 in the evening, though the doors will be opened to the public as early as 3 in the afternoon. A corps of food experts will address the various meetings from day to day. Food Administrator Herbert C. Hoover will give an address on Thursday.

The story of the cow and her milk will be told in exhibits and demonstrations. Processes of milk handling on the farm and in the city delivery system, the food value of milk as compared to other foods, milk products, and milk machinery will form the subjects of the demonstrations.

Baker's Gift to Mrs. MacArthur.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—Secretary Baker has presented to Mrs. Arthur MacArthur, widow of Lieut. Gen. MacArthur and mother of Colonel Douglas MacArthur, Chief of Staff of the Rainbow Division, the helmet taken from the head of the Bavarian officer her son captured single-handed in a trench raid several months ago. Colonel MacArthur had given the helmet to the Secretary in France. Mr. Baker decided not to keep it himself because it had a greater value to the mother of the Colonel.

BUYS GREAT PLANT FOR AIRCRAFT WORK

Wright-Martin Corporation Will Employ 8,000 Men in Making Motors in Long Island City.

The Wright-Martin Aircraft Corporation completed negotiations yesterday for the purchase of the plant of the General Vehicle Company, occupying the entire block bounded by Borden, Star and Review Avenues and Beaver and Fox Streets, in Long Island City. The reported consideration was $1,000,000. The property was acquired for the purpose of speeding up work in connection with the aviation service of the Government, the buying corporation now having contracts calling for the delivery at the earliest possible time of 3,000 airplane motors.

The plant is of the most modern type, the chief unit being a six-story structure measuring 200 by 600 feet. A smaller unit is two stories in height and measures 120 by 300 feet. There are in addition three other buildings, all directly connected by rail with the Long Island and Pennsylvania Railroads.

At the offices of the Wright-Martin Corporation yesterday it was said that orders had been placed for additional equipment to cost approximately $1,500,000 and that after the installation of the machinery, within three weeks, the plant would be operated at maximum capacity. It was estimated that about 8,000 men would be employed there.

The Wright-Martin Aircraft Corporation is capitalized at $10,000,000. George H. Houston, a partner in the engineering firm of Goethals, Jamieson, Houston & Jay, is President and General Manager. Major Gen. George W. Goethals was the head of the corporation until March 1 of this year, resigning when he took up his new duties in Washington.

The corporation began its production in the United States under contracts with the French Government early in 1916. It has completed for France 450 of the Hispano-Suiza motors and is now delivering to the United States Government motors at the rate of 150 a month.

IRISH APPEAL TO AMERICA.

Nationalist M. P.'s Say British Propaganda Is Misleading Us.

DUBLIN, May 16.—At a meeting of forty-five members of the Irish Party here today, with the Irish Nationalist leader, John Dillon, presiding, a statement was issued to the effect that the bill for conscription in Ireland was adopted by Parliament largely under the impression that no attempt would be made to use the power until a responsible Irish Government and an Irish Parliament were called into existence. The latest developments, however, lead to the conviction, the statement says, that the Government has no intention of producing any bill whatever, and that all the promises made were uttered simply for the purpose of deceiving the House of Commons, the British public, and above all the American Government, the American people and the allied European nations, and of prejudicing the cause of Ireland in their eyes.

The statement goes on to say that conscription would be not only an outrage of national right, but a breach of faith. The complaint is made that British propaganda is creating prejudice against Ireland in America, and an appeal is made to the United States to listen to Ireland's case as stated by Irishmen qualified to speak in her behalf. The statement concludes:

"We beg of the American people and Government, in the memory of the bonds of sympathy which have existed between the American and Irish nations ever since the foundation of the Republic, to urge upon their British allies the duty of immediately applying, in the case of Ireland, those principles of democratic freedom and national self-determination so magnificently set forth in President Wilson's declarations, the benefit of which is denied to Ireland, while the Irish people are called on to fight for them in foreign lands."

LONDON, May 17.—The House of Commons adjourned last night until May 28 without any sign of the long-delayed Irish Home Rule bill. Apparently the members of the Government have no idea when the bill will be introduced.

SPEEDER IS SENT TO JAIL.

Said He Was Hurrying to Dying Sister, but Story Is Disproved.

Harry Weprin, a builder of 30 Vermilyea Street, the Bronx, following an investigation made by Magistrate House of a story told by Weprin, after he had been arraigned in Traffic Court, charged with speeding, was committed yesterday to the city prison for ten days without the alternative of a fine.

Weprin was summoned on May 9 for speeding twenty-seven miles an hour from Seventy-fifth to Seventy-first Street on Third Avenue on the complaint of Motor Cycle Patrolman Gennerich. He appeared before Magistrate House on the following day and said: "Your Honor, I was on my way to a hospital at Twenty-first Street and Third Avenue, where my sister was dying. She is dead and I wish you would not detain me, as I want to go to her funeral."

Probation Officer McElroy, who was ordered to investigate this story, testified yesterday that there was no hospital at Twenty-first Street and Third Avenue; that Weprin got a letter about two or three weeks ago stating that his brother had died of typhus in Russia about the end of March, but that no one had died here.

Weprin agreed with McElroy's report and said in excuse: "I was all mixed up and I did not know what I was saying."

DIED, HAND ON THROTTLE.

Engineer of Staten Island Train Victim of Heart Disease.

As a passenger train of the Staten Island Rapid Transit Railroad was running from Dongan Hills to New Dorp yesterday, Fred Hough, the fireman, noticed that the speed of thirty miles an hour was not slackened as the train approached danger signals, and that the whistle was not sounded for the crossing near the station. He glanced anxiously at the engineer, John La Forge, but La Forge had his hand on the throttle and appeared to be leaning out of the cab window looking at the track.

As the train sped past another signal Hough became alarmed and shouted to La Forge, who did not move. When he shook La Forge the hand fell from the throttle and the body fell back in the cab seat.

Hough immediately shut off the steam as the train approached the station at dangerous speed. Physicians who were summoned at the New Dorp Station said that La Forge had died of heart disease.

Sir William Henry Manning, who has been appointed Governor of the Island of Ceylon, arrived yesterday on his way from Jamaica to his new post via England. He had been Governor of Jamaica since 1913.

GERMAN TEACHER ON TRIAL FOR DISLOYALTY

The trial of Gertrude A. M. Pignol, teacher of German in the Manual Training High School, Brooklyn, for disloyalty was held at the Board of Education Hall yesterday by a committee consisting of Frank D. Wilsey, Arthur S. Sommers, Mrs. Annie M. Murray, and Mrs. Isaac Franklin Russell. The defendant was represented by Charles Recht. Miss Pignol testified that she was a loyal citizen of the United States. She was born in Berlin, but came to this country some years ago, and was appointed a teacher in 1905. She took out her citizenship papers in 1911.

She said that, although she had been opposed to the declaration of war by the United States against Germany, she had since changed her mind and wanted the United States to win. The invasion of Russia by Germany was one of the reasons for her change in mind. She was quite willing to do anything that the Board of Education or her Principal, Mr. Snyder, wished her to do. Her class, she said, had bought about $3,500 worth of Liberty bonds, and she herself had purchased a bond after her suspension, which, she said, did not influence her in making the purchase.

She admitted she had worn a pin in school, but denied she had boasted about it. The pin contains the cornflower on one side and the picture of the present German Emperor's grandfather on the other. The cornflower, she declared, was associated in this country with the Kaiser's family.

After telling of the charges made against her, she said she had attended a lecture by Dr. Larkin in which he described conditions in foreign countries. She was affected to tears and left the room. Immediately after this the audience was asked to stand and sing the "Star-Spangled Banner" and she was accused of having left the room intentionally so as to avoid singing the anthem, but she said there was positively no truth in this.

She said that, although she wanted the United States to win the war, she did not want to see her native land crushed. She could not help feeling deeply attached to the land of her birth. Associate Superintendent Tildsley testified that she had answered all his questions honestly and frankly. The lawyers agreed to submit briefs and the committee reserved decision.

LI HUNG CHANG TREE DYING.

Foresters Trying to Save Memorial Planted at Grant's Tomb.

One of the Chinese trees that Li Hung Chang, the Chinese statesman and diplomat, brought all the way from China to plant under the shadow of the tomb of General Grant as a tribute to the American soldier whose character and achievements the Chinese admired greatly, is dying slowly, although it has grown to rugged size in its twenty-two years' life in a strange climate. Foresters of the Park Department are trying to renew the life of the tree because of the sentiment attached to it.

When Li Hung Chang visited the tomb of General Grant on his tour of the world in 1896 he expressed a desire to plant two immortal trees north of the mausoleum. Small shoots had been brought from China. After the ceremonies a tablet in English and Chinese was placed near the trees and an iron fence was erected around the small shoots to prevent injury to them. The Ginkgo tree flourished and is now about twenty feet high, and attracts much attention by its luxurious and peculiar-shaped leaves. The other tree, known as a Chinese bladder nut, or the Koelreuteria Paniculator, also flourished until this season.

When the leaves failed to come out on the tree this Spring J. S. Kaplan, the City Forester, found that some of the roots had been killed by the severe Winter. Immediately he began to dig a trench around the outer roots to attempt to restore life with a special fertilizer. But he fears that the work will be useless.

FEAR JAPANESE AS RIVALS.

Manufacturers of Surgical Instruments Tell of Trade Invasion.

Testimony was given before the United States Tariff Commission yesterday at the hearing held in the assembly room of the Merchants' Association, in the Woolworth Building, that the Japanese were serious competitors of American manufacturers of surgical instruments. In this respect it was shown the Japanese had displaced German manufacturers in the American market since the war began. Commissioner Edward P. Costigan presided.

Camille L. Gairoard, representing J. Wiss & Sons Co., Newark, N. J., said the labor cost was extremely high, and it would be impossible to compete with the Japanese and Germans after the war. Charles J. Pilling of George P. Pilling & Son, Philadelphia, said the Japanese product, while not so good at first, was rapidly improving until it had become serviceable and almost as good as that of Germany. He added that the extremely low wage rate in Japan made that country a serious contender in the American market.

Other witnesses testified that Germans were being used in Japan to aid the surgical instrument industry in that country. The need of adequate tariff protection for the American surgical instrument industry was emphasized in statements that in Canada, where there are no tariff duties on the instruments, the Japanese had driven the Americans from that field.

PALLADINO REPORTED AS DEAD IN ROME

Spiritualistic Medium, Who Was Exposed Here in 1910, Had Predicted End of War in September.

A report received in this city yesterday from Rome announced the death in the Italian capital of Eusapia Palladino, the spiritualistic medium of Naples, who had kept the world marveling at her alleged spiritualistic powers until a group of American scientists exposed several of her tricks as frauds when she made a visit to this country. The report from Rome stated that the medium, who was in her sixty-first year, had predicted the close of the war in next September, and that she had detailed her prophecy in a document which she had ordered to remain unopened until the first anniversary of her death.

If I were Palladino,
And you were Dr. Cook,
We'd fool those learned ninnies
And gather in the guineas,
Investigation keen—Oh,
Evade by hook or crook—
If I were Palladino
And you were Dr. Cook.

These were the closing words of Professor Joseph Jastrow, head of the Department of Psychology of the University of Wisconsin, in an article he wrote on "The Case of Palladino" in 1910, after the tricks of the medium had been exposed following a séance held at the home of Professor H. G. Lord of Columbia University on April 17, 1910.

Palladino, who convinced European scientists, including Lombroso, Richet, Morselli, and Flamarion, and even Sir Oliver Lodge, that she possessed a power through which is concentrated and manipulated an intelligent, supernormal, or supernatural power, had been asked to give a séance for THE NEW YORK TIMES in a room in the tower of the Times Building in May, 1910. At first the offer was accepted, but there ensued ten days of terms and counterterms, and finally the medium refused to accept the conditions, which included the presence of well-known prestidigitators at the séance.

Before this Dr. Hugo Münsterberg and Dr. Dickinson Miller had exposed the manner in which the medium performed her feats of table rapping. It was by means of detectives placed in the room where she did the trick that the investigators showed that the medium, by distracting the attention of those about the table from her feet, raised the table with the tip of her toe. She denied the charges, and soon afterward returned to Italy.

When she was 10 years old she had taken part in a séance at Naples. It was said when she came here that she first discovered her mediumistic powers on this occasion. The attention of European scientists was attracted to her and many were convinced that her powers were what she claimed for them. She traveled about Europe and first came to America in 1908.

EX-POLICE INSPECTOR GEORGE F. TITUS DEAD

Erysipelas of the Throat Suddenly Ends Life of Once Lawyer Who Rose Rapidly on Force.

George F. Titus, a lawyer whose love of detective work caused him to join the New York Police Department, in which he attained the rank of Inspector before his retirement for physical disability in 1914, died suddenly yesterday at his home, 601 West 113th Street, during a choking spell caused by erysipelas of the threat. Ex-Inspector Titus had been ill only four days. On last Saturday he had been one of those in the reviewing stand during the police parade. He was in his sixtieth year. He left his wife and a sister.

Following his retirement for an injury he suffered to a kneecap, making walking difficult, Mr. Titus joined ex-Police Captain Bernard Kelleher and organized a private detective agency, with offices at 115 Broadway.

Mr. Titus was born in this city and was graduated from New York University Law School with the class of 1879. A mining venture took him West, but, returning in 1888, he joined the police force as a patrolman attached to the Mercer Street Station, having been appointed to the force by Police Commissioner Voorhis, who later became Commissioner of Elections. The Commissioner had been a friend of Mr. Titus's father, and advised the future Inspector to stick to the law, but the latter only repeated his desire to do detective work. After he became a member of the force Mr. Titus rose rapidly, and within a year was a Detective Sergeant. He was reduced to the ranks by Commissioner Roosevelt, who afterward reinstated him, and in 1896 was promoted to be Lieutenant and one year later was made a Captain, taking command of the Eldridge Street Police Station.

Commissioner Green appointed him as Inspector in 1903, at the same time the late Chief Inspector Max Schmittberger was raised to the grade of Inspector. The Commissioner referred to the new Inspector as a skilled police officer, one against whom no charges of any sort had been recorded to his service on the force. Not long before this Mr. Titus had become well known in society circles because his personality and ability had frequently got him assigned to social affairs for the protection of the guests.

When Commissioner Bingham took charge of the Police Department in 1905 he transferred Mr. Titus from the Fifth District and placed him in charge of the Bureau of Repairs and Supplies at Police Headquarters. The Inspector was retained after the shakeup of April, 1907, when eight Inspectors were reduced to precinct commanders. When he retired, Mr. Titus left the Police Department on half pay for life.

Letters to The Times on Many Subjects Suggested by the War News

CHARLES AT CANOSSA

While the Austrian Emperor Does Penance His War Power Fades.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The fateful pilgrimage of King Henry IV. of Germany in the Winter of 1077 to the fortified Papal castle at Canossa, before whose gates he appeared in the garb of penance, is, to this day, considered by every German as one of the saddest episodes of his country's history. In the same light appears today and will, in all probability for generations to come, appear to the Austrian peoples the humiliating trip of Emperor Charles I. to the Imperial Headquarters of William II., who evidently, ever since his arrival to the throne of his brigand model ancestor, Frederick II., dreamed of translating into Prussian prose the great spiritualistic world-dominion policy of Pope Hildebrand.

While the crafty Hohenzollern was still in Vienna on that cold November day of 1916, shedding a few official tears over the mortal remains of his faithful ally and docile instrument, Francis Joseph, I had, in this very place, suggested that the statesmen of the Entente connect directly with Schoenbrunn, profiting by the accession of a new, apparently honest, energetic, and peace-loving ruler, by the death, at the Ballplatz, of the pro-Berlin Austrian foreign policy, and, finally, by the ingrained anti-Prussian sentiments of three-fifths of the population of the Austro-Hungarian monarchy in order to separate the two Kaisers.

The "Dear Sixtus" letters of March, 1917, fully confirmed my diagnosis of the disposition and character of Charles I., who was then and is, no doubt, still today anxious to throw off the humiliating, cruel yoke of Prussia. He was, it is true, taken red-handed and, for the time being at least, is being forced to eat his own words and to put, in the way of atonement for his momentary spirit of independence, his signature under a new "alliance" a la Brest-Litovsk.

The following comment, as quoted in your issue of May 15 by the Neues Wiener Tagblatt, one of the most popular dailies of Vienna, not only throws a lurid light upon the psychology of the "faithful ally" on the Danube, after nearly four years of common fighting and suffering, but also contains a ray of hope that all those camouflage conquests and "treaties" in the Balkans and Russia will be some day "nullified" and branded as scraps of paper by the victorious Allies:

> Do not let us deceive ourselves. This tone of antagonism to Germany is heard in many places. There are vast bodies of our population who still fail to see any value in our alliance with Germany, and who, even after the evidence of the last four years of faithful friendship on the part of our ally, resent the intimate connection between us and our dependence on one another. * * *
> Is it not true, perhaps, that these people dislike Germany merely because of the good order which prevails there in contrast with the disorder which prevails in Austria? * * *
>
> Whatever people may say or think, Austria-Hungary's future is by the side of Germany. This cannot be avoided, no matter how much hatred we display, no matter how much we give utterance to our envy.

Austria finds herself today in a position somewhat similar to that in which Russia was after the overthrowing of the Czar.

Let us be just toward those poor, ignorant mujiks, 85 per cent. of whom can neither read nor write and certainly had, in the March days of 1917, not the slightest idea of the real causes and purposes of the present war. These good-hearted but stupid masses of farmers and workingmen were as clay in the hands of the shrewd Bolshevist molders, whose politico-economical dreams were of the same family with those of the Prussian Junkers, with the difference, however, that the proletariat of the world should enjoy the spoils of the war.

Then, the Russian Army had, as it sincerely believed at that time, practically nothing more to fight for. The Austrian masses at this hour take a similar view of the present situation as far as the higher and ultimate interests of their country are concerned: Serbia, Rumania, and Russia have been successively and successfully invaded, conquered and cut up into pieces and morsels, the first for Germany, the latter for her poor relation, Austria.

The monarchy of the Hapsburgs has no quarrel whatever either of a political or economical nature with either France, England, or the United States, all three of them loved and respected by its peoples.

And Italy? Well, she really hates Austria, and has a right to hate her former oppressor, but there is not a single Austrian who genuinely hates Italy. To become slaves of Prussia, which deprived Austria of her beautiful rich province, Silesia, which beat her to her knees in 1866 and forced her, in 1914, into the present murder of nations? Never! Every Austrian would a thousand times rather give up the Trentino and even a part of the Dalmatian coast, and Empress Zita, the Italian Princess, can be relied upon for giving her O. K. to the transaction.

And Belgium, one of whose princesses their beloved Kronprinz Rudolph married forty years ago, in the hope of making her some day Empress of Austria? Belgium, whither also Archduke Maximilian, the unfortunate brother of Francis Joseph, went in 1857 to choose his bride? Catholic Belgium, whose shrines and priests are sacred to the 49,000,000 out of the 51,000,000 of Austro-Hungarian Roman Catholics?

I have a blind confidence in the statesmanship of the great triumvirate, Wilson, Lloyd George, and Clemenceau. They are on the bridge of the vessel, on the lookout for every possible opportunity to smash into irrecognizable shape the fantastic world-map of William. Let, therefore, the American people be cheerful and confident of the future.

Germany is morally and financially bankrupt. Neither she nor we know exactly when the sheriff will present himself at the gate, but she and we know that come he will, as sure as the morning follows the night. Her temporary "conquests" will be snatched from her hands. She is but sowing dragon teeth in the Balkans, Lithuania, the Ukraine, Finland, and so on. Her fleet in which she sets so great a trust, and on which she spent billions, is and will remain bottled up during the rest of the war in order to be, later on, dismantled by England or to be destroyed by her own hands, this to be one of the conditions of peace to be imposed upon her by the Allies. Her colonies, her entire foreign trade, are irretrievably lost. She has undermined, yea, ruined for generations to come, the formerly honored and prosperous position of millions of her children and children's children in practically all the countries of the world. Her Emperor and his family are not only hated—a strong man can bear hatred—but despised and ridiculed by even the lowest in our slums and prisons.

These are the solid assets of the Kaiser and his royal and princely conspirators; this is the balance sheet of the German people which stood, and still stands, behind the twenty-four crowned criminals of the Central Powers. I have imagination enough to see conquered Bill console himself some day by composing—Nero danced and sang on the burning ruins of his royal castle—a Wagnerian opera, "Die Koenig's Daemmerung," with Jeremiah's Lamentations as basis for his libretto.

DEMOCRATIC WOMEN.

Why New Voters Should Support the Administration.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Although THE TIMES opposed the extension of suffrage to women with unnecessary virulence, since the vote has been won its attitude in urging enrollment is very pleasing to the devoted workers for that cause. The editorial in today's issue states the facts clearly. To vote on election day is the duty of every conscientious citizen of this Republic. To take sufficient interest in civic affairs to see that men of character and ability are nominated is an equally imperative duty, and no woman can do this unless she enrolls with one of the parties on May 23.

The Feminist and Bolshevist element of our electorate are going to enroll and vote. They served notice last November on an appalled public that they intended to invade every woman's organization in the interest of their cause, from the smallest sewing circle to the International Council of Women.

Inasmuch as many women appear to be in doubt as to whether they should enroll with the Republican or Democratic Party, I herewith make a plea for feminine enrollment with the Democratic Party for the same reason that Jane Addams resigned her high position with the National Woman Suffrage Association to work for the Progressive Party. In explanation of her action Miss Addams said:

> Here is a great political party with an excellent prospect of success that has dared to write into its platform reforms that affect the economic well-being of ten millions of our people who constantly live in the shadow of acute and bitter poverty.

There is no question that the Progressive platform appealed to a large number of women. The reason the Democratic platform should be equally popular is that it has enacted into law many of the planks embodied in the Progressive platform. In other words, more good has been accomplished for the mass of the people during the six years of national Democratic rule than during the sixty years that preceded.

Among the important reforms may be noted a graduated income tax. For years the democratic nations of Europe had recognized the justice of taxing vast fortunes, but the Republican Party consistently and persistently refused to consider such legislation.

For more than fifty years bankers and students of political economy pleaded for a change in the currency. What happened? Ruinous panics every seven years or thereabouts, accompanied by doleful explanations on the part of experts that panics, like droughts, tornadoes, earthquakes, and "other acts of God" were wholly outside the realm of legislation. The Democratic Party has enacted a currency law that has worked so well that the Republican Party has not dared to criticise it in its platform.

No administration in the history of the United States has ever before seriously considered the interests of the working people. Among the achievements of labor may be mentioned the Industrial Relations Commission, the eight-hour day, the Children's Bureau, the workmen's compensation law, the Bureau of Labor, the safety of railway employes, and the child labor law.

As far back as 1905 the National Child Labor Committee submitted to Congress volumes of sworn testimony proving that there were 2,000,000 children under 14 years of age working in the mines, mills, and factories of the United States. President Roosevelt recommended the passage of the bill, which was referred to a committee and never heard of again till Mr. Wilson took office. Many Southern Democratic Congressmen opposed the National Child Labor bill, but President Wilson, unlike former President Roosevelt, did not end his support with mere recommendation. The President himself appeared on the floor of the Capitol and personally asked that the Child Labor bill become a law.

The last and the most important reason why women should support the President is that he is the most distinguished exponent of the Democratic Idea. In conformity with this idea the democracies of the world are fighting for their lives. The war, which will be known in history as The Crime, was provoked for the sole purpose of crushing them. No mental adult in the United States today has any doubt as to the perpetrator of The Crime, though the number of mental minors met with just preceding our Government's declaration of war was appalling. I use the word "appalling" advisedly, for it took our electorate three years to understand that the conflict precipitated by the greatest military organization the world has ever known was on behalf of the German Idea, and that the only alternative offered to the rest of the world was "be German or be killed." If the German Idea were to triumph the cause of woman would go back 2,000 years.

The great asset of the allied cause, therefore, is not Generalissimo Foch, but Mr. Wilson. While Ferdinand Foch will doubtless balk, batter, and defeat the German armies, Woodrow Wilson, more than any other man on earth, will tend to defeat the German Idea. In view of the unspeakable outrages that have been committed on women in the furtherance of this idea, the women of the United States should consecrate their lives to combating it, and as proof that they understand the menace should give a vote of confidence to the party of President Wilson.

SARA McPIKE,
Democratic State Committee.

CZAR AND KRAPOTKIN.

Autocrat and Anarchist Both Discredited in Russian Turmoil.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

For the first time, I met Prince Krapotkin, the living apostle of anarchy, several years ago, in London, in his own house, where I went to shake hands and congratulate him on his publishing an excellent book, "Mutual Help," containing the strongest arguments against the spirit of anarchy. In our long conversation I could not help hinting that most likely the prophet of anarchy had learned in England that "order is a divine institution," a principle ably illustrated in his book. Krapotkin warmly protested against my hint, saying that anarchy, as he understood it, agreed most thoroughly with order, and that it was the Czarist anarchy which at the very outset had incited and originated the anarchy of Bakunin which he, Krapotkin, adopted simply as a counterbalance to the Czarist disorder and despotism.

I knew that truism very well. Imperial order has always been bordering on disorder. It was the Czarist anarchy that provoked the revolutionary anarchy. And the Czar's rule was undermined by his own unruly ministers.

But the fact is that today in the whole of Russia there are no sorrier figures than the autocratic Czar shorn of all authority, and the apostle of anarchy, misunderstood and maltreated by his own blind followers. Yes, both the Czar and Prince Krapotkin are victims of anarchy. Even the Bolsheviki, who know no other law but their own sweet will, even they hunt down and exterminate the anarchists.

In our own country the anarchists ought to know at least that it is utterly futile to cry "Down with government!" before those who are adamant strong in their belief in "the government of the people, by the people, and for the people."

PETER J. POPOFF.

Flushing, N. Y., May 15, 1918.

COURAGEOUS NEUTRALS.

A Swiss and a Hollander Who Don't Conceal Their Contempt for Kaiser.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I read in the Dutch paper, De Telegraaf, about a trial in Geneva, and it gave me great pleasure to read about two neutrals of two different countries, who gave their opinion about this war. A Swiss lawyer, Mr. Charles Vuille, in Geneva had made an exhibition of the works of the Dutch cartoonist, Mr. Raemaekers. Most people here will remember these cartoons, showing the cruelties committed by the Germans during this war. The German Consul in Geneva made a complaint about this exhibition, said that these cartoons were an insult to Germany, and so the Geneva authorities feared that they might be dangerous for Swiss neutrality, and as a consequence of this Mr. Vuille was prosecuted.

In court different prominent Swiss persons who had been in Belgium and Northern France were called for the defense as witnesses. Mr. Valleton tells what he saw and heard in Senlis, Rheims, Noyon, &c. The inhabitants told him how the soldiers sprinkled the houses with petrol to make the fire burn; how they made the civilians, also women and children, go at the head of the German troops so that they might be the first killed by the allied soldiers in case of firing. The Judge asked for 1,000 francs fine and seizure of the cartoons.

Mr. Vuille, after his lawyer had asked for his freedom, took the stand in his own defense and said among other things:

"If Emperor Wilhelm had not noticed when he visited Switzerland in 1912 that we were better armed and more prepared to defend our country than Belgium, do you think that he would have hesitated one moment to violate our neutrality?

"This is a court where I can speak freely. I congratulate myself on being prosecuted. I hope that I proved to you the existence of the German crimes and thus also the right of Mr. Raemaekers to stigmatize them with pencil and brush. The only thing that I am sorry for is that the German Ambassador is not in this courtroom, so that he can see how I throw all my horror and contempt in the face of his master. Gentlemen, you may condemn me. I don't care. He who leaves this room condemned and stigmatized lives on the other side of the Rhine, the Attila of the twentieth century; he excommunicated his country from mankind and has put civilization 2,000 years back."

Let me add a line on a dispatch from The Hague saying that our Queen was ready to fly from Amsterdam. This is a mistake. In case of war our Queen and the whole Government must move from the open city of The Hague to Amsterdam. That is the best defended city of Holland. The Queen of Holland never will fly from her country. She is the bravest, most conscientious person on earth, and would never leave the country before the population wanted her to do so. She showed herself during this war as being very capable and absolutely neutral, and the people of Holland respect and admire her for this.

A HOLLANDER.

GERMAN TEACHERS.

Should They Be Kept in Their Places at College?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The letter of President MacCracken of Vassar College with inclosure from a "Special Assistant Attorney General," published in your issue yesterday, I think, lends untimely aid and comfort to the Teuton enemy.

If Dr. MacCracken wishes to keep at Vassar instructors who are German citizens and "known to be loyal to their native country," he may do so as long as the Trustees and the patrons of his college will stand for it.

Any "German citizen" in this country who manifests his "loyalty to his native country" has no place among instructors of American youth. Should not all such be eliminated from positions of this character, and carefully watched as candidates for internment, instead of receiving encouragement and opportunity to spread the poison of German ideas among the rising generation of Americans? "Loyalty to Germany" on the part of any one in this country today implies approval of all that is atrocious and base. The only German entitled to public encouragement and recognition in this country is the one who condemns and spurns the Imperial German Government and all its acts, and who avails himself of every opportunity to express his loathing and contempt therefor.

ARTHUR O. TOWNSEND.

New York, May 17, 1918.

More Nurses for the Wounded, the Chief Call to American Women.

In reply to a question as to the greatest need in France that American women might meet, M. Cestre, French exchange professor at Harvard, wrote the following letter:

I was often asked by American ladies, in the course of a lecturing tour through the States, what they could do in France to help the population or the army. Most of them were well-meaning, devoted persons, ready to risk the ocean voyage and go through much hardship to serve in a canteen or as clerks in a Red Cross office. Few of them thought of qualifying themselves to be nurses in hospitals, and yet the service of nurses is that which France needs most.

It is hardly possible to realize in this country what a harvest of wounded the battles of this gigantic war have reaped. To form an idea of it, you must have seen the dismal sight of the first relief posts—thousands of them—all along the front, and of the weary lines of ambulance cars unrolling their endless strings along the roads. Or, let one stand in a railway station of a large city, where a hospital centre is established, and see from hour to hour the trains of wounded arrive and unload their cargo of maimed humanity. One cannot stand and look; one feels the imperative want to help. Action and service alone can counteract the depressing influence that would come to idlers in this time of stress.

All those wounded are distributed in hundreds of hospitals, where the service of thousands of nurses is required: trained nurses, aids, and experts in household management. Frenchwomen have assumed this tremendous task. Many of them had qualified as trained nurses before the war, but the demand proved to be far beyond all peace preparations and expectations. All the women who were strong enough to stand the strain immediately entered the hospitals as aids, devoting part of the day to attending special courses, and gradually proving themselves as fully qualified nurses. Thus, by the devotion of the women, by the clear and speedy decision of our medical and military authorities, by the good-will and efficient co-operation of all, the French hospitals did not lack the necessary personnel.

But now, after nearly four years of war and of constant physical and moral tension, the Frenchwomen are beginning to be tired. Some of them were compelled to take a rather long period of rest under threat of nervous breakdown. Others are going on with their work who ought to rest and recuperate.

Soon the Americans in France are going to know the long lists of casualties and to see the long stream of wounded flow into their hospitals. They will need nurses and aids, in ever larger numbers, just at the moment when many American women ought to be ready to take the place of the most severely tried Frenchwomen in French hospitals.

The cry in France is for many American nurses and aids. Let all the well-intentioned American women whom I met and who asked me what they could do over there take the resolution to do, not only their bit, but their full share, and prepare to go to the hospitals. Let the American medical authorities think of the dire need of hospital helpers in France and not be too particular about training. Our French girls began work immediately (there was always something to do) and little by little were instructed in the scientific side of nursing. Let the same rule be applied to American women who are recognized strong enough and intelligent enough to be able to help and to learn.

One month's intense preliminary training ought to be sufficient. And why stick to the rule that only girls 25 years old are eligible? Why should not 21 be the age of service for girls as well as for boys?

Nurses and more nurses! This is the most urgent need in France today. This will become the more and more urgent need in the near future.

C. CESTRE,
French Exchange Professor at Harvard University.

A Prohibition Puzzle.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

"Though 80 per cent. of the area of the United States is 'dry,' and 60 per cent. of the people live in prohibition districts, the consumption of alcohol has steadily increased." This fact, which is stated by Professor Lindsay Rogers, is the great puzzle of prohibition.

A few days ago I had the pleasure of hearing Dr. Charles W. Eliot read a paper upon these complex problems of prohibition, liquor legislation, and the secret consumption of alcohol. In spite of his 84 years the President Emeritus of Harvard University is still sturdy, vigorous, upright, alert. He is absorbed in all war questions, and two, he believes, are of supreme importance—alcohol and camp diseases.

I had written to him and had asked, "Are we not going too far with this prohibition question?" This kind of thing may be carried to any length. The majority might prohibit other stimulants besides alcohol—tea, coffee, tobacco, and cocoa. This whole problem of liquor legislation has been obscured and complicated by a multiplicity of phrases which have in themselves little meaning, and which are not even founded upon experience or scientific observation. The physiologists themselves do not agree. They tell us that alcohol is a narcotic, not a stimulant. In reference to this Dr. Eliot said in part:

"Every man of sense knows that the first effects of alcoholic beverages on an individual or a group are to increase vivacity, talk, laughter, movement, and noise. As regards a national prohibition law, most people assume, or else they tacitly admit, that the time is ripe for trying it, and the conditions of the war are usually alleged to justify a sweeping social law which will be found irksome by a very large number of temperate persons. Even the well-known fact that the people have habitually evaded laws of this character, and have created their own drinking facilities where such exist, has had no influence on the present Prohibition Party.

"The result of a constitutional amendment will be to increase these secret drinking facilities. The question is, whether a secret vice like illicit drinking is not more harmful than those public facilities which the law will refuse to the people. I have always believed that a national prohibition law would be difficult to enforce. Experience has proved that such a failure has a tendency to develop illicit selling. It is in places where prohibition prevails that illicit selling assumes large proportions.

"I have advocated local option rather than prohibition in Massachusetts because it is easier to enforce fairly. Outward improvement secured by legislation does not necessarily imply a real diminution of drinking. There are limits to the law as an agency for promoting moral improvement. The law that is best administered is best. Restriction by local option I regard more favorably because it has a strong public opinion behind it. Our experience seems to corroborate the Scandinavian that suppression of bars may be more successfully carried out in rural districts than in urban. Something like the Gothenburg system of disinterested management of bars, where the profits go to public charities and improvements, might be serviceable here."

Dr. Eliot's views are broad, manly, and without affectation, and his faculty of seeing all points in a debate renders him one of the wisest thinkers that we have today. He was much interested in the recent work of physiologists in England. They have been content to work on the lines of ordinary men, and to do the best they could with current methods, which has made them unusually successful both in solving some of the puzzles of prohibition and in supplying what is lacking in our knowledge of the effects of alcohol. This mental attitude has led them to commend the use, during the war, of light wines, beer, and diluted spirits. Dr. Eliot reaffirmed his own opinion in favor of beer containing less than 2 per cent of alcohol. He agreed that recent experiments had modified the position of scientific students of prohibition who argue the matter on impersonal grounds.

Moreover, throughout the world a lack of exact knowledge still prevails about the action of alcohol on the human system. The most precise thing that can be said on the subject is that the temperate consumption of alcoholic liquors, in accordance with certain rules of custom and social life, may be considered harmless in the case of the majority of people—an opinion borne out by the massive experience of mankind in wine-drinking countries. The effects on industrial efficiency of beer, light wines, and beverages containing less than 2 per cent. of alcohol is a question that must have a complete answer. Some progress has been made in this direction by the Central Control Board of Liquor Traffic in England. The experts who were instructed to report on the effects of beverages of various alcoholic strengths decided that light beer and weak spirituous liquors were, generally speaking, unobjectionable. They were not inclined to grudge this measure of refreshment to men engaged in severe and continuous toil.

But alcohol is in nowise necessary to health; its main action is on the nervous system; it is narcotic rather than stimulant, and its food value is small. On other points our knowledge is still so vague and unsatisfactory that no conclusion can be drawn.

Dr. Eliot, while stating the case for and against alcohol, declined to comment further on the oft-quoted objection to prohibition—that liquor by all manner of illicit devices would flow through the gigantic legislation as freely as water through a fish net. He admitted, however, that there were many of these which now escape control, and could not be reached by a prohibition law.

A BENNETT STORY DENIED.

About the Ship News Reporter Who Was Made City Editor.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

After reading in the obituary sketches of yesterday so many foolish acts ascribed to James Gordon Bennett, I almost hesitate to enter a protest against the continued repetition of a fiction by Mr. Redding to the effect that, as a ship news reporter, I met Mr. Bennett at Quarantine and was made city editor on a bet with Colonel Watterson.

That fiction was first told of Felix De Fontain (without Watterson) about the time I went to The Herald from The Tribune, namely, February, 1873. It had no foundation in his case or mine—Mr. Redding merely transferred the old tale from De Fontain to me.

I was city editor in 1876-'77, until the war between Russia and Turkey broke out; and, being last man from the other side, was very properly transferred to the foreign desk, and I handled all the war news during nearly two years of that conflict. Mr. Redding's assertion that Mr. Bennett asked me my name when I boarded the steamer ought to suffice to disprove the story, because I had been nearly two years in Europe, meeting Mr. Bennett frequently, breakfasting, dining, and traveling with him. As a matter of fact, I never met Mr. Bennett on a steamer, except when I sailed with him on his yacht in European waters, when I was chief executive editor of The Herald, called to Europe to start the Paris edition. I am tired of that joke and hope friends and enemies will quit repeating it.

Help the Salvation Army.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Every word you have printed in THE NEW YORK TIMES in praise of the work of the Salvation Army is well timed and splendidly deserved. The reason why the present "drive" for war funds needs all the encouragement possible is because the work of the army at the front is not so well known in the United States as it should be. Will you permit me to bear personal witness as a newspaper correspondent to the self-sacrifice, courage, and unfailing cheerfulness of the Salvationists in three war campaigns—in Egypt, South Africa, and on the western front in France? It is nearly two years since I saw a band of Salvationists—one of thousands—chatting with the men in the trenches between Arras and Souchez. Every soldier, regardless of creed—Jew, Catholic, and Protestant alike—had a kindly word for them and appreciated their efforts. Since then their work has vastly extended, and consequently the need for funds. The drive ends this week. There is still time for the benevolent wealthy to make good the deficit in the treasury of those devoted men and women who have proved themselves at all times the constant friends of the poor and lowly. "The little fellows," as you say in THE TIMES editorial today, "have been giving their mites," as they always do, to the Salvation Army. "The Salvation Army is always at the front, whether the battle-line is one of war or peace."

WAR THE REVEALER.

Heroism of the French and Barbarism of Germans Little Known Before.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Hopeful signs are beginning to manifest themselves in Germany, rays of light are penetrating its darkness, tricklings of truth are percolating through its dikes of lies. The boches are confessing, with misgiving, that they never knew the French nation before the war, never appreciated it at its true value. They believed it degenerate, another Greece weakened by decadence and made a ready prey for another all-conquering Rome. It was doubtless the belief in this weakness that provoked the war. But the affair has turned out other than they expected. The weak have proved themselves strong, the decadent the most virile. And, probably to prepare their people for worse things, the German papers begin by making these preliminary confessions of error.

And other nations, too, especially France, have suffered disillusionment by this war, which has scattered so many theories, dispelled so many illusions. They, too, have been mistaken in Germany. She was considered a civilized nation, sentimentally poetic and with certain virtues, so satisfied with her accomplishments and great future as to bear no thought of revenge and Caesarism. It was believed her scientific accomplishments were in a way a moral guarantee.

But it was all delusion. Germany is not a civilized nation, but, instead, under the mantle of industrial and scientific progress, she has guarded intact her ancient barbarism. She has even developed and perfected it, her science contributing the most barbaric instruments, and even her church supporting her as never a pagan god responded to the demands of its priests. As Germany underestimated France, so France and her allies had overestimated Germany. And the world will correct both errors.

America, too, had shared the German opinion of France—that is, that part of America that really did not know France—and it, too, is acknowledging its error. But the confession is being modified by the inference that France has been changed, that her spirit has been tempered by the fires of war, that she has been reincarnated, as it were, on a higher sphere. But war does not change the individual; all psychologists who have followed the armies agree on this—the French are no better because of the war nor the Germans any worse, the shock of battle has only blown away the covering and left their souls bare.

No, war does not change the man; the effect is not individual. It overthrows political conditions, thrones tremble under its influence and revolutions are born; Czars are detached and blown away like dead leaves and republics are armed. But the atom in the whirlwind is not changed; war works no miracle in the individual; saints have sanctified it, but it has no power to sanctify others.

GERMAN DYES AND OTHERS.

Lack of Competition Attributed to the German Subsidy System.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The German Government subsidized the dyemaker so that his intermediates would be available for war purposes when war came. The dyemaker was subsidized in such a clever manner that he was enabled to sell colors all over the world at prices considerably below what they could be produced for in other countries.

His intermediate departments were always larger than the tonnage of dyestuffs produced required, wherever the intermediates were necessary or could be used for war purposes, and when war came the Government simply put the intermediate plants into use, and the other Governments who have been asleep to the system of subsidy employed by the Germans were compelled to build the intermediate plants to produce the war materials which the Germans had been piling up for years.

There is nothing in the dye industry which the American manufacturer is not capable of understanding, reaching up to and producing. Under competitive conditions I believe our manufacturers can do better than the Germans, but when the latter have an invisible system of protection which we do not have we cannot compete.

Suppose you need five intermediates to produce a dyestuff. Three of these may be used for explosives or for war purposes, and the Government directs you to produce five times as much of these three intermediates as you need for the dye consumption, and they pay you 300 or 400 per cent. profit on this part of the making up of that dyestuff. I do not think you need any more protection, and you certainly can undersell a competitor who has not Government subsidy, for that is what it amounts to in practice.

The above principle has been used by the German Government in protecting its various industries and that is why they have undersold all other countries. While pretending to be almost a free trade country they have had the highest invisible protection of any other country, and besides all this they had Government assistance in other ways; in financing, in shipping, and in fact, the German Government was paternalistic in the highest degree. After many years of this kind of protection, is it any wonder that they work out new things and cheapen and better their processes?

For instance, in the making of green crystals, toluol is required. When you nitrate touol, you get TNT. Now if a green crystal maker produces 1,000 pounds of toluol per day, and sells 800 pounds to the Government at four times what it cost him, the 200 pounds he uses would cost him nothing and he would have some money over, which money he could use in his laboratories and in foreign countries to sell cheaper whenever any local competition arose; and that is what they did, and, while the rest of the civilized Governments talked about protecting their manufacturers, Germany did it in an invisible manner to her own benefit and interest and to the detriment of others.

Time and experience and profits are all that are necessary. If our Government will protect our manufacturers properly, we will come to the front, for the American manufacturer is as capable and more inventive than any manufacturer in the world.

I have heard they did a similar thing with their census. They purposely took a large percentage off so that the other civilized nations would figure the possible army they could produce to be considerably less than that which they actually did produce in reality. Statesmen are supposed to know these things before they are known to the public, and when they do not know them until after the public knows them it is popularly supposed that, instead of being statesmen, they are politicians, and of course there is a difference.

WHITE GUARD CASE

The Bitter Struggle in Finland as a War on Bolshevism.

By HERMAN MONTAGU DONNER.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I am interested to see that in your issue of the 15th Mr. Santeri Nuorteva makes a more or less serious attempt to reply to my letter in THE TIMES of the preceding day, setting forth the facts of the civil war in Finland.

It is, of course, necessary for Mr. Nuorteva, as long as he is allowed to pose in the United States as what he signs himself, the "Representative in the United States of the Provisional Revolutionary Government of Finland," to appear to justify himself and his position, desperately in need as they are of such justification. His claim to do so, however, is doubly invalidated, first by the fatal circumstance that the body he purports to represent has not only ceased to exist, but was at all times without legal sanction or recognition, existing simply as the creation of brute force temporarily triumphant through the assistance of hired foreign arms; and, in the second place, by virtue of his own utterance at the Carnegie Hall meeting, the exact wording of which, taken from stenographic notes made on the spot, is as follows:

"I am not interested in the Finnish question from the national point of view; not at all. I would like to see Finland a part of the federated Republic of Russia."

Of course, this astounding declaration, which could never have been made before a genuine Finnish gathering, squares absolutely with the Bolshevist doctrines and was therefore enthusiastically applauded by an audience that was overwhelmingly non-Finnish.

The very fact that Mr. Nuorteva's audience on that occasion, supposed to mark his official welcome to these hospitable shores, was thus constituted, affords us a key to the whole situation. Mr. Nuorteva does not really represent the Finns, and he does represent the Russian Bolshevist movement, as is conclusively proved, if any additional proof be requisite, by his speech at the Marx centennial celebration at the People's House in this city three or four days ago, when he is quoted by the reporter of The New York Tribune as saying:

"Exactly as the autonomy of the various States in this country has lapsed, so will the boundaries now separating nation from nation be swept away through the action of the united labor movement of the world."

This was the Socialist gathering at which the statements were made and applauded that the British and French workingmen were against the Lloyd George and Clemenceau Governments, and that the Russian revolution shines as a beacon light to labor, because it furnishes the concrete proof of what the workers can do if they will! Yea, verily! Thus we see that Mr. Nuorteva is a Bolshevik first and a Finn afterward. How this elucidates not only his own chain of argument, but likewise the baleful conduct of the revolutionary body in whose name he speaks!

Mr. Nuorteva, in his would-be reply to my letter, starts out by remarking that "if the White Guard Government really represented the desires of the Finnish people it would not have been hiding in the sparsely settled northern part of Finland before the Kaiser's army came to its aid."

This is, of course, wholly false.

To begin with, the White Guard Government was at no time in hiding. In the second place, it was not in a sparsely settled region, but had its headquarters in the populous city of Vasa, capital of Oesterbotten, (East Bothnia,) historically the most important of all the provinces of Finland, and containing over 540,000 inhabitants; in the third place, it had repeatedly beaten the forces of the Red Guard, as well as those of the invading Russians, long before any of the Kaiser's unwelcome troops had entered the country.

Now, as I am to hold a brief for the Finnish people, let me, in the first place, make my own position perfectly clear. Neither Mr. Nuorteva nor any other individual can make me out to be a German sympathizer. No one can exceed me in the loathing I feel for the Kaiser and all the various instruments of his brutal tyranny, lust, and treachery that have plunged the world into a deluge of blood and misery beyond computation or description—my own war poems, which have been appearing off and on in THE NEW YORK TIMES for the best part of a year, have placed that fact beyond all cavil. But I am bound to acknowledge that, if there stands one single item to the Teutons' credit in the black ledger of their endless crimes during the last four years, it is to be found in the fact that they supplied arms to the Finnish Constitutionalists, after the latter had applied fruitlessly to France and Sweden for assistance, and were consequently faced with imminent destruction at the hands of the anarchist Red Guard and their allies, the Russian soldiery, with the inevitable threatened annihilation of the great structure of constitutional liberty and western culture which Finland had been engaged in painfully erecting throughout the centuries on the very edge of a huge semi-Oriental despotism!

In sooth, it is not I, but Mr. Nuorteva himself, who is indulging in the "distortion" of facts concerning the Finnish situation. And nothing could be more ludicrous, were it not so tragic, than to hear him and those for whom he speaks vaporing about "fair play to the Finnish people in their bitter struggle for freedom." ("Freedom?"—against the Bolshevik-Red Guard junta, yes!) It is exactly like the Kaiser weeping over the ruins of St. Quentin!

Let me as briefly as may be recapitulate the main historical facts which Mr. Nuorteva and his Red Guard sponsors so unblushingly garble in their endeavor to make gulls out of an unsophisticated American public.

At the time of the Kerensky interlude the Finlanders had elected a Diet in which the Social Democrat Party had a majority of 103 votes out of 200, owing mainly to the fact that the Socialists, with the encouragement of the Russian proletariat, reduced to silence within their own Czar-ridden land, had been extremely active in propaganda work for some years, whereas the great body of Finnish voters had become more or less apathetic under the incessant interference of the Russian bureaucratic tyranny with their exercise of the franchise and the activities of the Landtdag, repeatedly prorogued for daring to uphold the country's constitutional rights.

When, however, the Czar was finally overthrown, the voters of Finland responded en masse to the new electoral call for the Diet of October, 1917, with the result that the former Socialist majority disappeared, to be replaced by an anti-Socialist majority of 108. Here, then, was the true democratic voice of Finland uttering its mandate for the first time untrammeled and free! And immediately the first fruits of the new-won liberty were brought forth in the prompt passage by the Landtdag, in November, 1917, of an eight-hour working day law, and of the so-called communal law, whereby the franchise was extended to every one who had reached 20 years of age, irrespective of all property qualifications whatsoever.

So here, at length, was the triumph of constitutional freedom!

Nevertheless—mark it well! Now came the great crime.

The Socialists were duly invited to participate in the government and help in the framing of the needed legislative measures for the benefit of the country at large. But they refused—not only refused categorically to share the duties of parliamentary discussion and administration, but even declined the definite offer made to them by the disgusted majority to form a Cabinet of their own, on the purely selfish ground that they would be confronted with a non-Socialist majority in the Diet. Openly, spoiled children, they were secretely infinitely worse: traitors at heart to land and liberty. But let their surest condemnation proceed from the mouths of their own prophets!

Hjalmar Branting, the famous Swedish Socialist, universally acclaimed as one of the international lights of the movement, spoke as follows in the historic debate last February over the Finnish imbroglio in the Swedish Lower House:

> The Finnish revolution cannot be defended by pointing to the famine or to mistakes on the part of the Finnish bourgeoisie, much less to the fact that the Social Democrats had lost their majority in the Landtdag. This is no satisfactory reason for an appeal to support the revolution by brute force, when such has not been dictated by hard necessity.

And again:

> We are confronted with the question, how far one is justified in proceeding against the will of the majority and setting up might against right. We protest against every attempt to make prevail the will of the minority, from whatever quarter the attempt may spring.

And once more:

> There is cause for serious self-examination by the leaders of the Finnish Social Democratic Party to determine how far they themselves are without guilt. The tone in which for many years their propaganda has been preached in the columns of the party's chief organ, Tyomies, has been far too heated, provocative, and incendiary.

Let us listen next to what Gustaf Moeller, member of the Swedish Riksdag, and the Secretary in Stockholm of the Socialist Labor Party, had to say on March 12 after his return from a special mission to Finland to investigate the facts:

> Anything more imbecile than what has taken place in Finland cannot be imagined. In whatever way the civil war ends, the Finnish Social Democratic Party stands to lose tremendously. From having been a strong party, with the greatest potentialities for service to the working classes and the humble people of the community, it is now doomed to be cast back for several decades. And the longer the internecine struggle lasts the more terrible will be its consequences, and not least, from the economic standpoint, for the Finnish people themselves.

Finally, and this is perhaps the most damning of all, the Central Committee of the Social Revolutionary Party has just sent to the National Council of the French Socialist Party and to the Parliamentary Socialist group this most significant message:

> The newly formed Communist group, formerly Bolsheviki, must on all accounts be excluded from the Internationale for having called upon the most elementary principles of democracy to resuscitate forms of despotism and violence. They have betrayed the cause of international socialism by an infamous separate peace with the crowned despots of Central Europe, transforming Russia, disarmed, humiliated, and crushed, into an administrative supply house destined to sustain the German offensive in the west.
> The Social Revolutionary Party expresses the hope that all the national sections of the Labor Internationale will determine their attitude as regards the Bolshevist usurpers.

And what is true of the Bolsheviki in Russia is even more true of them in Finland, where in the persons of the Muscovite soldiery, loosed from all disciplinary bonds through the wholesale massacres of their officers, both before and after the outbreak of the revolution, they committed for many months an unbroken series of the most wanton depredations and violence of all kinds. It is absolutely untrue, as Mr. Nuorteva pretends, that General Mannerheim boasted that his troops took no prisoners, as also that the German invaders (who, after all, are but comparatively few in number) have been murdering Finnish men and women by the thousands; but it is the naked, ungarbled truth that from January to April the Red Guard, jointly with the Bolshevist soldiery, played the same rôle in the southern part of Finland, which alone they controlled, as the Germans have done and are still doing in Belgium and Serbia. Beginning with January last, they instituted a general blood-bath, of which the victims were all those guilty of the crime of being possessed of comfortable means or even of good breeding, and who refused to see eye to eye with the more rabid Socialists. Not even illustrious service to the State, to art and letters, to science, or to religion availed aught to exempt a man from the bloodthirsty vengeance of the Red Guard, recruited as it was by the scum of the prisons deliberately set free to prey upon the community—rather such marks of distinction singled out the bearer for surer destruction! not merely by swift assassination, but, in innumerably authenticated cases, by fiendish tortures—many of them of such a nature that one dare not print them—such as bespeak the devil still incarnate in man.

And if, in the last two or three months, there has arisen a sentiment in favor of a monarchy in Finland, a country, as we have seen, hitherto permeated through and through with the most virile democratic spirit, it is owing wholly and solely to the general reaction against this manifestation of the primeval brute drunk with a new lease of power, with which it has most unhappily become identified, in the minds of all Finlanders, the late revolutionary Government of the so-called People's Republic of Finland. And it is with this that Mr. Nuorteva has so unfortunately chosen to identify himself, this proletarian debauchery which has, God be praised, passed forever out of existence, condemned even by the higher-minded Socialists themselves outside of the country, that Mr. Nuorteva and his idealized Red Guard, posing as the heaven-sent saviors of the "only true democracy," came so perilously near to wrecking, even as their fanatical Bolshevist brothers have wrecked, what was once the mighty Russia!

CRUSH GERMAN ARMY PEACE LEAGUE ASKS

Taft Says America's War Machine Will Soon Startle the World.

FIGHT TO FINISH PLEDGED

Warning Against Teuton Diplomacy—Jusserand Predicts Triumph of Allies.

PHILADELPHIA, May 17.—Assembled in a "win the war" convention, the League to Enforce Peace today adopted a platform in which it declared that "until Germany is overcome the paramount and pressing duty of the United States and the other free nations with which this country is allied is to fight with unconquerable determination for a victorious peace."

The league reaffirmed its pledge to two supreme duties, to make the world safe by the defeat of Germany and German militarism, and to keep the world safe by a league of nations.

"Unstinted support" of the President and all others in authority "in all measures for victory over the military power of the Kaiser" was also pledged.

Continuing, the platform says:

"Apprehensive of the lure of an inconclusive peace which would enable the present masters of Germany to continue their dominance of Central Europe and sooner or later to menace again the peace and freedom of the world, the league feels that our people should be forewarned in case Germany should propose to make peace on terms that might well deceive the unsuspecting. Suppose she should offer to retire from Belgium and France, to cede the Trentino to Italy, even to relinquish all claim on her captured colonies, and to promise some kind of autonomy to the various races of Central and Eastern Europe. Such an offer would be highly seductive, and if we are not prepared to understand what it means, might well beguile the Allies into a peace which would be delusive, because unless the principle of militarism is destroyed the promises would be kept no better than those broken in the past.

"Autonomy of other races would mean their organization for the strengthening of Germany, until she had control of the resources of a population of 200,000,000 for her next war, and the abandonment of her former colonies would be made only with the hope of recoupment in South America on a more favorable occasion. Such a settlement would be a mere truce pending a strife more fierce hereafter. So long as the predatory militarism is not wholly destroyed, no lasting peace can be made."

Labor's Patriotism Hailed.

The platform welcomed the declaration of the representatives of organized labor made in the convention "that the workingmen of this country sympathize with these views," and rejoices in the pledge of organized labor to secure top speed and 100 per cent. efficiency in labor's part of the needed production of war material.

Governors and former Governors representing thirty-four States, at a conference in Independence Hall, held in conjunction with the convention, unanimously adopted a resolution pledging themselves in favor of carrying the war to a victorious end, to resist all compromise, and to repudiate all offers of peace that would leave Germany and her allies "unchastened and unsubdued."

"The issue is sharply defined," the resolution says. "The free nations must by arms enforce a freeman's peace or liberty will perish from the earth. In the military triumph of the Entente Allies, and in the organization afterward of all the resources of civilization against militaristic aggression, lie our hopes for the future of mankind. To this goal there is only one way. It lies through battle and bloodshed to victory."

Former President Taft presided at the Governors' conference.

To Startle World, Says Taft.

Mr. Taft was also among the speakers at the regular session of the convention. Touching upon delays in machine gun, airplane, and ship production, he said that things were now speeding up, and that the time was not far distant when America's war machine would startle the world.

"As a war measure to help us win the war, let us do all in our power to have the League of Nations established now," said Herbert S. Houston of New York. Mr. Houston is a member of the Committee of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States on the Economic Results of the War and retiring President of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World. Estimating the economic power which the League of Nations would possess, Mr. Houston said it would control three-quarters of the world's coal production; of steel and copper over two-thirds, of cotton and petroleum four-fifths of the world supply, of the essential food products a preponderance over the Central Powers much greater than the preponderance in population.

Among others who made addresses were William English Walling and the Rev. Charles G. Medbury of Des Moines, Iowa.

Jusserand Predicts Victory.

The convention ended tonight with a dinner, at which Ambassador Jusserand of France, Secretary of the Navy Daniels, and others spoke.

"We shall win!" exclaimed the French Ambassador, after delivering a withering arraignment of Germany. His declaration was greeted with prolonged applause. The Ambassador said that the league had set for itself a difficult task, and the present war would tell whether this organization could attain its object.

Secretary Daniels received an ovation when Mr. Taft, as President of the league, had paid a fine tribute to the efficiency of the navy. Mr. Daniels made a stirring address on the work on the destroyers, saying that they had sailed more than a million miles in wintry weather, fought eighty-one submarines, and convoyed more than 700 ships.

United States Senator John Sharp Williams of Mississippi suggested 450,000 men as a safe and reasonable limit for national armies after the Allies had removed the danger of German militarism by decisively winning the war.

"The treaty of peace, if a real peace treaty," he said, "should contain a provision that no country shall support an army of more than, say, 450,000 men trained for war. The greatest nations—Britain, France, Germany, Japan, the United States—need no more unless they premeditate offense and are seeking advantage beforehand by the anticipated quick use of force. Does this limitation deprive the strong and populous States of their 'natural advantage'? No. They still have that advantage in their reserves of superior populations and resources."

Hurrying to Help Allies.

Alton B. Parker of New York commented upon mistakes in America's war preparations, saying:

"We are all so impatient to help our allies—with whom, through co-operation against the common enemy, we are forming relations of friendship that will never be broken—that we find it difficult to make due allowance for the fact that in every great and hurried undertaking of man from the beginning of the world mistakes have been made. We have made some, and far more than we would have made if the necessities of our allies were not pressing so heavily upon us. Those necessities command us to hurry, hurry, hurry, and we are hurrying with all our might. None know that better than the distinguished Ambassadors representing England, France, and Italy, and who honor us with their presence tonight."

GERMANY TO FORCE THE YOUNG TO MARRY

Commission Also Would Punish Childless Couples—Heavy Decline in the Birth Rate.

LONDON, May 17.—The German commission appointed to examine the decline in the birth rate in Germany has reported a recommendation for the compulsory marriage of Germans before their twentieth year is passed, according to a dispatch to The Daily Express from Amsterdam.

Financial assistance would be granted by the State, according to this plan, which provides penalties for those failing to comply. Provision is also made for the punishment of married couples who remain childless.

A report compiled by the Local Government Board based on information from German sources, shows a fall in the birth rate in Germany during the three years 1915-'17, inclusive, equivalent to the loss of 2,000,000 infants. Forty per cent. fewer births occurred in 1916 than in 1913. These figures are compared with a decrease of 10 per cent. in the birth rate in England and Wales.

The infantile death rate in Germany has been kept well down, but, nevertheless, the report shows is 50 per cent. higher than in England and Wales. This fact has led to a large extension of infant welfare work in Germany, in which voluntary societies have played an active part, but the movement is becoming one increasingly in the control of the municipalities.

The infant mortality rate in Germany in 1913, it is shown, was 151 in a thousand, as compared with 108 in England and Wales. The rates in 1914 for Prussia, Saxony, and Bavaria were, respectively, 164, 173, and 193 in a thousand. An abnormal increase in infant mortality during the first months of the war is shown by the fact that in Prussia, in the third quarter of 1914, the rate rose from 128 to 143; in Saxony from 140 to 242, and in Bavaria from 170 to 239.

The records in England and Wales do not show any abnormal mortality among infants during the early months of the war.

ARMY FOOD SCOUTS ANGER DUTCH FARMERS

Latter Resent Charges of Hoarding, Threatening to Plow Up Sown Fields.

AMSTERDAM, May 17.—Extreme steps taken by the Dutch authorities in sending troops to search farms for the purpose of seizing wrongfully withheld stocks of grain has aroused such indignation among the farmers affected that they threaten to plow up sown fields. In some cases they are alleged to have taken this unpatriotic course.

To justify military action the authorities have issued statistics showing that in the Haarlem Lake district it is estimated that 39 per cent. of the wheat crop, 43 per cent. of the barley, 60 per cent. of the beans, and 83 per cent. of the green peas have been withheld.

The food shortage in Holland is becoming serious. Not only is wheat scarce, but other foodstuffs as well. It has been decided that on June 13 butter and other fats will be added to the ration list. Tea stocks have long been exhausted, and the available supply of coffee is dwindling rapidly.

For some weeks temporary measures taken by the Ministry of Agriculture have resulted in the almost total disappearance of meat from the dinner tables. Fish and eggs have taken the place of meat. The potato ration was also reduced recently. The situation as a whole has given an impetus to hoarding.

In the meantime the Government has not obtained German permission to send three ships to America for food. Neither has the new economic agreement with Germany materialized, apparently because the Dutch shrink from paying the price from their precious stocks of foodstuffs which Germany demands for her coal, iron, and other products. As a result, coal imports from the east have been at a standstill for weeks.

Nevertheless, an agricultural expert writing in the Tyjd says that the prospects for the Winter are for much improvement over last year, owing to increased cultivation and other causes.

London Abolishes Meatless Days.

LONDON, May 17.—Meatless days in London restaurants are abolished, beginning today. Restrictions on eating meat in restaurants have been made unnecessary by the meat rations system now in force.

FEAR OF FEMINIZING ARMY.

Austria Enrolling 150,000 Women a Month for the Field.

BERNE, May 17.—Austrian newspapers are exhibiting concern at what they call the effeminization of the army.

It appears that 36,000 women and girls are now employed in the auxiliary services as clerks, servants, &c., and that others are being enlisted at the rate of 150,000 a month. They are being enrolled at Vienna and sent into the field.

TEN KILLED BY A TORPEDO.

French Steamship, Attacked in Mediterranean, Reaches Port.

PARIS, May 17.—Ten passengers, one European and nine Arabs, were killed when the French steamship Atlantique was torpedoed in the Mediterranean early this month.

The steamship managed to reach a port by her own means, it is announced. She measures 6,447 tons.

Italo-German Agreement on Prisoners.

BERNE, May 17.—An agreement has been reached between German and Italian Commissioners in regard to the exchange of sick and crippled prisoners of war and the management of prison camps. It will be submitted for ratification of the two Governments.

WOMEN TO AID IN DEFENSE.

Auxiliary to American Society Formed by Miss Marbury.

Arrangements were made yesterday under the direction of Miss Elisabeth Marbury for the formation of a Woman's Auxiliary to the American Defense Society, Inc., at the request of the Executive Committee of that organization. A program has been adopted which includes universal service for citizens at home and abroad; the fighting of Teutonic influence in every form; not to buy goods made in Germany; to arouse patriotism in America; to advocate military training, and to refrain from public criticism liable to destroy public confidence.

The final clause reads: "To dedicate our souls to God and to our country and to determine to make any personal sacrifice which may be demanded of us in order that 'they shall not pass.' Women wishing to join the auxiliary should write to Miss Elisabeth Marbury, 123 East Fifty-fifth Street.

NEW SUBWAYS MAY OPEN ON JUNE 15

Service Board Says It Awaits Action by Board of Estimate on Appropriation.

FINAL PLANS COMPLETED

First Trains to Proceed North of Times Square and Grand Central After Midnight.

Every effort is to be made by the Public Service Commission to put the Seventh Avenue and Lexington Avenue subways in operation on June 15. A report by a special committee consisting of Commissioners Whitney and Hubbell was to the effect that, if the Board of Estimate immediately approved an agreement now pending before it between the city and the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, the two most important lines of all of the rapid transit work would be running in less than a month.

The agreement provides for an appropriation of $300,000 to pay for changes made necessary for the operation of a shuttle service between Times Square and the Grand Central Terminal. Some of the money is also needed for necessary work at Borough Hall and Atlantic Avenue, Brooklyn. This agreement was sent to the Board of Estimate on Feb. 20, but no action has been taken.

Because of the fear that the men employed on the subway work will leave to accept better paid employment offered by the Federal Government, the commission is eager to hurry forward the work to the point of operation without a minute's delay. It was said yesterday that the only thing that can now prevent operation of the two trunk lines will be the failure of the Board of Estimate to act promptly on the pending agreement.

The date to begin running the two lines has been set on a Saturday, but it is likely that the first trains will not pass over the new rails north of the Grand Central on Lexington Avenue and south of Times Square on Seventh Avenue, south of Thirty-fourth Street, until the early hours of Sunday morning. After all of the theatre crowds and the other Saturday night revelers are at home, with no work on Sunday to make them rise early, gangs of workmen, by the light of swinging electric lamps will set to work in the dim tunnels to break the connections between the present subway that leads through Forty-second Street and to connect the old rails with the new.

Before the time comes for this change engineers of the commission will have figured out the precise time the work will take, the needed apparatus will be placed within easy reach, and at a given signal the subway trains will stop all along the line, and the crews of the trains will await the signal to go ahead over the new routes. Just how long the trains will have to stop before they get the signal to go ahead is not yet known, but it is believed that the pause in traffic will not be especially noticeable because of the time set for the change. It may mean a delay of two hours, but it may be possible to do the work in less than an hour.

When the two trunk lines begin running the stations for the shuttle trains at Times Square and the Grand Central will also be in order, so that those who journey forth on Sunday, June 16, will be able to ride over the new routes with the same freedom as if the lines were a year old. At least that is the present plan, and it will happen if nothing unseen occurs in the meantime and the Board of Estimate acts on the pending agreement. A statement made by the commission yesterday read:

"It cannot be too strongly pointed out that the operation of the Seventh Avenue and Lexington lines, costing $30,000,000, cannot be had until these agreements are approved by the Board of Estimate in order that the money may be available for the doing of the necessary work to connect the two lines with the old subway. The date of operation is, therefore, fixed for June 15 provisionally upon prompt action by the board of Estimate."

TO UNVEIL POWELL TABLET.

Lane to Dedicate the Grand Canyon Memorial on Monday.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—Franklin D. Lane, Secretary of the Interior, who is now on a trip West, will dedicate the Powell Memorial Monument on the rim of the Grand Canyon on May 20. Governor Hunt of Arizona and the three survivors of the Powell Grand Canyon expedition of 1871. S. V. Jones of South Dakota, F. S. Dellenbaugh of New York, and J. K. Hillers of Washington, have been invited to attend the ceremonies.

This memorial, which is a stone altar supporting a bronze tablet, celebrates one of the most daring exploits of the pioneering of American science. Major John Wesley Powell's first passage of the Grand Canyon in 1869, with a party of nine men in four boats, was one of extreme hardship and danger. One of the boats, with most of the explorer's provisions and their scientific instruments, was lost, and four men who deserted in the canyon and succeeded in climbing the cliffs were killed by Indians. Powell made a second passage in 1871. There are no living members of the first expedition.

In 1881 Major Powell became Director of the United States Geological Survey. He died in 1891.

POLICE AID STAMP SALE.

Glee Club Sings at Library Tent—Theatrical District Responds.

The Police Glee Club of fifty voices with quartet sang to a crowd of 2,500 persons in front of the War Savings tent at the Public Library last evening. After the songs by the policemen, Miss Helen Swain sang the "Star-Spangled Banner." More than $5,000 worth of stamps was sold. The afternoon sale was the most successful in the history of the booth, amounting to more than $7,500.

An active War Savings campaign is being waged in the theatrical district. Among the workers are several Canadian officers of the Princess Pat's regiment, which was practically wiped out at the Marne. Since War Savings Truck No. 1 began its campaign in the theatrical district four weeks ago it has added $125,000 to the War Savings fund and last night the managers expected to make the total $150,000.

$100,000 Libel Actions Dropped.

Libel actions for $100,000 each brought in the Bronx Supreme Court against The Press Publishing Company, The Home News Publishing Company, and James O'Flaherty, Jr., by Stephen A. Nugent, Deputy Commissioner of Charities, were discontinued yesterday. O'Flaherty is owner and publisher of the Bronx Home News, a tri-weekly, and the actions were brought following the publication of proceedings in the Morrisania Police Court last October, where it was testified, in a John Doe inquiry, that Nugent shared part of the alleged payment for a judicial nomination with one of his constituents. The proceedings failed and the matter was dismissed by Police Magistrate McGeehan. The terms of the discontinuance of the suits are not revealed.

LAUNCHED FOUR SHIPS ON WEDNESDAY LAST

American Yards Have Averaged One Wooden Vessel Daily Since May 1.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—Shipyards of the United States have launched one wooden ship each day since May 1, according to an announcement of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, thus adding 60,000 tons to the American merchant marine. It is stated also that the average for the last four weeks was slightly better than one ship a day.

Wednesday last was the banner day and four ships were launched. This established a new record in wooden ship building in the United States. The vessels were: Pascagoula, 3,500 tons, from the Dierks-Blodgett Company, Pascagoula, Miss.; Kuwa, 3,500 tons, from the Grant-Smith-Porter Ship Company, St. Johns, Ore.; Blackford, 4,000 tons, Gray's Harbor Motor Ship Company, Aberdeen Wash.; Basco, 3,500 tons, from the Universal Ship Building Company, Houston, Texas.

Much satisfaction was expressed today also in a favorable report concerning a trial trip of the concrete ship Faith, which was completed recently at San Francisco. It read:

"Strong wind, choppy sea, very slight swell, sufficient pitching to make some of the passengers seasick. Speed, 10.2 knots; absence of vibration very noticeable. Both Captains in charge of vessel state it is fully equal, if not superior, to any steel ship they have ever handled of same size and equal power. Strainograph records show a maximum range longitudinal stress amidships 1,200 pounds per square inch in steel deck and bottom."

ITALIAN BANKER ARRESTED.

Prisoner Asserts That He Was Once Mayor of Naples, Italy.

Ecora Castelli, a private banker, with an office at 624 Third Avenue, Elizabeth, N. J., who said he was a former Mayor of Naples Italy, was arrested at his home, 12 Lehigh Place, Roselle Park, N. J., yesterday, on a charge of receiving money for transfer to foreign countries. It developed that, although Castelli had received a sum for transfer, said to be in the neighborhood of $4,000, the funds had not actually been sent out of the United States. The arrest followed an investigation conducted by Frank Smith, Bank Commissioner of New Jersey.

Castelli, who is 55 years old, has been in this country about twenty years. He was lodged in the Union County Jail pending his arraignment this morning in the Elizabeth Police Court.

Italian circles in New York were skeptical last night of the reported assertion of Castelli that he was a former Mayor of Naples. Luigi Solari, until recently President of the Italian Chamber of Commerce in this city, said last night that as a rule Italian cities were not accustomed to elect young men to be Mayors. Mr. Solari, while a frequent visitor to Naples, said he had no recollection of a Castelli being Mayor of Italy's biggest city.

Consul General Tritoni, who recently arrived in New York to take up his official duties here, said at the Holland House last night, that he was unable to say whether Castelli had been Mayor of Naples until he consulted his records at the Consulate offices today. In other Italian quarters it was suggested that Castelli might have held a municipal position in Naples corresponding to that of an American Alderman.

FIGHT GERMAN INFLUENCE.

Bronxville Women Say Group of Persons There Opposes Government.

At a meeting in Bronxville yesterday, 300 women took steps to rid the village of everything German for the duration of the war. Led by Mrs. Caspar Whitney, a branch of the American Defense Society was organized and a set of resolutions passed looking to the suppression of German language papers in the village. The conduct of "certain persons in Bronxville," who were declared to be pro-German, was also criticised, and methods were discussed to nullify their influence. The resolutions said in part:

"Since it is generally known that there is a group of persons in this village which, while not openly antagonistic to our Government, still give evidence of a disposition to thwart the efforts of our Government by voicing utterances tending to create suspicion in the American mind as to the good faith of some of our allies, by insinuating that something may yet be said on behalf of Germany, by refusing to buy Liberty bonds, War Savings Stamps, or to aid in other patriotic efforts; therefore, be it resolved, that it becomes the duty of every person here present to assist in creating such public opinion that these persons will cease their insidious endeavors to undermine the morale of our people or that they be dealt with in such a manner that they can do no more mischief."

After the passage of these resolutions, which were signed by all the women present, it was decided that they would be sent to the Board of Trustees of Bronxville. Mrs. Oliver Cromwell Field addressed the meeting, and told of her work in New York and hoped they would be just as successful at Bronxville.

SUED FOR GUEST'S INJURY.

Court Awards $4,000 to Woman Hurt in Automobile.

An automobile owner is responsible for any injuries sustained by a guest during an automobile ride, in the opinion of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court in Brooklyn, as expressed in a decision handed down yesterday in the suit of Mrs. Josephine C. Lowell, wife of Sidney V. Lowell, ex-Corporation Counsel of the City of Brooklyn, against Mrs. Harriett Williams. Both women live in the fashionable Columbia Heights district of Brooklyn.

Mrs. Lowell received a verdict of $4,000 in the Nassau County Supreme Court for injuries received when the Williams automobile, in which she was riding at Mrs. Williams's invitation, struck a motor truck on the Jericho Turnpike, Long Island, on Nov. 5, 1915. Mrs. Lowell was thrown through the windshield. It was testified the automobile was being driven at forty miles an hour by James Hogan, Mrs. Williams's chauffeur. Mrs. Williams appealed.

In the prevailing opinion, written by Justice Kelly, it was stated: "The mere fact that the plaintiff was a guest, riding free, accepting a courtesy and kindness, does not relieve the owner from the negligence of her servant. In this age of radical reforms in the relations of mankind, there seems to be no better rule or different doctrine than that which we have followed in this case."

MAJOR A. A. REIMER RESIGNS

Wife's Breakdown Causes New Jersey Officer to Leave the Service.

Special to The New York Times.

ORANGE, N. J., May 15.—Like his brother, Frederic A. Reimer, who resigned several months ago as Major of the New Jersey Battalion of Engineers, which he organized, Major Arthur A. Reimer of East Orange has withdrawn from the 108th Engineers.

Major Reimer explained that while at Camp Merritt he was informed that his wife had suffered a nervous breakdown and that the shock of his departure might cause death. He at once left for Washington and his resignation was accepted. In view of Mrs. Reimer's condition, he said officials at Washington approved of his action. Mrs. Reimer said that she had partially recovered and that if she regained her health would consent to her husband again joining the army.

TUCKAHOE SAILS TODAY.

Bound for Europe on the Fortieth Day Since Her Keel Laying.

Special to The New York Times.

AN ATLANTIC PORT, May 17.—The United States steel collier Tuckahoe, the latest addition to the American-owned fleet, and a steel vessel built in record time under the directions of the United States Shipping Board, will sail, unless something unforeseen occurs, from this port tomorrow morning on her maiden trip for a European port undesignated. From the laying of the keel of the ship to the sailing hour will mark a span of just forty days, and in the opinions of officials it is the world's record for speed in the construction of a steel ship of this size for sea traffic.

The Tuckahoe was launched at the yard of the New York Shipbuilding Corporation at Camden, N. J., on Sunday, May 5, 90 per cent. complete, and just twenty-seven days after her keel had been laid on the marine railway. Completed and under her own steam, the Tuckahoe reached this port early this morning, manned and officered for her maiden trip. A small army of stevedores, working in four-hour shifts, is being employed tonight in order that the ship may be ready to sail some time tomorrow morning. The Tuckahoe is of 5,548 tons burden and has a speed of twelve knots an hour.

ASSAILS RENO DIVORCES.

Justice Morschauser Decides for Husband Whose Wife Got One.

In granting to Frank W. Miner of New Rochelle the divorce he asked against his wife, Mrs. Francina A. Miner, Justice Morschauser, in the Supreme Court at White Plains yesterday expressed his disapproval of Reno divorces. Mrs. Miner, he said, got a divorce at Reno, Nev., on Nov. 16, 1916, and the same day was married to Henry A. Siebrecht, Jr., and went with him to California, where they now live. Miner, a resident of New York State, did not appear in the Nevada action.

"The State of Nevada," said Justice Morschauser, "may adjudge the status of its citizens toward a nonresident, but when it is attempted to enforce such judgment in this State, affecting one of its citizens and force upon him a status against his will and against his consent, such judgment will be declared to be without force or effect; especially is this so when contrary to public policy or standard of public morals of this State. So far as we are concerned, the defendant is the wife of the plaintiff. The plaintiff is entitled to the judgment asked for, a divorce in this State."

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Steel Issues Lag Behind in an Irregular Session—Activity in Marine.

Yesterday's stock market was feverish, but much less so than its predecessor, and the contrary currents were more clearly in evidence. The advance was held in check, except in a few issues like Marine and American Can, by heavy and persistent selling of the Steel issues, which met every effort to bring them back into leadership. The result was a decline in United States Steel, which closed almost at its lowest price for the day after an early advance to 112¼, and in the other leading Steel shares, with a violent rise taking place in the new market leaders.

The uncertainties which have attended the negotiations between the International Mercantile Marine Directors and the British authorities for the sale of the vessels under the British flag have fitted in handily with the operations of traders who were conversant with the progress of the plans. The market showed clearly yesterday in the rapid appreciation of the 6 per cent. bonds that the denial of an approaching settlement between buyers and sellers was what Wall Street calls technical, and it became known after the special meeting that terms had been arrived at along the lines discussed some months ago. Marine preferred was the most active issue on the board, with fluctuations extending over 6 points, and while it reacted in the afternoon it nevertheless retained a gain of a full 5 points at the close. The 6 per cent. bonds, which will have to be retired at 110 if the plan of liquidation goes through, moved up 3¼ points, and the common shares advanced 2⅝.

It was reported from the floor of the Exchange that a large block of Steel would be sold if the price fell to 110, but it was evident that selling had a better basis than the attempts of professionals to catch the stop order. The rise had been so rapid that traders who would ordinarily have changed positions some days ago found themselves long of stock on which they had a wide margin of profit, and there was apparent yesterday a good deal of liquidation under cover of the spectacular strength in other departments. At the same time there was a marked contraction in activity, although the total transactions again passed the million mark. It was a traders' day and they made the most of it.

Sentiment in the financial district has been improved as a result of the reactions of several points in some of the new speculative favorites. Money continues fairly easy, call loans commanding 5½ per cent. for the most part yesterday, and the demand for investment bonds continues to broaden. Back of other cheerful news heard in Stock Exchange circles are reports of a steadily growing interest on the part of the public evidenced by increased business over branch office wires.

TRADING DULL IN LONDON.

War Loans Foremost—Rise in Insurance Securities.

LONDON, May 17.—Money was in ample supply today. Discounts were easy.

The volume of business in the stock market was small, but there were several good features. The war loans were foremost, being influenced by the belief that money would soon be cheaper.

Bank and insurance securities rose on renewed inquiries. The favorite mining shares were lively. African land stocks were in demand. Shipping stocks hardened and oils were firm.

Prices Firm on Paris Bourse.

PARIS, May 17.—Prices were firm on the Bourse today. Three per cent. rentes, 59 francs for cash. Exchange on London, 27 francs 15¼ centimes. Five per cent. loan, 87 francs 70 centimes.

Carolina Power and Light Earnings.

The Carolina Power and Light Company shows in its consolidated income account a gross operating revenue of $1,826,303 in 1917, an increase of $351,385 over the preceding year. TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Gold from Canada.

A consignment of $1,000,000 in gold is expected from Canada today. The shipment, it is understood, is being made by Canadian banking institutions for the purpose of improving the exchange position between New York and Montreal. Some time ago when Canada sent gold to this country an agreement was made to the effect that the gold would be returned to the Dominion within a stated period.

Canada May Issue Securities Here.

A telegraphic report from Toronto yesterday announced that Sir Thomas White, Minister of Finance, had resumed his duties at Ottawa following conferences in Washington with United States Government officials and with the Earl of Reading, the British Ambassador and High Commissioner. Sir Thomas was quoted as saying that he had obtained permission from the Capital Issues Committee for the flotation of some Canadian securities in this country. Local bankers said that they had not yet been informed of any specific plan for the sale of Canadian securities, but expressed the belief that if the terms were made right it would be possible to dispose of a considerable block of bonds. Presumably Sir Thomas conferred with the old Capital Issues Committee, as the new one was not sworn in until yesterday, and it is likely that whatever assurances the old committee gave him will have to be considered and confirmed by the new committee. Should a Canadian province or municipality put out a dollar loan in this country it will be the first foreign financing to be done in this country since the Government set up the machinery for supervising the issuance of new securities.

New National Banks.

The Controller of the Currency reports that for the week fourteen applications for national bank charters were received, the same amounting to $1,235,000. During the week, he issued four charters for new banks, their capital totaling $100,000. The increase, by $50,000, of the capital of one institution was approved.

A Reaction.

Outside of the Mercantile Marine shares, practically the only stocks to reflect a demand greater than the supply yesterday at the end of trading on the Stock Exchange were certain specialties. The declines running from 1½ to more than 2 points among the shares which enjoyed a sharp rise on other days of the week apparently reflected both profit taking, and the result of short sales. Floor traders were reported as active as on Thursday and Wednesday, seeking profits on the short side of Steel and Baldwin Locomotive. Specialties which moved contrary to the general market were Kings County Electric, up 4⅝; New York Dock, up 2¼; Royal Dutch, up 2½, and United Fruit, which gained 2 points.

The Baldwin Locomotive Pool.

With little heard in the way of corporate developments in Baldwin Locomotive of a sort to affect the stock, purchasers at Thursday's prices were moved to wonder whether they had acquired some of the stock formerly owned by the pool. As is usually the case, definite information could not be obtained whether or not the pool had disposed of any of its holdings.

Houston Oil Jumps Forward.

The mystery back of Houston Oil stock on the Curb was heightened yesterday by another sharp bulge variously reported as extending from 6½ to nearly 10 points. Brokers specializing in the issue said that the bid at the close was 56, compared with a price of 45½ in the morning and telephoned inquiries for offerings late in the day brought even higher quotations. The company has been chary about discussing its development work for some months past, and this, coupled with a small floating supply and many rumors, has helped to bring about a number of violent bulges since the price began to move forward from 20 last Autumn.

Watching the Scoreboards.

At every meeting of the Directors of the American International Corporation the board members have an opportunity to observe the progress being made at Hog Island shipyard. A huge scoreboard has been installed in the board room, showing graphically the plan of the yard with its fifty ways, and on each way the outline of a ship, which is moved up a scale to show the percentage of its completion.

Cotton—and Cotton.

While dabblers in the cotton market and outside observers thereof are chiefly exercised over the fluctuations in futures, the men who deal in "actual," as they call it for short, continue to be more worried over the question of price differences between grades. To the dabbler in cotton futures there is only one kind of cotton, but some dealers recognize and do business in eighty-odd grades and qualities. Ordinarily the price differentials on contracts are not hard to adjust, but this year the equilibrium has been wofully upset by the Government's insistence in its orders on high-grade cotton, coupled with the fact that the percentage of lower grades in last year's crop was rather higher than normal. The price defferences have been growing wider and wider in consequence, and a business basis harder to calculate.

Denver & Rio Grande Negotiations.

Some misunderstanding, it appears, has been feared by men concerned in settling the tangled affairs of the Denver & Rio Grande Railroad by the allusion to the recent arrangement for paying off its current indebtedness as a "plan." Such as it was, the arrangement, which will soon be completed by the payment to the receiver by the Railroad Administration of $1,500,000 advance on the commandeering rental, went no further than the clearing up of various comparatively small floating obligations, unpaid interest coupons, &c., and generally leaving a clear issue with the Equitable Trust Company as trustee of the Western Pacific bondholders, the one judgment creditor.

New Shipbuilding Propositions?

Officials of Gaston, Williams & Wigmore, Inc., yesterday formally disclaimed the story that the corporation, following the recent changes in its management, is going to add to its merchandising and shipping business a shipbuilding venture. There are persistent rumors, however, of several new shipbuilding enterprises, in which many shipping men's names are being mentioned, although nothing definite could be learned about them yesterday.

Receiver for Christopher St. Line.

Supreme Court Justice Greenbaum yesterday appointed Lyttleton Fox referee to sell the franchises and other property of the street railway line running from the East Twenty-third Street ferry to the Christopher Street ferry, which has been owned by the Central Crosstown Railroad Company. The sale was ordered in the suit by the Guaranty Trust Company to foreclose on a $3,000,000 mortgage made in 1902 as security for a bond issue. The sum due on the mortgage is $3,545,434. The date of the sale will be fixed by the referee.

WAR FINANCE BOARD SWORN INTO OFFICE

McAdoo Tells Directors of Federal Corporation of the Important Work Ahead of Them.

NOT READY FOR BUSINESS

Must Await Final Authorization from the President—Will Control Investments During War.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—The War Finance Corporation, created by Congress at the request of Secretary McAdoo to finance war industries and limit and control investment of capital during the war, was brought officially into existence today by the swearing in of the Directors and officers in the office of the Secretary of the Treasury. The corporation has for its Chairman of the Board of Directors Secretary McAdoo; as Vice Chairman and General Manager, W. P. G. Harding, Governor of the Federal Reserve Board, with Sherman Allen, formerly Assistant Secretary of the Treasury and now Assistant Secretary of the Federal Reserve Board, as Treasurer and Secretary pro tem.

The Board of Directors, in addition to Messrs. McAdoo and Harding, consists of Clifford M. Leonard, Eugene Meyer, Jr., and Angus W. McLean. The members of the Capital Issues Committee, which is to regulate investment of capital during the war, consists of Charles S. Hamlin, designated as Chairman by President Wilson; John Skelton Williams, Controller of the Currency; Frederick A. Delano of the Federal Reserve Board; James B. Brown, John S. Rum, Henry C. Flower, and Frederick H. Goff.

Secretary McAdoo handed to each of the Directors of the corporation the commission issued by the President for his appointment and, in doing so, said:

"You have been appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate to these very responsible positions as Directors of this great corporation, the War Finance Corporation, which marks an epoch in the finances of the country. I want to congratulate you on the great opportunity which you have to render a very distinctive service to your country in this perilous time of war. There can be no chart for this corporation, nor can any true picture of its necessary activities be drawn at this time. It must evolve with the progress of events, and our duty is to see that in that evolution it performs the great functions which have been committed to it and that it exercises its great powers always and at all times in the public interest.

"I am looking forward myself with very great pleasure to what I know will be a most agreeable association with you, personally and officially. I welcome you to this great service, and I hope that all that is expected of us for the benefit of our beloved country will be realized as a result of the wisdom, sagacity, and courage with which you discharge your duties."

The corporation will not be ready to make loans or to perform the other duties for which it was created until formally authorized to do so by the President.

CHINESE ROAD MORTGAGED.

Japanese Loan on Section in Manchuria Reported in Peking.

PEKING, May 13. (Associated Press.)—It is stated on apparently good authority that the management of the Chinese Eastern Railway has mortgaged the section of its railroad between Chang Chun and Harbin, in Manchuria, to Japanese bankers.

The amount of the mortgage could not be ascertained. The length of road between Chang Chun and Harbin is about 150 miles.

State Control of Boston Railways.

BOSTON, May 17.—A bill providing for public control of the Boston Elevated Railway, which operates elevated, subway, and surface lines in this city, was passed today by the Senate in the same form that it went through the House.

The measure puts the management of the road for a period of ten years in the hands of five trustees to be named by the Governor, provides for a guaranteed dividend of 6 per cent. and leaves the question of fares to be determined by the condition of the reserve fund.

COMMODITIES MARKETS.

WHEAT.

Reports from the Southwest said that new Winter wheat is beginning to head out and advices from over the greater part of the wheat raising sections of the country are exceptionally favorable. The crop has had practically no setback since the growing season opened and there seems to be every reason to believe that this year's yield will be a large one.

RYE.

Market quiet; No. 2 Western, $2.11, cost and freight, New York. The Minneapolis market was 5 cents lower at $1.96, and Chicago was unchanged at $2.02.

CORN.

The action of the corn market again displayed a feeling of uncertainty regarding future price changes. Fluctuations were feverish, and while there were occasional rallies from depressions final prices were not materially altered. The weather was again ideal for both planting the new crop and for active growth where the seed is in the ground. In the local cash market kiln dried No. 3 yellow was quoted at $1.53 and No. 4 yellow at $1.43, cost and freight New York.

OATS.

The oats market was nervous and irregular, the near positions showing heaviness, while July was firmer. The cash position in the West was easier, and it was said that purchases were being made at outside points of cash oats to go to Chicago, part of which was expected to be applied on May delivery. The local cash market was weak. Natural quoted at 82 to 83½c; clipped white, 82 to 86c, all elevator.

PROVISIONS.

An advance of 10 to 15 points in the hog market and reports from the West that Government purchases for export to Europe had amounted to from 200,000,000 to 300,000,000 pounds of lard and meats, representing about the surplus stocks, caused an early advance in the provision list, but prices again eased off under profit taking, and the close was only slightly changed from the previous day. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 13,000; estimated for Saturday, 10,000. Kansas City received 5,000 and Omaha 6,000 hogs.

COFFEE.

Yesterday's market for coffee futures opened extremely quiet at unchanged prices and advanced a few points on covering, but failed to hold the gain when later outside long interests offered more freely. The close was 1 point higher on May, but generally unchanged to 8 points lower. Taken as a whole the market was a narrow affair, and fluctuations reflected a very small volume of business. SUGAR.

The International Sugar Committee continues to purchase raw sugars for shipment this month, and while recent business has not been heavy it is probably all that tonnage has been arranged for. Yesterday the committee bought 51,200 bags Cubas at 4.985c, cost and freight. Statistically the general situation is good. Receipts at seven United States ports for the week ended May 11 increased over 25,000 tons, while meltings dropped about 3,000 tons. Stocks increased about 16,000 tons.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday, 10,672 packages. It looked for a while in the morning as if prices would have to ease off a little. Posted receipts were fairly liberal and about 200 tubs creamery extras sold under the call on 'Change at 46c, most of the transactions being for afternoon delivery. But the stock did not arrive as freely as was anticipated and some houses ran a little short. Secondary grades are quite plentiful and easy. Renovated in buyers' favor. Ladles and packing stock unchanged. Creamery, higher than extras, a lb, 47@47½c; extras, (92 score.) 46@46½c; firsts, (88 to 91 score.) 43½@45½c; seconds, (83 to 87 score.) 38½@42½c; thirds, 35@37½c; creamery, unsalted, higher than extras, 49@49½c; extras, 48@48½c; firsts, 44½@47½c; seconds, 41@44c; State dairy, tubs, finest, 46@46½c; good to prime, 43@45½c; common to fair, 36@42c; renovated, extras, 39@39½c; firsts, 37½@38½c; lower grades, 34@36c; imitation creamery, firsts, 35@35½c; ladles, current make, firsts, 33@34c; seconds, 31½@32c; lower grades, 30@31c; packing stock, current make, No. 1, 31½@32c; No. 2, 30@30½c; lower grades, 27@29½c.

EGGS.—32,267 cases. Arrivals continue liberal, trade is dull and selective, and market continues weak and in buyers' favor. The average prime and lower grades are showing the most depression. There is some call for strictly fancy northern goods free from dark yolks and showing good strong body; very few such can be found, and the selling value of the great bulk of the supply shows some further decline, as quoted. Nearby white eggs are in considerable accumulation; many who have previously been storing are not inclined to put further lots away, and there is pressure to force wider distributing outlets. To effect any important business prices must be further reduced, and there are free sellers at the reduction quoted. Fresh gathered extras, a dozen, 37@38c; storage packed firsts, 35½@36½c; regular packed extra firsts, 35½@36c; regular packed firsts, 34@ seconds and poorer, 31@33½c; fresh gathered dirties, No. 1, storage packed, 32@32½c; No. 1, regular packed, 31½@32c; No. 2 and poorer, 30@31c; fresh gathered checks, good to choice, dry, 30@31c; undergrades, 28@29c; State, Pennsylvania and nearby Western hennery whites, fine to fancy, 39@40c; ordinary to prime, 37@38c; gathered whites, ordinary to fine, 37@39c; Western and Southern gathered whites, 36@37c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby hennery browns, 38@39c; gathered brown and mixed colors, 34@36c.

OVER 17,000,000 SUBSCRIBE

3,000,000 More Than Those Who Took Bonds of the First and Second Issues.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—The total of the Third Liberty Loan is $4,170,019,650—an oversubscription of $1,170,019,650. This total is not equal to the amount expected by Secretary McAdoo, which was $5,000,000,000, but the result is nevertheless regarded as a remarkable success.

No subscriber had full knowledge that there would be no scaling of his subscription, or that the full amount would not be taken whatever the final total might be. In the first loan the allotments were limited to $2,000,000,000, and in the second they were limited to one-half the oversubscription. The significance of the loan appears in the number of subscribers, which was over 17,000,000, as compared with 4,500,000 for the first loan and 9,500,000 for the second.

During the period that the third loan has been under subscription, the heaviest payments ever known in the history of any country in income and excess profits taxes have been pouring into the Treasury, so that from the third loan and these taxes the Government has received, or will receive within a few days, fully $7,000,000,000.

The American people have, therefore, within the first year of the war invested $13,000,000,000, mainly drawn directly from productive income.

The amount of subscriptions in each Federal Reserve district, with quotas and the percentage in excess of allotted amounts, follows:

District.	Quota.	Subscriptions.	P. C. of Quota.
Minneapolis	$105,000,000	$180,826,350	112

U. S. Treasury	......	17,915,150	...

These figures are subject to some slight modification on receipt of final audited returns from several districts. These returns will make no material difference in the grand total. The subscription credited to the United States Treasury embraces subscriptions taken at the Treasury Department that could not at the close of the campaign be forwarded to the Federal Reserve Bank; also certain Indian trust funds, proceeds of seized German property, and similar funds.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

Stocks closed weak in a broad and fairly active market yesterday on the Consolidated Stock Exchange. Net losses from a fraction to more than a point were registered except in a few issues, notably the International Marine shares, the preferred which closed above par with a net gain of 4⅜, while the common advanced 2 points. Even these securities sold off from the day's high in the final hour of the session, during which the selling movement was particularly pronounced.

RAILWAY INCREASES PROFIT

Colorado & Southern Earns $7,089,509 in Year.

The Colorado & Southern Railway stands with the group of carriers which were able to retain a substantial part of their increased gross earnings in 1917 as increases in net income. The operating revenue amounted to $18,685,810, according to the year's report issued yesterday, an increase of $2,217,532 over the preceding year. Operating costs expanded slightly more than $1,500,000, and the net was $705,563 larger than in 1917, with a total of $7,089,509.

After making complete deductions for tax accruals, &c., a profit of $3,607,800 remained, compared with $3,011,227 the year before. The surplus left when dividends had been paid and additions and betterments provided for was $2,640,093, a gain of nearly $650,000.

The report said a greater acreage of cotton was planted along the line in Texas than ever before, but a poor yield resulted from a protracted drought. The dry weather caused an unusual movement of live stock out of West Texas, increasing traffic heavily but resulting in a drain on the cattle supply which cannot be replaced for several years.

THE CONDITION OF TRADE.

Commenting on the condition of trade and the business of the banks, Dun's Review says:

The labor question, both in its relation to trade and manufacturing and in its bearing on agriculture, is not the least perplexing of the various problems being encountered, and the shifting of men to the most essential occupations is becoming a more imperative expedient as additional numbers are called into military service. That outputs for strictly civilian uses are lessening steadily is not surprising, with greater concentration on war work made necessary, and the knowledge that the paucity of supplies of many materials and products will later be intensified has a stimulating effect on forward demands and a strengthening influence on prices.

Clearings through the banks this week at the principal cities in the United States again show a substantial gain over this period in all former years, the total amounting to no less than $5,930,377,678, an increase of 12.9 per cent. over this week last year and of 40.2 per cent. as compared with the same week in 1916.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

The William R. Compton Company, Halsey, Stuart & Co., R. W. Pressprich & Co., and the Hibernia Bank and Trust Company of New Orleans are members of a syndicate which has bought $3,000,000 State of Mississippi 5¼ per cent. bonds. The bonds will be offered to the public shortly.

The Manhattan Electrical Supply Company reports sales amounting to $1,711,160 in the four months ended April 30. The profit from $5,234,223 gross business in 1917 was $625,884 after providing for all taxes.

Ralph B. Strassburger of 60 Broadway has been commissioned as Lieutenant in the navy and assigned to sea service. He is an Annapolis graduate.

Charles A. Hunter, Jr., has been appointed sales manager of the investment securities department of J. B. Harris & Co.

The Assay Office has shipped approximately $3,000,000 of silver bars to the Far East in the last week in accordance with the measures decided upon by the United States and other allied Governments recently to stabilize Indian exchange.

THE COTTON MARKET

Slump of 50 Points in Early Trading Develops Into Net Loss of 33 to 63 Points.

Cotton on the local market renewed yesterday its demonstration that no pronounced bull movement could get under way by slumping some 50 points on the average from an early continuance of Thursday's advance, and winding up the day with a net decline of 33 to 63 points. The course of the market recently had led observers to believe that it was gradually finding a new point of equilibrium after the big declines of the last month, as the swings, though violent, have been growing shorter and have, moreover, ceased to continue, as a general thing, over more than one session. Yesterday's session confirmed this opinion.

The only outside news came from Liverpool, where, it was said, a conference of manufacturers with the British Cotton Control Board had resulted in acceptance of further restrictions on the already drastically limited consumption of the Lancashire cotton mills. Supported as this was by heavy selling for Liverpool account and a reaction which has been gathering from the recent optimistic views of the situation in shipping, it helped to turn the market around from its early advance.

The opening was irregular, with December 2 points up on one or two good buying orders and everything else shaded off from 4 to 14 points. The New Orleans market opened active and strong, however, and several wires from Southern points indicated that buyers were at last being compelled to make a market for low grades, which had been neglected in the scramble for middling or better until they were beginning to weigh heavily on the market. There was some bullish weather talk also, all of which helped to bring prices up to from 12 to 34 points, October and December seeming to be most in demand.

It remained a relatively narrow market, however, and was readily turned around when Liverpool selling began and the reports from the conference there reached the ringside. The usual speculative selling accelerated the decline and the close was barely steady at virtually the low mark of the day.

Southern spot markets yesterday were unchanged, except Houston, which was 25 points lower and with generally much less business than on Thursday. Exports yesterday were 99 bales.

NEW FREIGHT RECORD BY PENNSYLVANIA

Daily Average of 7,868 Cars Pass Observation Point from May 1 to May 15.

MOSTLY WAR MATERIALS

Traffic Unbalanced by Great Preponderance of Eastbound Loaded Cars.

The Pennsylvania Railroad broke all records for freight traffic during the first half of the current month, due to the pressure of munitions and other materials on the way to seaboard. From May 1 to May 15 a daily average of 7,868 freight cars passed Columbia, Penn., which is one of the ten principal observation points on the Eastern lines. This total exceeded by 357 cars the best previous record for an entire month, the period being May of last year, when the daily average was 7,511 cars. In June last year the average per day was 7,487, and in April, 1916, it was 7,355, these constituting the second and third best monthly records.

On May 11 the best previous day's record for cars to pass Columbia was beaten by 22 cars, the aggregate being 8,812. Next day, the record was lifted again, the combined movement of east and west bound cars being 9,173. At Lewistown Junction, on the main line, between Harrisburg and Altoona, the daily average number of cars to pass in the first two weeks of this month was 6,812, compared with 6,297 in the same period last year, and 6,402 in the corresponding fortnight of 1916.

The new records speak well both for Government control of the carriers and the results obtained by the Pennsylvania workers in recovering from the handicaps on freight movements during the Winter months.

"While the total car movement thus far this month," said a statement issued by the Pennsylvania yesterday, "has been the heaviest ever known, the trend of traffic on the Pennsylvania Railroad has been exceedingly unbalanced, due to conditions arising out of the war. Under normal conditions preceding the war, approximately 60 per cent. of the freight handled on the main line was eastbound and 40 per cent. westbound. At present, however, an overwhelming proportion of the total movement of freight is eastbound. This is due to the fact that exports, especially of munitions, have enormously increased, as have also the shipments of raw materials to the war industries of the East. At the same time import traffic has ceased almost altogether, the ships arriving at Atlantic ports from Europe being nearly empty."

In consequence of these conditions, the statement said, about 85 per cent. of the road's tonnage is now eastbound freight and only 15 per cent. westbound. Roughly, for every two loaded cars moving westward, there are seven to nine empty cars, whereas under normal conditions there would be only three empty to two loaded cars on the westbound haul.

KEEPS UP PIER FIGHT.

Craig Denies Change of Position and Challenges Hulbert.

Controller Craig issued a statement yesterday denying that he had changed his position regarding his demand at a meeting of the Sinking Fund Commission last week that Dock Commissioner Hulbert be requested not to lease part of the pier at the foot of East Fifth Street to the Pawtucket and New York Transportation Company. The Controller objected to the company getting the lease on the ground that an investigation had shown that its capital stock paid in amounted to only $300. The matter was taken up at a meeting of the Sinking Fund Commission on Thursday and referred back to the Dock Commissioner. The Controller said yesterday:

"The statements appearing in the newspapers purporting to relate what occurred at a conference of members of the Sinking Fund Commission at the Mayor's office yesterday give an entirely misleading impression. There is no foundation whatever for the assertion that the Controller has changed his position in regard to the lease to the Pawtucket and New York Transportation Company. In addition to the other information previously submitted by the Controller to the other members of the commission, the Controller yesterday informed them and the Dock Commissioner that he had received a telegram from the Governor of Rhode Island, reading as follows:

Pawtucket and New York Transportation Company have option good until June 13 on State Pier No. 2, located in the City of Pawtucket, and have posted a sum of money as a forfeit in case of not exercising option.

"The communication of the Controller to the Sinking Fund Commission was referred to the Dock Commissioner. The Dock Commissioner has not been enjoined from executing the lease. If he chooses to disregard the request of the Controller to refrain from executing it, he can assume the responsibility of that course."

TO FIGHT N. Y. A. C. BOARD.

Adrian G. Hegeman Says He Was Suspended Without a Hearing.

Asserting that he had been suspended from the New York Athletic Club without a hearing on the charge that he had aided in the circulation of a story that he had protested against the absence of a flag on the clubhouse on Travers Island, Adrian G. Hegeman last night issued a statement declaring that he would fight the vote of suspension of the Board of Governors. Mr. Hegeman stated that when he appeared before the Governors with counsel and witnesses, the Board refused to hear testimony and said they would receive only his statement.

Neither Jeremiah T. Mahoney, the Vice President of the club, nor Fred. R. Fortemeyer, the secretary, could be reached last night. In April several members were suspended. Among them were Gustave B. Kulenkampff and Frederico Stallforth, Basil Ruysdael, the Metropolitan singer, and Henry Lampe, formerly of the North German Lloyd line, were exonerated of charges made against them.

ARTISTS ADVISE BUYERS.

Oils, Water Colors, and Etchings Attract Visitors to Blind Fund Show.

The plan to ask artists to be on hand to discuss the pictures and suggest what to buy has worked well at the big show of donated works at the Anderson galleries in aid of the American-British-French-Belgian Permanent Blind Relief War Fund. The first pictures to be sold for the fund were a pair of miniatures by Mary L. Wyatt of Paris reproducing famous portraits of Lafayette and Rochambeau from the gallery of the Palace of Versailles. Mrs. William T. Hildrup, Jr., of Harrisburg and New York paid $500 for them. Many oils, water colors, pastels, and etchings have been picked up by art lovers.

Afternoon tea, with music and short recitals or talks, appealed to the visitors yesterday afternoon. The gypsy song from "Carmen" was sung by Mrs. Irving E. Burdick, accompanied by Mrs. Grace Moser at the piano. Mrs. Jasper Bayne gave "Flanders Field" as a recital, with her own setting for the piano. Mrs. Margaret Dougherty of Washington presided over the table.

CLASH OVER GERMAN MINES.

Trust Chiefs Struggle for Wendel Properties in Lorraine.

AMSTERDAM, May 17.—A silent but fierce fight for millions is going on between Germany's most powerful industrial interests over a share in the spoils of the French-owned mines and smelting works in German Lorraine. The iron ore in this region is estimated at 650,000,000 tons. The chief owner is Baron de Wendel, reputedly the richest man in Europe, who owns ore fields and iron foundries in France, Belgium, Luxemburg, and Lorraine. His fortune is estimated at $100,000,000.

Baron de Wendel's possessions in German Lorraine have long excited the cupidity of the German overlord and a compulsory "liquidation" of this property is a matter of course. The value of his estate in that region is estimated at $62,500,000, but the interests concerned are so involved and interlocked that the liquidation has been a difficult business proposition and a hint has been given to the German press to publish as little as possible about the negotiations.

The de Wendel concern was a member of the Düsseldorf Steel Trust, and the first idea was simply to divide the property among the members of the trust. Now a group of South German industrialists have taken a hand and have submitted a bid of $50,000,000 cash to the Düsseldorf Trust. This offer was refused and, after much squabbling, the South German group split in twain into the Rhenish-Westphalian and the Thyssen combines. The latter has independently outbid the parent group, offering $55,000,000.

The conditions of both offers were that the major part of the ore should be smelted, not in Lorraine, as hitherto, but within regions controlled by buyers, with the consequence that Lorraine townships have petitioned the German Government, pointing out, in alarm, that a large part of the industrial population is threatened with ruin by the removal of the means of their livelihood, about which they were not consulted.

Lately powerful voices have been raised, demanding why selfish and big corporations should be permitted to dispose ruthlessly of property for purely monopolistic profiteering purposes, whereas the benefits should accrue to the empire at large and relieve the overburdened taxpayers. Public opinion calls for a special Reichstag commission to take the matter in hand. The magnitude of the interests and prospects involved promises an intensely interesting contest, for the big corporations, with interlocking interests everywhere in Germany, are in no wise disposed to loosen their grip without a hard fight.

LABOR ENVOYS DISBAND.

Americans Entertained by London Chamber of Commerce.

LONDON, May 17.—A section of the American Labor Delegation now in this country was entertained at luncheon today by the London Chamber of Commerce, with Lord Desborough presiding.

In proposing a toast to the American guests, Lord Desborough characterized as "really the greatest event in this war" the entry of America "into the war against the despotism of Germany." It was gratifying to know, he added, that the two nations had come to appreciate one another.

Some of the American delegates conferred today with representatives of the British Labor Party and of the Parliamentary Committee of the Trades Union Congress. Official announcement was made that the war aims of the British Labor Party were not discussed.

A party of the Americans will depart tonight for Ireland, to stay three or four days, but no meetings there have been arranged officially, so far as they knew today. They will visit the industrial centres. In the party are Martin F. Ryan, E. O. McCormick, William H. Johnson, Chester M. Wright, and Miss Agnes Nestor.

Future plans of the delegation are incomplete. Some of the members are of the opinion that a mission to Italy would be beneficial. The delegation disbanded last night, but some of the members will remain in England a few days longer.

ITALIAN SHELLS EFFECTIVE.

Artillery Active Against Enemy Guns at Various Points.

ROME, May 17.—The War Office communication issued today says:

Effective artillery firing has occurred along the portions of the front where the enemy was more active at Tonale, in the Val Lagarina, at Val Arsa, in the Asiago Basin and along the Piave. The Italians dispersed hostile detachments, while Italian and British patrols had brisk encounters with enemy patrols on the Asiago Plateau and in other districts.

VIENNA, May 17, (via London.)—The Austrian official communication issued today says:

The artillery duel has been more lively on the Italian front at some points.

In Albania the Italians and French attacked our mountain positions between the Osum and Devoli Rivers. Apart from an unimportant gain of terrain west of Korca, the enemy everywhere was repulsed.

WOULD ROB FRANCE AGAIN.

Strassburg Post Insists on an Enlarged Alsace-Lorraine.

AMSTERDAM, May 6, (Correspondence of The Associated Press.)—German newspapers are now demanding the extension of Alsace-Lorraine further into France "as a protection against a neighbor who, for more than 600 years, has always been the attacker." It is suggested that the frontier, which now runs along the crest of the Vosges Mountains, should hereafter be at the bottom of the French side of the mountains.

"Germany surely has the right to secure her frontiers, as Austria has done," says the semi-official Strassburg Post, "and she can certainly claim that her heroic efforts entitle her to a tranquil and peaceful existence hereafter."

GERMAN COAL FOR SWISS.

Supply to be Continued Despite Aid from France Also.

PARIS, May 17.—Germany has agreed to continue exporting coal to Switzerland despite the agreement with France by the Swiss by which the former agreed to supply Switzerland with 75,000 tons of allied coal monthly. When the German and Swiss delegates to the economic commercial convention at Berne met yesterday an agreement was reached on all points at issue, but the Swiss delegates, upon the advice of the Federal Council, refrained from signing the articles for a few days.

Germany had threatened to discontinue the shipment of coal to Switzerland if the latter's agreement with France were ratified.

CALLS FOR $2,139,600,000.

French Appropriation Bill Shows an Increase of $87,200,000.

PARIS, May 17.—The Government appropriation bill for military expenses for the third quarter of the fiscal year and for exceptional requirements for the civil service was introduced in the Chamber of Deputies today by Louis Klotz, the Minister of Finance.

The bill provides for an appropriation of 10,698,000,000 francs, an increase over the current quarter of 436,000,000. A portion of the increase is due to the need for funds for additional pay of soldiers who received an extra allowance for wounds.

E. H. Sothern Tells How Americans at the Front Are Impressed.

E. H. Sothern recounted some of his discoveries at the front as to the taste of the soldiers in dramatic matters at the meeting last evening in the MacDowell Gallery of the National Patriotic Song Committee. Mr Sothern said that the American and English soldiers were most successful in all their rôles, including the female ones. He astonished the audience by telling them that the tragic stories of the Greek drama were the most eagerly desired by the Americans. An English actress—Mrs. Wheeler—entertained the soldiers with the stories of these dramas and met with such appreciation that on her return from England she brought a troupe of actors with her and gave the dramas in full, and this resulted in a constant demand for their repetition.

In regard to music behind the lines, Mr. Sothern stated that the negro band of the 15th New York, now the 369th Regiment, had instruments of the finest make, as the Colonel had raised thousands of dollars among his friends. These musicians were borrowed for the rest camp at Aix-les-Baines for the Americans, and as train after train arrived the band played the various national airs at the station.

Mr. Sothern followed his address with the recitation of Alan Seeger's ode to the first Americans who fell abroad before their country declared war, and Miss Marlowe recited "The Flowers That Bloom on Flanders Field" and "The Anxious Dead." Other speakers were David Bispham, Kendall L. Mussy, and Allen D. Albert.

FIRE OUSTS 40 FAMILIES.

Aged Couple Rescued with Difficulty After Son Is Overcome.

Forty families were driven from their flats shortly after midnight last night when fire, which started in a building used as a Jewish synagogue, spread to the tenement house at 1,827 Pitkin Avenue, Brooklyn. The tenement building, a frame structure, was badly damaged by the flames, but not destroyed. The building which had housed worshipers stood several feet behind the tenement. According to firemen the blaze apparently originated through a lighted candle, one of a number which had been in use during service held in the small building last evening.

Joseph Rock, of 225 Riverdale Avenue, Brooklyn, discovered the flames after they had reached the tenement, and climbed up the rear fire escape rousing the tenants. Policemen experienced difficulty in getting Harry Stone, 60 years old, a paralytic, and his wife to the street after their son, Louis Stone, had been overcome in trying to rescue the aged couple.

ARMY TAKES SEA VIEW.

City's Tuberculosis Patients to be Moved to Otisville Hospital.

An agreement was reached yesterday between Health Commissioner Copeland, Mayor Hylan, and Lieut. Cols. Hornsby and Kramer of the Surgeon General's office under which the army will take the Sea View Hospital, which has been conducted by the city as a home for tuberculosis patients, on Staten Island. Patients of the city will be moved to the city's hospital at Otisville, N. Y., where the army has agreed to erect additional buildings for the city.

Commissioner Copeland said that he would confer today with the Corporation Counsel for the purpose of setting a date for the trial of Dr. Lucius P. Brown on the charges of the Civil Service Commissioner, and of deciding whether the trial should be public or behind closed doors.

Wusterbarth Loses Rights Here for His Disloyal Words.

The decree of Judge Haight of the Federal District Court canceling the citizenship of Frederick W. Wursterbarth of Lake View, N. J., on charges of disloyalty, was filed yesterday.

Wusterbarth, now an alien, after being a citizen for thirty-six years, is ordered to turn over his certificate of naturalization to the Clerk of the Court, and the latter is directed to forward a certified copy of the cancelation to the Naturalization Bureau of the Department of Labor at Washington, and to file a duplicate with the County Clerk of Passaic County, N. J.

CAPTAIN DESERTS TO ENLIST

Artillery Officer, Missing Since December, Is Found in France.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., May 17.—Captain Richard F. King of the 143th Field Artillery, who has been missing from his post at Camp Kearney since December, has been apprehended in France, where he was serving as an enlisted man with the American Expeditionary forces, and is being brought back here.

Captain King, according to the account given out here, enlisted at Camp Grant, Ill., after leaving this camp and went to France. In this enlistment he is said to have used the name of "Philip Brett." A soldier, who had known him previously, recognized him and reported him to the authorities, the account said. Captain King's home was formerly Provo, Utah.

United Fund Distributes $35,000 More Than Ever Before.

Yesterday $150,000 was distributed by the United Hospital Fund to the hospitals of New York City. This is $35,000 more than ever before. The Distributing Committee of the United Hospital Fund, which met at noon at City Hall, consists of the Mayor, Alfred E. Marling, President of the Chamber of Commerce; William Fellowes Morgan, President of the Merchants' Association; Otto T. Bannard, Cornelius N. Bliss, Jr., Arthur Curtiss James, and James Speyer. Largely increased gifts came this year through many trade committees and from the Woman's Auxiliary, whose Treasurer, Mrs. James Speyer, received $30,000, twice as much as last year.

The United Hospital Fund is distributed on the basis of the actual free work done by each hospital, as shown in carefully audited statements. Nothing is paid for commissions or collectors' fees. No hospitals are aided which do not maintain a high grade of service. The distribution made yesterday was as follows:

Withdrew Its Fall Hosiery.

Some idea of the demand for women's high-grade silk hose that has been in evidence here in the last several months can be had from the fact that yesterday one of the biggest mills in the country making these goods sold up its 1918 production and withdrew its lines from the market. These included goods that are not only wanted for the regular Fall delivery, but everything that the mill can turn out between now and Jan. 1. The color demand, as reflected by the orders taken by this mill, will be led by navy, dark gray, African brown, and black. While the same mill has done a large business on men's hose for the Fall season, it is still open to take further business on these goods.

Furniture Sales Fair.

The furniture trade reports that business in wicker and other types of furniture suitable for the Summer has been fairly active for the last month or more. Period pieces and furniture for general use have been selling, though of course not to any such extent as they are sold during the Fall and Winter months. It is said also that the Third Liberty Loan campaign last month held business back somewhat, and that practically all lines were affected, though since then considerable improvement has been noted. It seems also that dealers are taking on supplies now for next Fall, which they fear they might experience some difficulty in getting later on.

Big Shirt Sales a Surprise.

"We are unable to account for the unusually large volume of sales in men's shirts this Spring," said an authority in the trade in this city. "With so many of the young men of the country in military service, few in the trade had either expected or fully prepared for such a big season as we have been having so far. Many of the most expensive shirts seem to be wanted. Lines made to retail for from $4 to $10 a garment have been particularly active, and some very striking color combinations are taken. Stripes in varying widths are among the favorite designs."

Some Steps to Success.

"You can run a large department store right down into the ground," said the general manager of one of the leading stores in this city yesterday, "if you do not keep your sales people right behind you heart and soul. I make it a point to get acquainted with every salesman and saleswoman in our establishment. On my several trips through the store each day I stop and have a friendly chat with this or that man or woman and try to learn something of their home life—and remember it. Frequently something develops in their home and they need a little assistance of some sort. We try to help them. It gets us their good will, and thenceforth they are our loyal supports in all our undertakings."

Corset Demand Strong.

Though there was some talk last Winter that Dame Fashion would decree no corsets for women this Spring and Summer, corset sales since the season opened do not indicate that such an edict, if it was ever really issued, is being lived up to. In the face not only of a labor shortage but of an acute scarcity of coutil which is used extensively in making corsets, demand everywhere is said to be unusually active. It is said that manufacturers are managing to supply the minimum needs of the merchants of the country only with the greatest difficulty. It seems also that the average quality of coutil now available is far inferior to that which was formerly used, and that even this may not be obtainable later on.

Sports Clothes Much Favored.

"This has been, and apparently still is, a season of sports clothes," said a man prominent in the local ready-to-wear trade yesterday. "Whether or not a woman is going to participate actively in sports she wants sports garments. And, likewise, whether or not a garment is suitable for actual wear on the links or in other outdoor Summer sports, if it is of the sports 'type' it sells. As a matter of fact, a very large percentage of the socalled sports frocks and suits of today are not particularly well adapted to the real purpose which is implied by their name. Many of them are not meant to go any further than the lawn of the country club or than the 'deck' of the yacht club house."

Furs Are Doing Very Well.

A very nice advance Fall business is now being done by local manufacturing furriers on women's coats, especially in three-quarter and full length Hudson seals and moles. Hudson seal and mole combinations have been well received, as have combinations of mole and squirrel. The better grades of Australian opossum also have been coupled up with mole and have met a good demand. Taupe, natural blue and kitt fox also are used with mole. In the retail demand for Summer furs a good call is reported for mole, squirrel and Hudson seal capes and coatees. Scarfs of natural blue, silver and cross fox also are wanted in the more expensive goods. These range at retail all the way from $150 to $400 each.

Drawing Them Closer Together.

If the war is doing nothing else for the American business man, it is apparently drawing him closer to his commercial neighbors as a result of the various kinds of war work that are being done. "The work that business men are doing in relation to the Liberty Loan and Red Cross drives, as well as in matters more closely pertaining to their own trades," said a well-known millinery wholesaler yesterday, "is drawing them closer together than any number of ordinary trade meetings and social affairs would bring them. The results that are being obtained by many of them in this work are winning them new respect from their competitors in business, and the friendly rivalry it engenders is doing a great deal to take the rough edge off the regular scramble for business. Men are finding things to admire in each other that could have been brought out in no other way, and the results are already becoming apparent. At least, this is true of our trade."

Doing Real Relief Work.

Work of a really vital nature is being done here by the American Millinery Trades War Relief, which was organized some months ago to take care of dependents of former millinery workers now in the national service. In addition to the free war insurance and free employment bureau features told of in The Times hitherto, the relief is doing several other things to make life happier for the men who are doing things. Already about thirty cases of dependency have been passed upon, in which assistance has been given by the Home Service Department of the Red Cross. Among the smaller things being done is the sending of a birthday letter to every millinery worker now in service, as well as a pocket edition of an English-French dictionary. An "open house" is also maintained in Paris for these men. The interest that other trades are taking in this work is being manifested by the inquiries executives of the organization are receiving about its inner workings.

Gray Goods Sales Larger.

Reports from the local gray goods market yesterday indicated more snap to trading than has been seen for some time. Many of the second hands who lately had been selling were reported active as buyers, with the result that a considerable volume of staple fabrics, mostly printcloths, was disposed of. Quick delivery sales of 38½-inch 64-60s were made at 18¼ cents, while 39-inch 68-72s sold for deliveries as far ahead as September at 20¾ cents. It was said that they had sold for immediate delivery at 20½ cents, and whether this is true or not, this figure is the asking price of many mills for spots of this construction. For delivery in the next thirty days, sales of 38½-inch 60-48s were put through at 16 cents, and "quick" lots of 27-inch 64-60s were sold at 13¼. Some 31½-inch printcloths also were sold at full prices. Sheetings and other coarse fabrics were less in the spotlight. Closing mill prices on spot printcloths follow:

39-inch, 80-80s....25c	38½-inch, 64-60s..18c

COMMODITIES PRICES.

Fewer Changes Than Usual Shown in the List This Week.

For the first time in several weeks Dun's current list of wholesale commodities prices shows an excess of declines over advances. Likewise it shows the smallest number of changes in quite a while. Only 48 of the 325 articles listed showed variance one way or the other, and of these only 22 were advances. Last week, when there were 51 changes, 30 were upward. The feature was the comparative weakness of foodstuffs prices.

The following list gives the minimum wholesale quotations on forty-one standard commodities this week at this city, unless otherwise specified. They are corrected to yesterday, and with them are given comparative prices for last week and the corresponding week a year ago:

There was a marked reversal of form in the foodstuffs quotations this week, the declines outnumbering the advances by slightly more than two to one. In the dairy products there was a very slight rise in the best grade of butter, and this was the only advance shown. In cheese there were no changes indicated, while both fancy nearby and the best Western eggs each fell off a cent a dozen. This brought the former nearer to the corresponding 1917 level than for some time, while the Western eggs dropped a little below the comparative figure. In the Chicago market for provisions live beef showed the only advance. Declines were registered by live hogs and sheep, Middle Western lard, short ribs, and mess pork. In this city bacon advanced again.

There were no changes in the market for dried fruits, and in the fresh ones the only revision was a rise in common apples, which went up 50 cents a barrel. The vegetable changes, which were not numerous, were all downward, they including choice pea and choice white kidney beans, cabbage, and old potatoes. The last-named are now priced at less than one-fourth what they cost at this time last year. Teas, coffees, and sugars were unchanged, and the only revision in the spice list was a rise in white Singapore pepper.

Ten of the seventeen changes listed in the combined markets for drugs, chemicals, dyestuffs and oils were downward, but features were lacking. In the naval stores both resin and turpentine were higher. Corn contributed the only advance in the grain list, while the declines were supplied by malt, oats, malting barley and long rye straw.

The sole change in the metals list was a rise in spelter. In the hides there were no declines, and higher prices were quoted on No. 1 country steers and No. 1 calfskins. An advance in union backs was the only change in the leather list. Other changes included advances in lump lime, ledger writing paper, and tallow.

The late snap to the textile markets was again missing. Due to continued inactivity here on the part of buyers, coupled with an easier feeling at Calcutta, prices on burlaps slipped a cog or two. In the cottons there was no great amount of change so far as the general market was concerned. Some advances, however, took place in unfinished printcloths and sheetings as a result of the withdrawals of most second hands as sellers and the need of buyers to come back to the mills for their supplies. Notably true was this of some of the lower-count wide printcloths, buyers holding off on some of the higher counts until a definite line could be got on prospective Government needs of these goods.

TO AID PAPER SITUATION.

New Section of War Industries Board Plans an Inquiry.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—The new Wood Pulp and Paper Section of the War Industries Board, of which William B. Colver is Chairman, today authorized this statement of its purposes:

"The War Industries Board desires to lighten the wartime hardships of the wood pulp and paper industry. No plan nor program will be adopted without thorough conference with representatives of the several branches of the industry. It is the purpose of the section to be the focus for the best thought of all the inter-related interests.

"As soon as possible representatives of the various branches of the industry will be invited to be heard."

GUARANTEE BY IMPORTERS.

Pledge to Food Board to Accompany Licenses for Wheat.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—The War Trade Board announced today that, in co-operation with the United States Food Administration, import licenses for wheat and wheat flour would be issued only on condition that applicants sign a written guarantee that they will not sell the wheat or wheat flour so imported to any person, firm, or corporation, or at any price, without first obtaining the approval of the United States Food Administration or its duly appointed agents, and that, in the sale or distribution of such wheat or wheat flour, they will be governed by the rules and regulations of the Food Administration.

The Food Administration has appointed the United States Food Administration Grain Corporation, 42 Broadway, New York, as its agent to administer these rules and regulations. All applications for the approval of sales of imported wheat or wheat flour should be made to the Grain Corporation.

These regulations do not apply to importations of wheat flour from Canada when the shipments do not exceed 25 barrels of 196 pounds each or less. Such shipments may be imported into the United States from Canada without individual import licenses.

DRY GOODS SALES GROWING.

Wholesale Distribution Is Far Ahead of That of a Year Ago.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 17.—Marshall Field & Co. in their weekly review of the dry goods trade say:

"Current wholesale distribution of dry goods for the week is well ahead of the heavy volume of the corresponding week last year. Road sales for both immediate and future delivery show a marked increase over the same period of 1917. The number of customers in the market has been slightly greater than in the same week a year ago. Collections are very good."

JAS. J. MARTIN DIES; EX-CITY CHAMBERLAIN

Former Tammany Leader, Who Was Once Police Commissioner, Expires at 70 Years.

James J. Martin, former City Chamberlain and once Police Commissioner of this city, died yesterday at his home, 132 West Forty-eighth Street, in his seventy-first year. Mr. Martin, long a member of the Tammany organization, retired from politics in the Fall of 1909, when he sent his resignation as City Chamberlain to the late Mayor Gaynor. He had been appointed to the office by Mayor McClellan in 1907, succeeding City Chamberlain Ellison, who was removed.

James J. Martin was born in Ireland and came to this country when 3 years old. He was a bachelor, and lived with his sister. He was educated at the Christian Brothers' School, and when 14 entered the law offices of Coddington Brothers, 17 Wall Street. He remained there four years, running away with several friends to join the 9th New York Volunteers, known as Hawkins's Zouaves, and saw service in the civil war. Later he was ordered back to this city with the unit to which he was attached, and aided in suppressing the draft riots in this city.

After the war he took charge of the clerical staff of the Adjutant General's office, and continued in this work until 1869, when he entered politics. He was appointed Secretary to the Register at 23, and in 1872 took an active part in the fight against "Boss" Tweed.

He was elected Clerk of the Board of Aldermen in 1873 and then went into the Controller's office under Controller Andrew Green, remaining with Controller John Kelly, later the Tammany boss, when he took office.

Mr. Martin was elected Secretary of the Assessment Commission in 1880 and held the office until 1886. In 1887 he was appointed Deputy Register and held that office until he was appointed Police Commissioner by Mayor Hugh Grant in 1889. He served as Police Commissioner for six years, being succeeded in that office by Theodore Roosevelt. This was the last office he held until his appointment as City Chamberlain. In the Mayoralty campaign of 1911 Mr. Martin supported the Fusion ticket.

In denouncing the stupidity of Tammany management he pointed to the late Mayor Gaynor's subway attitude, Governor Dix's approval of the prizefight, and Levy election bills. He had quit Tammany Hall five years before, he asserted.

ASKS AID FOR PROHIBITION.

Baptist Church Urged to Align Itself with Dry Laws.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 17.—Plans to line the Baptists of the nation solidly behind the national prohibition movement were put before the Northern Baptists convention here today by the Rev. J. W. Graves, Organization Secretary of the Temperance Department of the American Baptist Publication Society, Philadelphia.

"What we need is a central temperance committee in every Baptist State convention," said he, "with a keyman on temperance and a temperance committee in every Baptist church. It will be the duty of the State Committee to keep in constant touch with every phase of the battle, outline programs, and transmit them for execution to lesser organizations.

"Our trouble is not so much from malignant activity of the bad as from benignant inactivity of the good."

Dr. Graves declared it was the duty of every church to inform its membership of the attitude of legislative candidates at both primary and general elections.

Denominationalism will be swept aside and demand made for a democratic church by the boys who come back from the war, the delegates were told by Chaplains from the home military camps and those abroad.

"The soldier who goes over the top and through hell that democracy may be preserved," declared the Rev. C. W. Gilkey of Chicago, "will have a wider vision and speak a different language from us when he returns. We will be glad to sit at his feet and learn."

Mr. Gilkey read replies received from a number of Chaplains to whom questionaires had been sent to obtain the attitude of the soldiers toward religion.

"The replies and other evidence fast accumulating from the other side," he said, "are significant in that they are overwhelming testimony that these men are rising to a new spiritual and moral plane that levels all fences of sect and limitations. Their attitude is repudiation of denominationalism."

Senators Encouraged After Visit to Ordnance Plants.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—Army ordnance production at the Bethlehem and Midvale plants was reported proceeding satisfactorily today by Senators of the Military Committee, who returned from an inspection trip.

"There has been much delay, due to several causes, but the stage of large quantity production has been reached," said Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska. "We are much encouraged."

Changes in specifications, coal and material shortage, and lack of machinery were among causes of delay. Some army contracts, it was said, still are three months behind, but production has been accelerated.

"The first 8-inch howitzers were delivered this week," Senator Hitchcock said. "A considerable number of 3-inch guns have already been delivered, and the 9.2-inch howitzers are in an advanced stage of manufacture. A large number of 9½-inch howitzers are already in course of manufacture, but we will not be able to get deliveries of any of those until a British contract, now being completed, is out of the way.

"During the present year we will be compelled to depend very largely, as we have heretofore, on France for our small field guns and upon Great Britain for our large field guns. We have thousands of cannon ordered, and work on many of them is under way, but we cannot expect any considerable deliveries until near the end of the year.

"The committee tramped many miles through these plants, and comes back to Washington convinced that work at the present time is being carried on satisfactorily. I cannot give the number of cannon that have been ordered nor the number that have been completed, because that information cannot properly be given out. I do feel free to say, however, that the delays which have been exasperating and distressing in the past have been largely overcome, and the work is now progressing on cannon of all sizes satisfactorily.

"Because of the long time required in making cannon, we must now be laying out an artillery program for the year 1919. We should not again make the mistake of delay in placing orders."

QUIT SERVICE OF THE CITY.

Dr. Terry, Laboratory Director, Resented Interference with His Work.

It became known yesterday that Dr. Benjamin T. Terry, who was director of the Brooklyn Laboratories of Pathology for more than five years, left the service of the city in February because he would not submit to interference on the part of persons in the Charities Department in the management of the laboratories.

"When the new administration came in," said Dr. Terry at his home, 1,934 Bedford Avenue, Brooklyn, last evening, "things became so unpleasant that I felt I could no longer remain in the city's service. So I got out and I have not regretted that I did."

It was said yesterday that there were differences of opinion over the management of the laboratories between Dr. Terry and Charities Commissioner Coler, but the physician would not talk about this. Dr. Tery was formerly associated with the Rockefeller Institute of Medical Research and now is an instructor at the College of Physicians and Surgeons.

"The Kingsbury administration," said Commissioner Coler yesterday, "took the laboratories away from the Kings County Hospital and set them up as a separate department. We simply put them back where they belonged. Dr. Terry evidently didn't like the way we proposed to do things."

SENATOR ASSAILS PACKERS.

Kendrick of Wyoming Says They Are at "Parting of the Ways."

United States Senator John B. Kendrick of Wyoming, speaking before the delegates to the livestock convention at the Waldorf-Astoria yesterday, laid stress upon the importance of the cattle industry, and made a forecast of the great business that will arise after the war when the United States will be called upon to supply the world. Senator Kendrick roundly denounced the packers' trust, and said that the producer and tht packer had come to the "parting of the ways."

"Recent disclosures in the newspapers confirm our suspicions and deepen our distrust of a system so vicious which stifles the industry which is so vital in the prosecution of the war in feeding our nation and our allies," said Senator Kendrick. "It will make no difference whether it is a man or a group of men with unlimited means who sneer at the law and the lawmakers and are responsible for this condition."

F. Edson White, Vice President of Armour & Co., spoke after Senator Kendrick and defended the packers, saying there had been only part hearings, and that no opportunity had been given to answer. Speaking of the problems of the livestock man and the packers, Mr. White said:

"We encountered one of the greatest problems when the Food Administration asked us to ship 2,000,000 pounds of meat a day to the Allies over a period of two weeks. I can say without fear of contradiction that we are one of the only industries in the United States that have met the war demand with 100 per cent. efficiency."

200 DIE AS TNT PLANT IS WIPED OUT BY EXPLOSION

Fiery Blast Hurls Buildings in Air Before Workers Can Reach the Open.

MANY MORE CANNOT SURVIVE

Large Area Near Pittsburgh Devastated as Roar Follows Roar, with Deadly Fumes.

DRAW ON RED CROSS PARADE

Nurses Rushed to Aid Injured—Rescuers Perish in Explosions—Half-Mile Gas Deadline.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., May 18.—Probably 200 men were killed today when an explosion of TNT demolished the plant of the Aetna Chemical Company, at Oakdale, on the Panhandle Division of the Pennsylvania Railroad, sixteen miles from this city.

Coroner Samuel C. Jamison tonight ordered a census of the town in an effort to ascertain the number of persons killed. The company opened an office, and by circulars distributed throughout the valley called upon all survivors to register without delay. It also asked persons whose relatives were missing to report the fact to the company.

A detail of mine rescuers from the arsenal station of the United States Bureau of Mines arrived in Oakdale tonight, and, equipped with oxygen helmets, were prepared in the search for bodies to penetrate the dense mass of gas which still overhung the site of the plant.

The 500 workmen in the plant were startled at noon by a report not much louder than the crack of a pistol. It came from the soda house. The men knew its deadly import, and as one they rushed for the nearest exit.

Before they could gain the open the very air seemed to burst into flames, the earth heaved and rocked, and, with a roar that was heard for miles, the long factory buildings were hurled high into the air, carrying with them ponderous equipment and scores of men.

A great cloud of dust and smoke settled over the scene and through its deadly fumes torn and mangled forms dropped to the earth, many dead, but others to meet their end in the flaming debris.

The number of dead had not been accurately determined tonight. It may not be known for days, if ever.

Many of the injured, some of whom were found as far as half a mile from the remnants of the factory, were brought to Pittsburgh hospitals by special train and in ambulances, all so badly hurt that in only a comparatively few instances were physicians able to hold out any hope for their recovery.

The property loss was estimated at $1,500,000.

Blast After Blast Follows.

Immediately after the explosion the mass of broken beams and twisted timbers broke out in a great blaze, while the highly inflammable chemicals used in the manufacture of the factory's deadly products—TNT and TNA—added ample fuel to the flames. Blast after blast followed as the heat reached the tanks, each one scattering the burning embers and endangering property in the entire community. Noxious gases rose from the burning mass and spread over the little valley and surrounding hills, making perilous the work of rescue.

Telephone and telegraph wires were wrecked by the explosion, and the tracks of the Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis Railroad (the Panhandle route) were blocked by the falling débris. An employe hastened to Carnegie, four miles distant, where wreck and relief trains were quickly made up and hurried to Oakdale, while every hospital in Pittsburgh sent ambulances, with nurses and doctors. Company guards, under the direction of a detail of the State Constabulary, surrounded the burning ruins, and were later reinforced by deputy sheriffs and a large party of deputy coroners.

For a time it seemed as though it would be impossible to reach the wounded because of the heat, the constantly widening zone of gases, and the danger from further explosions. But the nurses and doctors were not to be deterred, and, aided by the officers, made their way as best they could.

One young nurse, Miss Meryl Aschelman of New Philadelphia, Ohio, a member of the staff of St. John's Hospital, Pittsburgh, who was among the first to answer the call for help, was perhaps fatally injured. Other rescuers were caught at a little stream into which acid and oil had poured. It exploded as they crossed, and a number were thought to have perished. Sheriff Will-

German Princes Are Scrambling for New Thrones in the East

AMSTERDAM, May 18.—The Berlin newspapers give indications that the prospect of new thrones in the east for German princes has stirred German Court circles. The Socialist newspaper, Vorwärts, for instance, says that agents from the Court are traveling hither and thither in efforts to make propaganda for or against the families to which the honors might fall.

This scramble for thrones, Vorwärts fears, may endanger German unity. It therefore urges, probably in a spirit of irony, that a compromise be effected by filling the thrones with Turkish princes.

"If Prussia is enlarged," it comments, "something must also be found somewhere for Bavaria, while Saxony, Württemberg and other States will also want something, and there are only six thrones to distribute among twenty-two dynasties."

JAPAN AND CHINA IN NEW ALLIANCE

Sign Treaty of Mutual Protection for the Duration of the Great War.

ALLIES SAID TO APPROVE

Step to Guard Against Possible German Advance Into Siberia and Manchuria.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—Official information of the conclusion of a treaty between the Japanese and Chinese Governments for a defensive alliance against Germany has been received at the State Department from Paul S. Reinsch, the American Minister at Peking. Little is known of the details of the agreement, of which it is said generally that it was entered into for the purpose of mutual protection for the duration of the great war.

Although it is not known whether the United States and other allied Governments were consulted, it would be a mistake to say that they were not informed of the negotiation of the treaty which probably marks the beginning of a far-reaching policy that may lead to allied action designed to check the free hand which Germany has assumed in Russia.

While apparently intended primarily to provide against Bolshevist aggressions in Manchuria and other menacing activities of the present ruling faction in Russian territory, the treaty makers are supposed to have had an eye to possible German advance into Siberia through propagandist methods.

It is no secret that action of the character indicated by the Japanese-Chinese treaty has the hearty sympathy of many Americans of prominence who have been out of step with the attitude of the Washington Government in declining to agree to Japan's proposal that Japanese troops be sent to Vladivostok and Eastern Siberia for the purpose of protecting Japanese and other foreign nationals and preventing the loss of immense quantities of food and war stores that had been landed at Vladivostok for the use of the Russian armies when Russia had a Central Government and was one of the members of the Entente. Most of these supplies were paid for in money advanced to the Czar's Government by the United States and Japan.

Effect on Our Policy.

The course of the United States Government in dissenting from the proposal to send Japanese armed forces into Siberia was based generally on the view that such action would rouse the Russian people and possibly move them to throw in their lot with the German cause. It was contended also by the United States, or at least that impression was given, that as this Government had entered into the war for unselfish reasons the sending of armed forces into Russian territory to protect supplies might given the impression that the purpose was merely material.

The British and French Governments did not agree with the American view and there is no reason to believe that they are not now of the opinion that if Japanese troops were sent into Siberia with the declared object of protecting foreign interests their presence and the consequent protection that would be given to stable Government would cause the best elements in Russia, as well as Siberia, to make the attempt to set up a central authority to which the Russian people generally would rally.

It is an outcome along this line that the new treaty between Japan and China may bring. Reports received here indicate that, with the exception of a comparatively small percentage of the population, the Russians would rally to any assurance of protection from Bolshevist and German interference in the hope of being able to form a stable government that would be the nucleus of the nationalization of the former empire. Nothing has come to light, how-

PRESIDENT SEES NO PEACE

Declares His Purpose to Stand by Russia as Well as France.

WANTS NO LIMIT OF MEN

Every Ship That Can Be Had Must Be Filled with Soldiers and Supplies.

A SLAP AT PROFITEERING

Says No Man Should Make Money on War, but Give All to Red Cross.

President Wilson, who opened the Red Cross drive at the Metropolitan Opera House last night with a stirring appeal for generous contributions, said incidentally that he had tested "peace approaches" which had been made, and that he had found them to be "insincere."

He said that all such peace approaches contained a reservation and required "a free hand" in the East.

He was cheered when he said that the United States intended to stand by Russia as well as France.

The President's words on the subject of the testing of peace proposals were as follows:

"And we are not to be diverted from the grim purpose of winning the war by any insincere approaches upon the subject of peace. I can say with a clear conscience that I have tested those intimations, and have found them insincere. I now recognize them for what they are, an opportunity to have a free hand, particularly in the East, to carry out the purposes of conquest and exploitation. Every proposal with regard to accommodation in the West involves a reservation with regard to the East. Now, so far as I am concerned, I intend to stand by Russia as well as by France."

Of all the passage in the President's speech, the one most applauded was the following:

"I have heard gentlemen recently say that we must get 5,000,000 men ready. Why limit it to 5,000,000?"

There was some applause when the President said a little later:

"If they wish peace, let them come forward and lay their terms upon the table. We have laid ours and they know what they are."

The audience was composed of distinguished men and women, most of whom have been leaders in the work of the Red Cross. The house was dotted with men in uniform. Thousands of persons who sought tickets were turned away in disappointment, and the tickets were limited as far as possible to Red Cross committeemen and officials and others active in its work.

The President Arrives.

The President arrived at the Opera House at 8:35, and his arrival was the signal for a tremendous outburst of applause from the crowds that for two hours had filled the streets awaiting his appearance. He seemed not to have felt his exertions in the afternoon, when he stirred New York by marching at the head of the Red Cross parade.

The President was preceded by an automobile containing a group of Secret Service men and a car containing Inspector Faurot and several local detectives. Then followed President Wilson in an automobile with Mrs. Wilson and Colonel and Mrs. Edward M. House. The party passed down Broadway and entered the Opera House at the Thirty-ninth Street entrance. A half hour before their arrival traffic on Broadway in the vicinity had been suspended by the police.

The audience rose and applauded when the President entered the auditorium and the cheering kept the President on his feet bowing and smiling.

The applause for the President ended only when the Metropolitan Opera House orchestra, conducted by Pierre Monteux, began to play the "Marseillaise." The audience stood during this rendition and during the playing "God Save the King," the "Garibaldi Hymn," and "The Star-Spangled Banner."

The cheering for the President was resumed a few minutes later when Henry P. Davison, referring to the President, said:

"I can say nothing that would add to the fame of the man who is recognized as the leader of the world."

Mr. Wilson, after he had been introduced by Mr. Dodge, said:

THE PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

"Mr. Chairman and fellow countrymen: I should be very sorry to think that Mr. Davison in any degree curtailed his exceedingly interesting speech for fear that he was postponing mine, because I am sure you listened with the same intent and intimate interest with which I listened to the extraordinarily vivid account he gave of the things which he had realized because he had come in contact with them on the other side of the waters. We compass them with our imagination; he compassed them in his personal experience, and I am not come here tonight to review for you the work of the Red Cross. I am not competent to do so, because I have not had the time nor the opportunity to follow it in detail. I have come here simply to say a few

New Entente Treaty Displaces One Embodying Italy's Demands

LONDON, May 18.—The war treaty between France, Italy, England, and Russia has been abrogated and its place taken by a new treaty, according to The Manchester Guardian.

The old treaty embodied the terms upon which Italy entered the war, and The Guardian assumes that it is greatly modified by the new convention. This was the treaty which was published by the Bolshevist Government in Russia on Jan. 26.

Leon Trotzky, who in January was Bolshevist Foreign Minister, published the texts of secret treaties and documents from the files of the Foreign Office. The one referred to in this dispatch set forth in detail the territorial concessions demanded by Italy before that country entered the war against the Central Powers.

HERTLING STILL HOPEFUL OF PEACE

Will Be Brought About This Year on Western Front, Chancellor Believes.

WOULD JOIN PEACE LEAGUE

But Sees Little Hope of That Now—Considers Hungary Closer to Germany.

AMSTERDAM, May 18.—"I am still optimistic enough to believe we shall have peace this year," said the German Chancellor, Count von Hertling, in an interview with the Berlin correspondent of the Budapest newspaper Az Est. "I cherish firm confidence that further events in the west will bring us nearer a speedy end of the war."

"If the world should one day unite in an international peace league," added Count von Hertling, "Germany would unhesitatingly and joyfully join it. Unfortunately, present conditions give very little hope of that. Our desire is to win and preserve peace."

Referring to the negotiations between Germany and Austria-Hungary at German Great Headquarters, Chancellor von Hertling said that naturally only basic principles were discussed, the adjustment of details being left to subsequent negotiations.

"The deepening and further development of the work begun by those great statesmen, Bismarck and Andrassy," the Chancellor remarked, "will assuredly have beneficial consequences for Germany and Hungary. I need not especially lay emphasis upon the fact that all the efforts intended to secure the improvement of Germano-Hungarian relations and to bring those peoples closer together have our warmest sympathy. M. Clemenceau, who indulged in the illusion that he would be able to sever our firm alliance, will now be able to see from the results of our negotiations the fruits of his intrigues.

"It gives me particular pleasure to address public opinion in Hungary at a moment when by the conclusion of peace with Rumania, German and Hungarian comradeship in arms has obtained for Hungary most satisfactory results, namely, that henceforth Hungary's frontiers will be better protected against Rumanian attack, and it receives far-reaching guarantees against the repetition of similar surprises through hostile aspirations of its Rumanian neighbor. I sincerely hope this proved comradeship in arms will for all time help to keep Germany and Hungary from forgetting the common interest they have in maintaining a lasting friendship.

"I am quite prepared for the aggressive intentions and tendencies ascribed to us by our opponents and the watchword given out by the Entente of an economic war after the war against the Central Powers. This assertion, however, is entirely false. We want nothing but our place in the sun.

"The new dual alliance will comprise two important sections, namely, economic and military agreements. The economic agreement of Germany and Austria-Hungary is not aimed at any State whatever. We are quite entitled to harmonize out common interests and act together. We desire to utilize the possibilities which this union, and nothing else, can give us.

"With regard to the military side of the discussions I must emphasize that our agreements for the future have no aggressive character. We only desire consolidation of our present relations. We also desire to remain just as closely bound together after the war as during the war, which has drawn us together. At headquarters I talked to von Arz, then to von Hindenburg and Ludendorff, and all three expressed great satisfaction.

"Our policy has ever been the policy of peace, just as our alliance with the monarchy is a peace alliance—an alliance for the preservation of peace. We are now fighting for our existence and for peace, which we also long for. I am still optimistic enough to believe we shall have peace this year. I say optimistic, in spite of the speeches we hear from Entente statesmen, who still talk of crushing the Central Powers.

"It might have been thought that the attacks on Lloyd George, which, after all, indicate the strength of the peace idea, would have created a better basis for the possibility of peace. That, however, has not been the case. At the moment, I cannot say more than that I cherish firm confidence that further events in the west will bring us nearer to a speedy end of the war and that the alliance between Germany and Austria-Hungary, which has been tested and extended during the war, will then bring renewed prosperity and rich blessings."

CONSCRIPTION ISSUE DEAD?

That Is the General Interpretation Put Upon the Lord Lieutenant's Proclamation.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 18.—The Government's coup in arresting large numbers of Sinn Feiners on charges of treasonable communications with the enemy appears to have had a quieting effect in Dublin. From private advices from well-informed quarters in that city, THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent learned today that there had been a great easing off in the fears of trouble that were recently felt there.

Comment in London on Lord French's proclamation is restrained pending developments and fuller knowledge, but such doubts as exist in some Liberal circles as to the course of the Government's Irish policy are tempered by the confidence which is felt by Liberals both in Lord French and the Chief Secretary. The Lord Lieutenant is not a politician, but is known to be a liberal-minded man and a good Irishman, while Mr. Shortt, who in his published statement today emphasizes the fact that the Lord Lieutenant's measures are directed solely against dangerous German intrigue, is a strong supporter of the Irish Nationalists.

The suggestion made by The Freeman's Journal that "conscription is to be launched in Ireland under cover of revelations connected with an alleged German plot" is not here regarded as a fair construction of the facts, although The Westminster Gazette says:

"A more unhappy conjunction than the suggestion of the abandoning of conscription with the earlier announcement about the discovery of a conspiracy we cannot imagine. To lump these two things together in one document is a cardinal blunder, and we are not at all surprised to find that most of our morning contemporaries give all prominence to the alleged conspiracy and reduce the reversal of the Government policy in regard to recruiting to a minor place."

Hundreds of Sinn Feiners Arrested.

LONDON, May 18.—The Government has adopted the policy of the iron hand in dealing with the sedition in Ireland. All the leaders of the Sinn Fein Society have been arrested by a swift comprehensive dragnet drawn by the police and soldiers last night and in the early hours of this morning. The movement was apparently a complete surprise, and most of those arrested were quickly and quietly placed aboard ships.

The dragnet swept all over the country, and there was no possibility of resistance. The majority of those arrested were taken from their homes while asleep, and only a few scuffles and a little revolver play took place. According to latest reports 500 arrests were made.

All the Sinn Fein members of Parliament have been arrested.

Documents of great importance in connection with an Irish conspiracy have fallen into the hands of the Government through the arrest by coast guards of a man with certain evidence upon him.

Many Sinn Fein Officers Taken.

Among those arrested in connection with the alleged general conspiracy are: Professor Edward de Valera, President of the Sinn Fein; Arthur Griffith, its founder and Vice President; Darrell Figgis, one of the secretaries; William Cosgrove, M. P., for Kilkenny, one of the treasurers; Dr. Thomas Dillon, and the Countess Markievich, members of the Executive Committee; Dr. Richard Hayes, H. Mellows, brother of Liam Mellows, who was arrested in America last year; Sean Milroy, defeated Sinn Fein candidate for Parliament at the recent East Tyrone election; Sean McGarry, and Thomas Keefe.

James Cotter of London and Richard Cotter, Gaelic League organizer in Dublin, have been arrested and are charged under the Defense of the Realm act with taking a boat within fifteen miles of Kingstown Pier on April 15, that being a prohibited area. James Cotter is further charged with collecting information which might be useful to the enemy.

It is not stated whether these cases

Germans Quickly Defeated in a Raid Near Luneville; Flee From Our Fighters After Considerable Loss

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, May 18, (Associated Press.)—The Germans attempted a vigorous silent raid on one of the American combat groups within a strong point in the Lunéville sector this morning, but were badly beaten.

The raid was a complete failure, and cost the enemy considerable losses. None of the Americans is missing.

The fight was carried on with hand grenades, rifles and revolvers, and it was virtually hand-to-hand. The Germns beat a hasty retreat after ten minutes, carrying virtually all their dead and wounded with them. One dead German, however, was left behind.

The scene of the encounter was about a mile and a half southwest of Bremenil (Empermenil?)

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, May 18.—Critics in America of the air program of the United States appear not to give full consideration to the question of quality or quantity, and what has been accomplished in training air fighters. The record of our combat aviators who took up positions back of the American sector a few weeks ago gives eloquent promise. Up to today their score is ten to two. In other words, they have brought down ten boche fliers with the loss of two of ours.

This is an enviable record, but is not all they have accomplished. Before they took their position the boche unquestionably had the best of the situation in that sector. This was due in part to British and French aviators having more important work to do elsewhere, but none the less it was true.

The situation has now changed and the Americans think they have the best of the situation. It is certainly true that most of the fights take place back over the German lines, and certainly true that boche flyers are much more wary about coming over our sector.

Trained Men Await Planes.

The American Army now has a splendid corps of airmen who are trained and awaiting the arrival of planes from home and from French factories where American contracts have been placed. If our army had more airplanes at this time we could now be an important factor in air warfare on the western front.

English and French aviators with whom our fliers are serving speak of them in the highest terms and have every reason to believe that our men are going to make good on their promises and best performances. Although up to the present America in her first year in the war has placed no American-made airplanes on the front, it is expected here that before very long American airmen will be able to go over the enemy lines in American planes.

However, owing to many factors in the situation which cannot be detailed it is most likely that American combat fliers for some time will use largely French machines. This applies to single hand fighters. America is expected to place on the front a large number of observation and bombing avions.

Due to recent heavy calls on the French supply, deliveries of avions to Americans have been slightly delayed, but they are expected soon to speed up. As a matter of fact for the size of the American forces in our own sector we have the proper number of combat machines.

American Fliers With Allies.

American fliers are now serving with the French and English armies at a number of points along the western front, and also are aiding in the defense of Paris against Gotha air raids. They now have enough aviators in training for a large army, with a big reserve, including fliers training in France and the United States.

The number of aviators training here is so large in comparison with

LUDENDORFF AS AUTHORITY

Declared Only Fire Effect Was Decisive—Our Millions as a Growing Menace.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, May 18.—Now that American troops are with the British and French armies, in addition to holding their own sector, our commanders are taking a new and more personal interest in the questions, "What tactics will the Germans employ in the next drive? Where will the next blow fall? When will it start?"

There are good reasons to believe that the Germans may try some other method than that by which they won advances against the allied lines in the Somme battle in March, namely, hurrying mass after mass of human material ahead until part of the crest of the waves obtained the objectives. There are strong indications that the Germans next time will make greater use of high explosives and less use of human material—in other words, will depend more on artillery fire than they did the last time. The best authority for this belief is General Ludendorff. In an order issued March 30 he said:

"The idea of compelling success by the employment of masses of troops must be absolutely eradicated. This merely leads to unnecessary losses. It is fire effect which is decisive, and not numbers."

Gains Too Dearly Bought.

This strong statement by Ludendorff in condemnation of the method of warfare so often used by the Germans at least warrants a belief in the probability of different tactics next time. It is to be noted that the order issued March 30 came after most of the gains of the offensive starting March 21 had been made, and indicates the German General may feel that the ground gained was too dearly bought.

Something larger may be read between the lines of Ludendorff's striking statement, and that is that he is not worried so much about the inhumanity of sacrificing too many of his soldiers by this or that method, but that now, for the first time in the war, the Germans must turn their attention to conservation of man power. They must do that because of the millions America will hurl against them if need be. Generally speaking, during the war the Kaiser has not suffered from lack of man power. It might be said that for the last year he has had all the men he wanted.

But now, perhaps, things are beginning to change. The German Army reached its highest mark in August, 1916, when it numbered 6,800,000. Now it numbers 5,300,000. This means a loss of a million and a half, besides 900,000 recruits added in the last two years.

Against this loss of approximately 1,200,000 every twelve months the Kaiser has 600,000 class recruits annually. Of the 1,500,000 increase in German fighters on the western front last year most came from the Russian front.

Limits to German Man Power.

But the Kaiser cannot this year draw large numbers from that quarter. Peace between Germany and Rumania liberates only five German divisions. Recovery of German prisoners from Russia has not proceeded well for the German High Command.

1,900,000 GERMANS READY

Weather Now the Great Factor in Deciding Time of Offensive

HEAVY GUNFIRE KEEPS UP

Australians Make a Successful Raid at Morlancourt, North of the Somme.

FIGHTING NEAR LASSIGNY

Berlin Records a Violent Hand-to-Hand Combat, but Paris Says Little.

LONDON, May 18.—With only minor operations occurring along the western front and the usual heavy gunfire at important points on the line, notably on the Lys salient and from the Somme southward beyond the Avre, allied capitals are awaiting calmly for the opening of the new German offensive.

A dispatch from Paris suggests that the beginning of the offensive by which the Germans expect to achieve final success now depends solely on weather conditions. The Commander in Chief, the French troops, and their allies are waiting for the shock with the greatest confidence, it is added.

The Petit Parisien says that the enemy has massed nearly all his best troops on the attacking front. Between the Belgian coast and the Oise, it states, 140 divisions (about 1,900,000 men) have been distributed, eighty-two on the front line, or for direct support, and the remainder behind the lines, to be used for augmenting the push at the principal point of attack. This newspaper says that the German plan is to threaten Amiens, cut the railroad between that point and Clermont, and break up the allied forces, whatever the cost may be.

Field Marshal Haig's report from British Headquarters in France tonight says:

Successful raids, in which we took a number of prisoners and two machine guns, were carried out this morning in daylight in the Morlancourt sector and south of Hulluch. In the former enterprise Australian troops rushed a hostile post west of Morlancourt village, and, taking the garrison by surprise, captured twenty-one prisoners and a machine gun without incurring any casualties themselves.

The hostile artillery was somewhat more active this morning in the Villers-Bretonneux sector.

The day bulletin of the British War Office says:

There was considerable artillery activity last night on both sides between Givenchy and Robecq. The hostile artillery has shown some activity also in the Lens, Hazebrouck, and Ypres sectors.

There is nothing further to report.

The official statement issued by the French War Office tonight reads:

There were lively artillery actions north of the Avre and in the Champagne sector in the region of Massiges.

Our patrols brought in prisoners between Lassigny and Noyon.

Two enemy airplanes were shot down on May 16 and another during the night of May 16-17.

The day bulletin of the French War Office reads:

There were violent bombardments at various points on the front north and south of the Avre.

German raids near Massiges (Champagne) and north of Four-de-Paris (Argonne) were without results.

Everywhere else the night was calm.

FOE'S LOSSES IN DRIVE DRAINED RESERVES

Hindenburg Was Forced to Draw on Forces in Germany to Fill Crippled Divisions.

LONDON, May 18.—The most definite figures yet announced regarding German losses on the western front this Spring have been given to The Associated Press. Since the beginning of the offensive, on March 21, 206 German divisions have been on the western front, of which 126 actually have been engaged on the Somme and Armentières fronts.

The 208th German Division, which was one of those suffering most heavily, lost 70 per cent. of its effectives. Seven other German divisions are known to have lost more than 50 per cent., and at least seven other divisions are named as having lost 40 to 50 per cent.

Only forty men to the company were left in the 119th Division after the fighting of March 22 and 23. The 1st Division was in similar straits after reaching Sailly-Laurette on March 28, and the 234th Division was weakened

SELF-DENIAL PAYS THE WAR EXPENSES

Arnold Bennett Epitomizes the Gospel of Service for Those Who Remain at Home.

GREAT DEEDS OF WOMEN

They Have Kept England's Industrial Output Near Full with 5,000,000 Men at War.

By ARNOLD BENNETT.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 18.—The sale of war bonds has fallen off and official people, very high up in the world, have been getting a little excited about the business of paying for the war, and we are all of us now being firmly told that the war has got to be paid for—which means that we (you and I) have got to pay for it.

This is most deeply and most ungleasantly true, but I wish that people, including the lofty official people, would not always talk as if money was the only thing or the chief thing concerned in paying for the war. You could not in a modern State pay for war without using the machinery of money, nevertheless the constant use of the word money, money, money, is apt to put people's thoughts on the wrong track and to send them wide of the real point. Money is only the outward sign of something else—something which is essential. That something else may be expressed as work and self-denial.

At this stage you will probably be saying to yourself. "Oh! this fellow is tedious. We are nearing the end of the fourth year of war, and we are becoming rather sick of the work and self-denial game. Besides, we can't do more than we are doing."

No Complaint from Trenches.

Well, I know you are nearing the end of the fourth year of war. So am I nearing the end of the fourth year of war. So is Germany. So are we all, and so, by the way, are the men in the field, but we have not noticed in the official communiqués, or even in private letters from the front, any such phrase as "our troops, being near the end of the fourth year of war and being rather sick of the eternal affair, fought with less than their old determination." Indeed, I have noticed that they fought as stubbornly as ever, if not more so, and did rather more than they had ever done, though nobody could imagine that that was possible.

Here I will continue. I say that the war, so far as it is paid for by civilians, is paid for by work and by self-denial. Many who never worked before are now working, and those who did work before are working much harder than they used to work.

Sir Albert Stanley gave some surprising and comforting figures in his speech in the House of Commons Wednesday night. He said that over half of all the industrial workers were now working on Government account, that is for the war. He said that there are a million and a half more women working today than at the beginning of the war.

Here is an item, which includes both work and self-denial, for it is certain that had there been no war the majority of those women would have been engaged in their homes, keeping them nice and clean and attractive and adding charm to them and, therefore, that hundreds of thousands of homes must be suffering in these important respects.

How Women Have Helped.

But the most startling statement by Sir Albert was that in spite of the fact that over 5,000,000 men are now in the army, and consequently have changed over from being producers to being solely consumers—in spite of this, the total industrial output is very little less today than it was before the war.

You have in that statement a clear proof that the war is being daily paid for by extra work, but that work involves self-denial, both directly and indirectly. It involves self-denial because if you work harder and longer you have less time and energy for pleasures and diversions and, perhaps, even for sleep. And it involves self-denial because you cannot now get the materials of pleasure and diversion with the same freedom as of old and you cannot get them because the people who produced them are now working for the war instead of for your pleasures and diversions.

Thus you cannot go to the seaside as much as you used to go and you cannot burn as much coal or buy as large newspapers or as many chocolates because the men and women who made these pleasant things possible are quite otherwise and more sternly engaged.

Now I think that the vast majority of us are working just about as hard as we can, but I greatly doubt whether the vast majority of us are practicing as much self-denial as we might.

The explanation of our partial failure lies, of course, in the fact that we are human and imperfect. A pity, but it is so.

Ways of Self-Denial.

Some of our self-denial is ordained for us by Government, and that portion of our self-denial we do faithfully carry out, for we are the greatest respecters of law on the face of the earth. But some of our self-denial is optional, and that portion many of us do not faithfully carry out, and we are weak and we do not strengthen ourselves by a fresh daily resolve.

Let nobody say to himself, "Pooh, what difference can a pipe of tobacco make." Each man has to do his share, regardless of others. If 10,000,000 smokers of this country each smoked half an ounce less each week the difference would be very notable.

As with tobacco, so with other things. In the end if self-denial is universally practiced, our services must be and, in fact, are transferred directly or indirectly to the war. The transfer may cause the ruin of some people, but though we ought to sympathize practically with those people and help them all we can, their ruin must be regarded as inevitable to efficient and righteous national conduct in the war. This is a hard saying, but a true one, and anyhow, they may be less ruined than young soldiers maimed for life or driven mad.

Mind, I am not arguing that we must go about in rags, take no pleasures and divide our existence between work and bed. To do so would be ridiculous. Some pleasure and diversion are necessary to that just as we ought to work as hard as is consistent with health, so we ought to indulge ourselves as little as is consistent with that of cheerfulness, which is essential to efficiency.

Ideal of the Hour.

The ideal is a maximum of personal productiveness with a minimum of personal consumption, and here money comes in.

If we attain this ideal we shall undoubtedly have money to spare. Spare money is proof that services and goods are being transferred to war. It is nothing in itself. If we are good investors we shall certainly put our spare money into the war loan.

"Up to quite lately we have done pretty well. Over two and a quarter million people have bought war stock and war bonds. Over 10,000,000 people have bought war savings certificates. Over 4,000,000 people have Post Office savings bank accounts. Indeed, out of every ten people, men, women, and children in this island, at least three have invested money in Government securities.

"Amazing? Yes, but it is not enough. The three must increase their holdings and some of the other seven must make a start in investing. It can be done and it will be done."

KAISER GREETED CHARLES HEARTILY

Series of Meetings at Great Headquarters — Hindenburg Also There.

AMSTERDAM, May 18.—The meeting between Emperor Charles and Emperor William at Main Headquarters is described by the Vienna correspondent of the Berlin Tageblatt, a copy of which has been received here.

Emperor William met the Austrian monarch at the station. The sovereigns heartily greeted each other and then motored to the house which had been prepared for the occupancy of Emperor Charles and where the principal military personages and statesmen awaited his coming.

After the German Emperor had left for his quarters, Emperor Charles received in turn the German representatives at the Austro-Hungarian Army Headquarters. Among those received were Field Marshal von Hindenburg, General Ludendorff, and Major Gen. Cramon, the German military representative in Austria.

Upon the German Emperor's return the two monarchs spent over an hour together at breakfast at the German Emperor's headquarters. During the afternoon Emperor Charles, with Baron Burian, the Austro-Hungarian Premier, welcomed Emperor William when he paid another call. The Emperors took tea alone, remaining over an hour and a half together. Immediately afterward Imperial Chancellor von Hertling and Dr. Richard von Kühlmann, the German Foreign Minister, successively entered Emperor Charles's room.

In the meantime Emperor William heard his advisers and received high Austro-Hungarian officials in a special audience.

The Chancellor and diplomats conferred together, and von Arz, von Hindenburg, and Ludendorff had repeated conferences. The military and political leaders and the two Emperors met at supper. The German Emperor entered the salon and greeted his guests. He had a long talk with several officials. Telegrams were being continually handed to him.

Emperor William greeted Emperor Charles, and invited him into the library. The German Chancellor, the Austro-Hungarian Foreign Minister, the German Foreign Secretary, and their advisers followed. After ten minutes the Emperors returned to the salon and extended a hand to each other. On the table in the library could be seen the documents which the Secretaries had been collecting.

At supper the monarchs toasted each other, and later they and the officials engaged in conversations which were extraordinarily animated. Emperor Charles had a long talk with Chancellor von Hertling and Field Marshal von Hindenburg, and the German Emperor kept constantly returning to take brief part in the conversation. An eye-witness says that the prevailing feeling was one of strong confidence in the future.

Emperor William escorted Emperor Charles to the station, where a hearty farewell concluded the meeting.

CHARLES IN SOFIA.

Crown Prince Welcomes Him to Bulgaria, Emperor Ferdinand Being Ill.

SOFIA, (via Amsterdam,) May 18.—Emperor Charles of Austria, accompanied by Empress Zita and a number of dignitaries of the Austrian court, arrived here on Friday afternoon. They were met at the station by Crown Prince Boris and Prince Cyril, Emperor Ferdinand being indisposed. All the Ministers of State and numerous Generals were in the welcoming party. There was a procession to the palace, and afterward a formal dinner and reception.

Emperor Charles, the Empress, and a number of the leading statesmen of the Austrian court, left Vienna on Thursday for a visit to Sofia and Constantinople.

NEW AUSTRIAN ATTACK ON MONTE CORNO FAILS

Enemy Columns, Strongly Supported by Guns, Thrown Back in Confusion.

ROME, May 18.—A third attempt by the Austrians to recapture Monte Corno has failed, according to the official communication from General Headquarters issued today.

The War Office communication reads:

During the early hours yesterday the enemy attempted in vain for the third time to reconquer Monte Corno; which we occupied in the night of May 9-10. Two columns provided with machine guns and flame projectors and strongly supported by artillery, attacked our positions. They were caught under our very effective artillery barrage, and kept under violent bursts of machine gun and rifle fire until compelled to retire in confusion. Two flame projectors remained in our hands. The positions on Monte Corno were firmly held by our troops.

Other hostile detachments were repulsed with losses on Dosso Alto, on the Northern slopes of Altissimi in the Frenzela valley, in the Asolone area at the head of the Ornic valley, and near Fener.

Three enemy machines were brought down along the Middle Piave, two of which fell within our lines and the third at Grave di Paeado Poli.

Paris Labor with Clemenceau.

PARIS, May 18.—A complete understanding has been reached between the leaders of the workers in the Paris district and Premier Clemenceau. At a meeting last night at which the questions causing unrest among the workers was discussed, the leaders promised the Premier that they would issue notices calling upon the munition work-

FAMINE STALKS WITHIN PETROGRAD

Hams at $300 Each, Eggs 75 Cents Each, Are Examples of Food Scarcity.

BRITISH COLONY SUFFERING

Its 500 Members Have Appealed to the Foreign Office to Send Supplies.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 18.—A dispatch to The London Times dated Petrograd, April 30, says:

"The famine in Petrograd is becoming positively alarming. There is practically no food in the markets or in the shops. Two-thirds, if not more, of the latter are permanently closed for want of goods of all kinds besides foodstuffs. There is no flour, no sugar, no potatoes, cheese, or milk, no grain or groats, and very little meat. All is under control unless accidentally or privately obtained. The principal necessaries of life have to be got, when possible, through friends and chance acquaintances at enormous cost if you have money to pay for them, or as meagre rations doled out by the authorities, and absolutely inadquate for subsistence. The present ration of indigestible black bread, half baked, with as much moisture as possible left in it to increase its weight, is one-eighth of a pound per day, and often that is not forthcoming on account of the hopeless disorder and universal thieving habit.

"Relatives and dependents rob one another of food without compunction. Hunger has no conscience. If a morsel of anything is left on the plate for later consumption it will disappear as soon as you turn your back. Every scrap has to be put under lock and key after each meal. In my own case, the house committee which receives flour from the town authorities for distribution to us tenants could not account for nine poods (324 pounds) of flour, so that we all had to go without any bread for two days.

"In spite of special commissions and stringent measures against hoarding and speculation, profiteering goes on to a great extent among all classes. In fact, food is a far more valuable commodity than paper money and secretly circulates instead of it. All conversation indoors and out is about food and how to get it. Half the working day is wasted in pursuit of sufficient to eat.

"As an illustration of how far disorganization and greed can go, I may mention the fact that no fewer than fifteen cartloads of rotten hares were recently brought into town and several attempts made to foist them on the municipal executives; but they were finally rejected and condemned. Good hares are being sold at £2 10 shillings apiece (nearly $12.50, according to the rate of exchange before the war.)

"Prices of other articles are quite fabulous. Hams are offered at £40 and £60 each. Butter costs 42 shillings a pound; cheese, 36 shillings a pound; white flour, 30 shillings a pound; eggs, 3 shillings apiece; carrots, 5 shillings a pound; potatoes, 6 shillings a pound. With the exception of occasional limited sales, most of these articles can only be obtained privately.

"In these circumstances the British community in Petrograd, which is now reduced perhaps to about 500 persons who are unable for various reasons to leave Russia, felt obliged to induce the British Consul and the incumbent of the English Church to wire to London for a few edible supplies to help us tide over this serious crisis. I am told that a telegram to this effect has been sent to the Foreign Office, but so far no assistance is forthcoming. We do not want luxuries, but a few cases of crushed oats, for example, some sugar margarine, and flour, would be a godsend.

"There has been no essential improvement of internal affairs here. On the contrary, the situation in many respects has been going from bad to worse. The only real change for the better has been in the weather. With a sudden increase of temperature a change appeared in the general aspect of the ex-capital. The solar rays powerfully assisted the artificial melters with fires of wood to thaw down the switchback of ice-caked roadways to the rough, uneven cobblestones and rotten wooden cubes of antiquated paving which have been so long unrepaired. The ice and frozen filth covering the roadways two or three feet deep was first broken up by gangs of men and women with whom the bourgeoisie were requisitioned to co-operate, and at some places they were to be seen plying pick and shovel under the supervision of armed soldiers of the Red Guards.

"Resisting, or as the fashionable revolutionary jargon now goes, 'sabotaging', persons who objected to take part in this street scavenging were threatened with heavy fines and imprisonment. In a few cases these penalties were enforced; but, like so many more of the tyrannical edicts lately issued, their general application was impossible, and the dominant proletariat had to be set to do work at extravagant wages far exceeding the salaries earned by educated men and the best skilled artisans before the war."

BURTSEFF MOURNS FATE OF REVOLUTION

Still Hopes That Russians Will Throw Off German Yoke and Rally to the Allies.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 18.—Vladimir Burtseff, the Russian journalist and revolutionary leader, who after the revolution actively opposed the anti-war propaganda among the Socialists, and when the Bolsheviki came into power was thrown into the fortress of Peter and Paul, was released a few weeks ago, and recently arrived in Stockholm, whence he writes to The Daily Chronicle:

"Amazing weakness on the one hand and vindictive purpose on the other completed the ruin of Russia. The Bolsheviki had a purpose, and they carried it out. My firm conviction is that the Bolshevik intentionally sold Russia to the Germans in order, at that terrible price, to have liberty to organize a propaganda of Bolshevist anarchy in all countries. The Germans intentionally sold to the Bolsheviki political liberties won by Europe. In all countries the seeds of anarchy were sown, with the object of bringing about dissolution of the allied armies and their political organization. The Germans are reminded of this, their [illegible] now by the Bolshevist red flag over the embassy in Berlin. Russia will have most dearly to pay for the treachery of the Bolsheviki, but for German treachery German imperialism will have to pay very soon.

"In the meantime the Germans are reaping the fruit of their great campaign of disorganization in Russia. They have laid their heavy hand on the occupied territories in the south and west, and their troops are steadily penetrating further east. In Bolshevist Russia itself, in that communist State where property is abolished, the Germans now are calmly buying up banks, estates, ships, and railways. To placate the Germans the Bolsheviki have entrusted the management of the 'nationalized' Petrograd banks to Ganetsky, a man convicted in Denmark of ordinary smuggling, a German agent caught red-handed.

"We revolutionaries longed for the revolution and believed in it when it came. We must sadly admit now that the revolution in Russia in wartime has so far been a calamity, not only for Russia, but for the whole world. The one hope is that those Russians who believe firmly in liberty will still be able to make common cause with the Allies and by one great, united effort throw off the German yoke. Then the revolution will not have been in vain, and the great ideals for which it stood will be realized, the ideals of the world."

WOULD ACT FOR RUSSIA.

Berlin's Offer to Assume Diplomatic Burdens at Batum Is Declined.

LONDON, May 18.—A Russian Government wireless dispatch from Moscow today gives the text of a note sent by M. Tchitcherin, the Russian Foreign Minister, to Count von Mirbach, German Ambassador at Moscow, declining Germany's offer to represent Russia in the negotiations now in progress at Batum between Germany and Turkey, on the one hand, and the new Transcaucasian Government on the other. M. Tchitcherin contends that a large proportion of the population of Transcaucasia opposes the newly constituted Transcaucasian Government, which likewise is not recognized by Russia, and he insists that Russia be represented in the negotiations. Otherwise, he declares, Russia will not feel bound to recognize the treaty to be negotiated.

M. Tchitcherin has notified Adolph Joffe, Russian Ambassador at Berlin, that Russia has agreed to participate in the negotiations with the new Skoropadsky Government in the Ukraine, beginning at Kiev on May 22. He also has instructed M. Joffe to protest against the German occupation of Rostov-on-the-Don as a violation of the Brest-Litovsk treaty.

AMSTERDAM, May 18.—According to the Socialist newspaper Vorwärts of Berlin the new Ukrainian Cabinet is considering the question of annexing the Crimea.

SEMENOFF ADVANCING.

His Siberian Army Numbers 3,000 Men, Moscow Hears.

MOSCOW, May 12, (Associated Press.)—The advance upon Siberia of General Semenoff, the Cossack anti-Bolshevist leader, is taking tangible form. His force numbers 3,000 men, a third of whom are Russians and the rest, according to Bolshevist reports, Japanese and Chinese.

General Semenoff's army is moving in three columns on a front of 300 miles, using railroads, rivers, and highways. It is said to be well officered with artillery, machine guns, motor trucks, and airplanes. The first column is only two stations from the junction of the trans-Siberian and Amur Railways, the cutting of which would isolate Siberia beyond Chita. Stretensk, on the Amur line east of Chita, is being evacuated. The Siberian and Soviet Governments have appealed to the population to arm.

The Bolshevist newspapers think that General Semenoff's advance is inspired by the Japanese, owing to the preparations made at Harbin. They express the belief that an allied movement in Siberia is certain as soon as an understanding is reached between the Allies and the claimants to authority in Siberia.

WILL JAIL FINNISH DEPUTIES.

High Court Orders the Arrest of All Socialist Members of the Diet.

STOCKHOLM, May 18. — Finland's High Court of Justice, sitting at Abo, yesterday by telegraph ordered all Socialist members of the Finnish Diet, even those members not compromised by the insurrection, under arrest. Restoration of a Government in Finland may thus be secured, as no new general election will take place before a decision on the question of a monarchy as opposed to a republic and a one or two chamber system is reached.

General Mannerheim's speech expressing the Finnish army's demand for a monarchy, it is understood here, bears heavy weight.

COURT-MARTIAL FOR EX-CZAR.

Secret Trial Said to be Set for Late June in Moscow.

AMSTERDAM, May 18.—Nicholas Romanoff, former Czar of Russia, according to the Lokal-Anzeiger of Berlin, will be tried by a court-martial in Moscow the latter part of June. The trial will be secret.

Some days ago the ex-Czar, his wife, and one daughter were removed from Tobolsk to Ekaterinburg, in the Ural Mountains. The Soviet Government said that the removal was made necessary by the discovery of a peasant plot in behalf of the former Emperor. His son Alexis, it was added, remained in Tobolsk on account of ill health.

GERMAN TROOPS MUTINY?

Several Officers Reported Killed in Rising at Wesenberg.

MOSCOW, Wednesday, May 15.—Mutiny is reported among German regiments at Wesenberg, Esthonia. Several officers have been killed, it is said.

Teuton Loan to the Ukraine.

THE HAGUE, May 18.—The Central Powers have granted a loan of 4,000,000 marks to Ukraine, according to a dispatch from Kiev to the Tageblatt of Berlin, giving the details of the financial agreement with the new republic. The loan is payable at the rate of seventy-five kopecks per mark and fifty kopecks per kroner for German and Austrian money, respectively. By replacing the existing issues of paper money in Ukraine, the Germans hope to force the peasants there to give up their large gold reserves.

REPORT NURSE DEWAR SAFE.

Story of Her Death at the Front Is Officially Denied.

Mrs. A. B. Lester of 581 Eighth Street, Newark, sister of Miss Minnie Dewar of Newark, a nurse connected with Base Hospital 1 in France, received a cable message yesterday from Surgeon General Brainsted informing her that Miss Dewar is safe and enjoying good health. Last Monday a story was circulated by the young woman's father, John Dewar, to the effect that she had been killed by a bursting shell in No Man's Land while bending over a wounded soldier. Dewar would not tell where he got his information, claiming he had a secret source. The Federal authorities finally warned him that he must not circulate false stories.

GERMANY TO SEIZE SUITS FOR WORKMEN

Paper Clothing Has Proved a Failure and Civilians Are Ordered to Turn In All Extras.

SHORT OF WAR MATERIALS

New Drastic Orders for the Seizure of Copper, Tin, &c.—Rubber Shortage Proves Serious.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 18.—The Kaiser has undertaken to supply three million suits of clothes to war workmen by expropriating the clothing of civilians. The workers threatened to go on strike unless they had clothes, and so Berlin has sent orders the length and breadth of the empire that any man who has more than one suit shall give it to the Fatherland quickly. Evening clothes and smoking jackets are excepted. Under the plan the collecting of clothing has been assigned to local authorities, the number in each district being fixed by central authority.

A statement issued by the Imperial Clothing Office expresses the hope that delivery will be voluntary on the part of those having more than one suit. Ten per cent. extra is being paid if extra suits are delivered within three weeks. Persons not making voluntary deliveries will be forced to surrender their extra clothing.

Despite the bombastic claims of Berlin as to accomplishments in the development of substitutes for wool and cotton and the consequent ease of supplying workmen with clothes, it seems that this is all news to the German workers, who have recently made loud protest about working with only paper clothes. The paper clothes, they say, don't last long enough to hide their nakedness. A petition to the Imperial Chancellor by the German Textile Workers' Union called attention to promises to relieve the textile shortage by paper substitutes, and said the expectations had not been realized. The petition said:

"The quality of paper materials on the market is indescribable and the prices extortionate. The committee, therefore, considers it its duty to protest expressly against the wretched payment of workers by those profiteering at the expense of the public and the detriment suffered by the nation by reason of the poor quality of these paper products."

Meanwhile Germany announces other substitutes for textiles, but admits failure by commandeering the extra suits of civilians. It is not recorded whether any of the Crown Prince's extra suits will fit munition workers.

Evidence accumulates of the increasing shortage of war materials. Several drastic orders have recently been issued by the military authorities indicating a dire lack of metals, especially copper, zinc, and aluminium.

The German military authorities have given notice to the civil population of an immediate inspection of household fittings in copper, copper alloy, nickel, aluminium, and zinc. The order applies to doorknobs, metal sinks, window handles, gas brackets, and many other kinds of household hardware. Up to now metal household fixtures, except large pieces, had not been subject to seizure by the military.

A still more drastic order relates to tin, specifying metal used in steam-heated houses, letter boxes, oil cans, candlesticks, and shop window fittings. All supplies of manganese have been requisitioned. Nickel coins are being called in to make machine gun parts. The rubber shortage has seriously affected the treatment of wounds, rubber drainage tubes being replaced by sterilized animal vessels. Substitutes for rubber operating shoes and rubber gloves are wooden shoes and gloves of silk. Cotton wool bandages are replaced by cellulose wadding, and rubber sheets by various chemical substitutes. The shortage of rubber manifests itself also in the use of substitutes for automobile tires.

New Austrian Loan at 5 1-2.

AMSTERDAM, May 18.—The eighth Austrian war loan will be issued shortly after Whitsunday. The net price presumably will be 93, and the loan will carry interest at 5½ per cent., according to the Vossische Zeitung of Berlin.

CUT THE BREAD RATION OF GERMAN SOLDIERS

Large Promises of Results from Drive Are Not Fulfilled and There Is Grumbling.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, May 18, (Associated Press.)—The German soldiers have been put on reduced bread rations. They were promised that the offensive, which began March 21, would bring them into a country yielding additional quantities of food. The capture of some British canteens and transport wagons containing supplies tended to confirm this promise and whetted the appetites of the men for a square meal.

The meager spoils of the first drive, however, were speedily exhausted, and since then the troops have had to subsist on what rations could be brought through the British barrage. On the whole, they have not been starved, but there is great discontent, owing to the failure to improve their food supply.

CLUNG EIGHTY HOURS TO SEAPLANE WRECK

Ensign Stone, U. S. N. R., Given Up for Lost, Reaches London with Thrilling Story.

HAD NO FOOD OR DRINK

Rescued with Fellow-Aviator by Trawler When in the Last Stages of Exhaustion.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—Ensign E. A. Stone, United States Naval Reserves, of Norfolk, Va., given up for drowned in the English Channel last month, has arrived in London, according to information received here today from the London representative of the Committee on Public Information.

With a companion, Stone was rescued after having clung for eighty hours without food or drink to the under side of a capsized seaplane pontoon. He tells a thrilling story of how he and Sub-Lieutenant Eric Moore of the Royal Naval Air Service drifted on the seas from a Saturday morning until a Tuesday night. His account follows:

"I left our station in a British seaplane as pilot, with Sub-Lieutenant Moore as observer, at 9 A. M.' Our duty was to convoy patrols. When two hours out, having met our ships coming from the westward, we thought we sighted a periscope ahead, and turned off in pursuit. We lost our course. Our engine dropped dead, and at 11:30 o'clock forced us to land on the surface in a rough sea.

"We had no kite nor radio to call for assistance, so we released our two carrier pigeons. We tied a message, with our positions and the word "Sinking," on each. The first, the blue-barred one, flew straight off and reached home. But the other, which was white-checked, lit on our machine and would not budge until Moore threw our navigation clock at him, which probably upset him so that he failed us.

The Seaplane Turns Over.

"Heavy seas smashed our tail planes, which kept settling. I saw that they were pulling the machine down by the rear, turning her over. We tore the tail fabric to lessen the impact of the waves. It wasn't any use. The tail flat was smashed, and its box filled with water. This increased the downward leverage and rose her perpendicularly in the air. At 2:30 P. M. we capsized. We climbed up the nose and 'over the top' to the under side of the pontoons.

"Our emergency ration had been in the observer's seat at the back, but we had been so busy trying to repair the motor and save ourselves from turning over that we didn't remember this until too late. When I crawled aft for food Moore saw that I was only helping the machine to capsize. He yelled to me to come back, and did, just in time to save myself from being carried down with the tail and drowned.

"From then on, for nearly four days, until picked up by a trawler, we were continually soaked and lashed by seas and with nothing to eat or drink. We had nothing to cling to, and so, to keep from being washed overboard, we got upon the same pontoon and hugged our arms about one another's bodies for the whole time.

"We suffered from thirst. I had a craving for canned peaches. Twice a drizzle came on, wetting the pontoon. We turned on our stomachs and lapped up the moisture, but the paint came off, with salt, and nauseated us.

"Our limbs grew numb. From time to time the wreckage from torpedoed ships would pass. One two full biscuit tins came close enough to swim for, but by then, in our weakened state, we knew that we would drown if we tried to get them. We did haul in a third tin, and broke it open. I was filled with tobacco.

Ship Warily Sheered Away.

"Every day we saw convoys in the distance and vainly waved our handkerchiefs. We had no signal lights to use at night. Our watches stopped and we lost all track of time. We realized how easy it was for a submarine out there to escape being spotted. On Sunday night we spied a masthead light and shouted. The ship heard and began to circle us. We saw her portlight. She headed straight toward us, until within 100 yards. Then, when the crew were visible on the deck of the vessel, she suddenly put out her lights and turned away.

"'She thinks we are Huns,' said Moore.

"'I hope she does,' said I. 'Then they'll send patrol boats out to get us. We couldn't be worse off if we were Germans.'

"But no rescue came. On Monday afternoon a seaplane came from the south. It was flying only 800 feet overhead, aiming down the Channel. It seemed impossible that she could not sight us, for the air was perfectly clear.

"She passed straight above, without making any signal, flew two miles beyond, and came back on her course.

"Her observer must be sending wireless about us,' I said.

"'Yes, that is why we get no recognition,' said Moore, 'and now she's decided to go back and report.'

"But that plane hadn't even seen us. Our spirits fell. We had been afraid of two things, being picked up by neutral ships and interned, or captured by an enemy submarine. Now we even hoped that the enemy—that anything—would get us, to end it all.

"'A ship would have run us down before seeing us,' I said.

The Rescue by a Trawler.

"We sighted a trawler about 6 P. M. on Tuesday. She had been chasing a submarine, and so did not seem to take us very seriously at first. We waved at her for half an hour before she changed her course. We were both too weak to stand up and signal. We could only rise on our knees. Moore's hands were too swollen to hold a handkerchief, but I had kept my gloves on, and was able to do so. The trawler moved warily around us, but finally threw a life preserver at the end of a line. I yelled that we were too weak to grasp it. She finally hove to, lowered a boat, and lifted us aboard. Then we collapsed.

"I remember asking for a drink and getting water. The skipper would let us take only sips, but he left a bottle alongside me and I drained it. He gave us biscuits, but we couldn't chew or swallow them. I asked for peaches, and it almost seemed that my dreams of them had come true when he shoved things between my teeth.

"We felt no pain until our clothing was ripped off and blood rushed into our swollen legs and arms. Moore lost six toes from gangrene in the hospital. My feet turned black, but decay didn't set in.

"Every machine from the seaplane base and those from a station on the French coast had searched continually for aviators after the blue pigeon had homed, as did all the patrols and destroyers in the area."

Ensign Stone enlisted as a seaman and was trained in aviation. On Dec. 11 he was detached from the naval air station at Hampton Roads, Va., and ordered to France for duty, arriving there Jan. 21. In February he was directed to report to the commander of the United States naval forces, London, for patrol duty in England.

Stone's mother, Mrs. Clara Stone, resides in the Redgate apartment at Norfolk, Va.

The American Red Cross is Indebted to the Kaiser!

We Americans know what the Red Cross is and does—we know that it is composed of serious-minded surgeons, tender-hearted women, and dare-devil drivers of the ambulance corps—we know that it exists to save, not to sacrifice, to cure, not to kill, to relieve suffering, not to inflict pain—

But We Did Not Know

just how big a factor the Red Cross is in the fight for freedom till His Imperial Majesty, the Kaiser, turned his guns on the non-combatant forces of mercy—we did not know the vital value of its service till His Imperial Majesty ceased to discriminate between a fort and a hospital—we did not know that a Red Cross nurse was so inimical to kultur, till His Imperial Majesty shot down Edith Cavell—we did not know that human compassion for the dying was an act of aggression, till His Imperial Majesty sank convoys of wounded in the English Channel—we did not know that food for starving Belgians was a threat at the Fatherland, till His Imperial Majesty torpedoed the Red Cross Supply Ships in the North Sea—we did not know that it was a sin against Autocracy to hand a tin of water to a dying man, till His Imperial Majesty declared war on the wounded and exalted a Cross of Iron above the Cross of Mercy—and we had thought all along that the American Red Cross was behind the lines—we did not know that it was to be embroiled in the fight, but, thank God, Your Majesty, we know it now!

ARMY WILL HANDLE ITS MAIL IN FRANCE

Distribution and Collection of Letters and Packages Under War Department.

LIEUT. COL. HOWE IN CHARGE

Head of Military Postal Express Is to Expand Motor Dispatch on a Large Scale.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

From a Staff Correspondent.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, May 18.—Results obtained by the United States Post Office in the delivery of mail to soldiers of the American Expeditionary Force, which have been a source of constant complaint, have led to the taking over of the distribution and collection of American military mail in France by the War Department. To remedy conditions of the handling of mail, whereby Christmas packages are still being delivered, General Pershing has issued an order which places the handling of mail under the Adjutant General.

There has been no other one thing to occasion so much dissatisfaction and discontent among American soldiers as the delay and the failure to receive letters from home. I have heard boys in the trenches say that all their spirit has left them when expected letters from home have failed to arrive. Letters frequently take four weeks between New York and located units, and where the units are moving the time is much longer.

I received a letter yesterday from a unit twenty miles from here which was three weeks on the way. Because it takes only ten days for mail to get from New York to France, it is evident that the delay has been in the delivery of mail in France.

There has also been much complaint of lost mail. I have heard hundreds of complaints that souvenir packages sent to America never reached there. I have heard every one, from Generals to doughboys, complain about the mail service.

Under the old plan the Post Office handled mail from America up to the division Post Offices, where it was delivered by the military. Mail going to America was collected from division Post Offices. Under the new plan arriving mail will be taken over by the military when it reaches French ports, and mail going to America will be taken to the ports by the military. A statement issued says:

"Material improvement in the delivery of mail and express parcels to members of the American Expeditionary Force is hoped for as a result of the taking over of this service by the military authorities.

Lieut. Col. Thorndike D. Howe has been placed in charge of the military postal express service. This department is to take over and expand on a large scale the motor dispatch service. The director of the service has been authorized to make his own regulations as to the size and weight of packages and to establish liaison with the allied nations as well as with the United States Post Office. The central Post Office will be established at the main office of the service of supply, where there will be kept a complete roster of the American Expeditionary Force in an effort to better the lost mail situation. Branch offices will be established to take care of mail for American units attached to the British and French armies. The official statement says:

"It is hoped that in a few weeks the new system will be working with sufficient efficiency to permit distribution of all accumulated mail and reduce the time now necessary for getting a letter from America to the men in the American Expeditionary Force."

MUST REGISTER ON JUNE 5.

Believed That 800,000 Will Come In Under New Draft Law.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—June 5 has been fixed as the date for registration of youths who have attained the age of 21 since the first army draft registration on June 5 last year. The resolution authorizing the new registration is awaiting the President's signature, but the Provost Marshal General's office virtually has completed preparations for carrying it into effect. It is estimated that about 800,000 men available for military service will be found among the new registrants this year.

During the year beginning June 5 it is planned to have quarterly registrations.

BOSTON, May 18.—Announcement that June 5 had been agreed upon as the date for the registration for military service of men who have reached the age of 21 during the last year, was contained in a telegram today to Major Roger Wolcott, in charge of the army draft in this State, from Provost Marshal General Crowder.

BAKER WILL BE ORATOR ON ITALY-AMERICA DAY

Secretary of War to Speak at Great Mass Meeting in Metropolitan Opera House.

Charles Evans Hughes, President of the Italy-America Society, which is organizing the nation-wide celebration of Italy-America Day on Friday, May 24, announced yesterday that he had received a letter from Secretary of War Baker accepting the society's invitation to be one of the speakers at the grand concert and mass meeting in the evening at the Metropolitan Opera House as the culmination of New York's observance of the day. Secretary Baker requested that there be no formal reception tendered to him on that evening.

In addition to Mr. Baker, the speakers will include Mr. Hughes and the Italian Ambassador, Count Macchi di Cellere.

The musical program, which has been arranged by Captain Francisco Mario Guardabassi, will include Mmes. Aldo, Muzio, Anna Case, and Kathleen Howard and Messrs. Caruso, Martinelli, Amato, De Luca, and Scotti. The concert is under the personal direction of Mr. Gatti-Casazza. The orchestra will be conducted by Messrs. Moranzoni and Papi, and the chorus will be under the direction of Mr. Setti. The proceeds of the concert will be given to the Italian Red Cross.

German propaganda taking the form, it is said, of insinuations that America is not entering whole-heartedly into the war is to be combated by 100,000 letters which will be sent to Italy by American Italians and other Americans on Italy-America Day, and each letter will start a chain system, which, it is believed, will flood that country. The recipients of the letters are being asked in each case to pass them on to their friends, and in this way it is expected that a true picture of America's participation in the war and of its friendly attitude toward Italy will be presented to millions of Italians within a comparatively short time.

The Great Human and Humane Side of this War is Typified by the Heroic, Noble and Monumental Work of the

The American Red Cross Nurse is rearing to American womanhood a monument that will shine with radiant glory throughout the days of posterity. To the history of all womankind she is daily adding lustre, deeds of heroism and acts of succor.

The American Red Cross Nurse crystallizes the magnificent SPIRIT of WOMANHOOD in this war for World-Liberty and Democracy.

The American Doctor, the American Ambulance Driver, the Field and Hospital Orderly, unarmed and defenseless non-combatants, hourly plodding their way over shell-shot roads and fields—sought-for and easy prey of the predatory foe—making the "supreme sacrifice"—call for all the help and support that true American hearts can give.

BONWIT TELLER & CO. desire to make known their enthusiastic endorsement and adoption of the "Industrial Plan" for the raising of American Red Cross War Funds. The entire BONWIT TELLER & CO. organization has been divided into groups of twenty-five individuals—each group under the captaincy of a specially designated person. Each individual member of every group-unit pledges to contribute weekly or monthly a given amount, for twelve months, to the Red Cross War Fund—the total proceeds to be collected by the captain and forwarded to the proper authority.

It is the bounden duty of every American to contribute in the most generous manner to the American Red Cross. The rich must give their most. The poor must give their mite. Let the drive go on—let the drive be continuous. Give eagerly. Establish contribution boxes in every available quarter so that the cumulative power of nickels, dimes and quarters be a factor in swelling the American Red Cross $100,000,000 War Fund.

In addition to the "Industrial Plan" BONWIT TELLER & CO. are formulating other methods to promote within its shop the $100,000,000 Red Cross War Fund Campaign. The details of these plans will be daily announced.

SALVATIONIST FUND WELL OVER $250,000

Total Subscriptions of $250,000 Already in Hand and May Reach $300,000.

OFFICIALS THANK PUBLIC

Commander Booth and Colonel McIntyre Also Speak of Valuable Aid Given by the Press.

The Salvation Army drive to obtain $250,000 in New York City for its war work ended last night, and the latest official figures obtainable show that the team workers and officers succeeded in completing the fund with something to spare. It was announced at the Salvation Army headquarters in West Fourteenth Street last night that $252,635 had been raised. Subscriptions were still coming in, and there are several other reports to be received, and Colonel William McIntyre, in charge of the central province of the Salvation Army, expressed the confidence that the total amount would reach $300,000.

That the Salvation Army succeeded in filling its war chest was a matter for general congratulation last night, especially among the workers not members of the organization, who have given so generously of their time. At a meeting held in the Railroad Club, 30 Church Street, at noon yesterday Chairman George Gordon Battle predicted that the drive would be put "over the top" before night. Congratulations were showered upon the Chairman of the committee and members of the general committee, for the campaign had been a hard one.

"The public is to be congratulated even as we are," Chairman Battle said last night, "and likewise it is to be thanked for its generosity. That is all I can say now."

"New York has done more than merely see this drive through to success," said Commander Booth. "The first city of the nation has befittingly made a triumph of the whole national drive, which has had to be held in our various provinces on different dates, but which is now crowned with final success. To the public, which so generously gave in trying times, the Salvationists extend heartfelt thanks. To the press, which gave magnificent support to our first effort in this direction, I can find no words to express our gratitude. To the lay men and women who so nobly worked for the cause, I can at this time simply render thanks, and say that we shall make them proud of the fact that they helped us, by the use we shall make of the money. In that connection the national organization wishes to say that, in due course, we will render a careful accounting, so that every person shall know just how the money was expended in aid of the American fighters!"

Colonel McIntyre, speaking of the campaign, said:

"Over 700,000 persons contributed to this drive, which shows that our years of effort and endeavor have won for us the confidence of the public. The total amount, I am sure, will reach $300,000. On behalf of our workers and organization, I bespeak deepest gratitude for all who helped in this cause. I am sure they will be glad they helped when they find out later how the money has been spent.

"I am thankful to the unselfish men and women who formed our citizen teams, and gave unselfishly of their time and money. If this drive had been one for the combined newspapers of New York City, the support they gave us could not have been more cordial and sustaining. It brought the big success. First the press indorsed it, then recommended it to the public, and then got into it with news, editorials, cartoons, and even poems, and drove the undertaking upward and—over the top! The final thanks will come to those who helped from their own men in the trenches!"

The Salvationists will now turn to and aid the Red Cross. Yesterday they sent their bands into the great Red Cross parade, and Commander Booth has ordered all of her followers in America to give one whole day and as many hours thereafter as they can possibly spare to the Red Cross drive.

ARMY OF A MILLION ABROAD BY SUMMER

Shipments of American Troops Are Growing and Washington Counts on Large Results.

1,000 LIBERTY MOTORS DONE

Twice That Number Due in Thirty Days—Substantial Air Fleet Aiding Pershing.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—With every indication pointing to the early resumption of the German drive in France, officials here feel that all that could be done to bring American aid to the allied armies has been done. They await the outcome with the same supreme confidence that Germany's offensive power will ultimately be defeated as do the French and British leaders.

American troops are shoulder to shoulder with the French and British in Picardy, while in Flanders American units are training close behind the battle lines, ready to go in immediately if necessary. In both places the number of Americans is being increased at a rate, not hoped for only a few months ago, and in the two American sectors further east the lines are being strengthened and extended daily.

Meanwhile, events are moving swiftly on this side to back up the army abroad with a steady and increasing flow of men and equipment. Members of the Senate Military Committee, in their weekly conference at the War Department today, it is understood, were shown that encouraging progress was being made in all lines.

There appears to be little doubt now that the American forces abroad will pass the million mark by midsummer, although official statements were lacking. The rate at which the troops are being sent overseas is rising from week to week. Figures may not be published under the rules of voluntary censorship, but the 500,000 mark, which Secretary Baker recently stated had been passed, is regarded as out of date.

With more than 500,000 men overseas, the United States forces are occupying a full share of the fighting line. It was learned by the Senate Committee today that the actual frontage held was now third in extent, having passed the length of the Belgian sector when American troops came into line with the French in Picardy.

The front line forces of General Pershing, the Senators were told, are divided among four sectors, all on the French front, but other American troops are at the front, as well as training behind the lines, with both British and French forces.

Liberty Motors Now Coming.

Among other things today the Senators learned of the rapid progress now being made with the production of Liberty motors and aircraft. One thousand motors have been finished and delivered, and the number will probably be doubled in the next thirty days. From that time on there will be no shortage in air craft engines.

Figures as to the number of American manned machines now in service over the American lines or elsewhere in France, also became known today, but Brig. Gen. McIntyre, the military censor, ruled that publication of these would violate military requirements. The showing was encouraging and indicated that a substantial air force was already operating under General Pershing's command, although the American built equipment has not reached the front, so far as is known.

WAR ON GOVERNMENT PROPOSED TO I. W. W.

Slovick Urged a General Strike on Haywood to Combat War Program.

SURE OF TEUTONS' HELP

Germans, Austrians, Irish, and Others, He Said, Would Be Glad to Fight the Government.

CHICAGO, May 18.—War on the American Government by the Industrial Workers of the World, in retaliation for a declaration of war against Germany, was proposed in correspondence between James M. Slovick and William D. Haywood, according to evidence introduced at the trial of 112 leaders of the organization today by Claude R. Porter, Special Prosecutor.

When the break with Germany seemed imminent, Slovick, Secretary of the Marine Transport Workers, and a defendant in the trial for violation of the Espionage act, proposed a general strike as a means of combating America's war program, and asserted that the organization would become the haven for Germans and Austrians, Bulgarians, &c., as well as pacifists and conscientious objectors.

"Like little brooks streaming into one channel our organization would swell into one grand river," wrote Slovick. "All in all, we could muster quite an army. There are in this country Germans, Austrians, Hungarians, Bulgarians, and some Irish who, for patriotic reasons, if you please, will be willing to fight this Government.

"In case war is declared, the capitalists of the country must have recourse to conscription and we must fight such a measure. In consequence, our organization will stand in danger of being completely destroyed. But granting that the I. W. W. ideas cannot be killed, we will persist in keeping alive and being the nightmare to the robbing class."

With the introduction of this document, which was seized from files at headquarters in Cleveland, the Government virtually completed presentation of personal correspondence of Eastern officers. Next week the Government will take up correspondence, showing the organization's alleged anti-war activities in the Northwest.

In his correspondence with Haywood, General Secretary-Treasurer, Slovick pointed out that "the anarchists, Socialists and radicals among the trade unions are bound to rally about us." He urged an immediate meeting of leaders to form a concrete plan of action and laid stress on the value of anti-war propaganda.

Prior to the reading of the Slovick correspondence, the Government put on record copies of letters between John Baldazzi, Italian revolutionist, and Haywood, in which the former proposed an amalgamation with all revolutionary parties in the warring nations.

AFTER CREEL EMPLOYES.

House Committee Wants to Know About Some Alleged Pacifists.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—The inquiry of the House Committee on Rules into statements made by George Creel, Chairman of the Committee on Public Information, construed as reflecting on Congress, turned today in the direction of ascertaining the character of employes of Mr. Creel's organization. Explanations of the remark by Mr. Creel in New York when he said that "as he was not fond of slumming" he would not "explore the heart of Congress," were almost forgotten.

Representative Philip C. Campbell of Kansas, the ranking Republican on the committee, said that he had been informed, that Mr. Creel had under him, performing the most essential and confidential work, men whose turn of mind was socialistic, if not pacifistic, and of a doubtful attitude toward the war.

On his insistence the committee delayed action on the resolution of Representative Treadway of Massachusetts, which looks to an investigation of Mr. Creel by Congress, until the information as to the employes of the committee is placed before it. The attitude of Chairman Pou of the Committee on Rules and of other Democratic leaders seemed to indicate that they desired to drop the whole subject. But Republicans showed no flagging interest.

When the committee met, Chairman Pou read the letter of apology which Mr. Creel forwarded yesterday, but which failed to arrive until after the Rules Committee had adjourned. Mr. Campbell said that even the "very apologetic tone" of the letter did not make him willing to quit the inquiry. He said that he never yet had seen an offender, in or out of court, who was not sorry when he saw his conduct had brought him into trouble.

PRESIDENT LEADS RED CROSS PARADE

Thrills Thousands as He Unexpectedly Joins Marchers in Fifth Avenue.

WALKS FOR TWO MILES

Hearty Cheers for Uniformed Red Cross Nurses Who Will Depart Soon for the Front.

MORE THAN 70,000 IN LINE

Parade of 20,000 in Brooklyn Reviewed by Colonel Roosevelt.

More dramatic and thrilling than any demonstration witnessed in this city since the war began was the unexpected appearance of Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States, at the head of the Red Cross parade in Fifth Avenue yesterday. Scheduled to review the procession from the grand stand, the President, without making his plan known beforehand, went to the head of the parade at the last moment, and for a distance of two miles appeared before the eyes of cheering multitudes as the most conspicuous figure of a soul-stirring spectacle. If he risked all the hazards involved in such a procedure, he gripped the heart of the city through the courage and strength of conviction which led him to adopt such a method of proclaiming that the cause of the Red Cross was his cause and the nation's cause.

The cheers that rang out to him as he tramped down Fifth Avenue, a daring figure in the foreground of the 70,000 persons who followed him, were cheers of such deep admiration that their meaning could not be mistaken. On every side, in the throngs of men and women who gazed at him with sparkling eyes, there was the manifest conviction that "he had the country with him." Bowing frequently to the right and left, President Wilson appeared by the expression of enthusiasm and pleasure on his face to find the experience every bit as thrilling as did the spectators.

For the thousands of the city who had never seen the President, this was an opportunity for which their gratitude yesterday knew no bounds.

Seemed Care Free.

If the cares of a world war were on his shoulders, for the moment he seemed to shake them off to greet the people of New York as a man would greet his fellow-men. The erect carriage and the gleam of leadership in his eyes were the only indications of a man of great responsibilities, but otherwise he revealed himself as an American citizen who had taken this day off for the enjoyment of a patriotic holiday with other American citizens.

At the grand stand at Twenty-third Street, after Governor Whitman and Mayor Hylan had already taken their places in the reviewing box, there was manifest disappointment when Mrs. Wilson appeared unescorted by the President. Nothing was known of his plan to head the parade at the time, and consequently, the general impression developed among all in the grand stand, excepting the few to whom Mrs. Wilson imparted the secret, that for some reason the President had been prevented from attending the parade.

An entirely different impression, however, prevailed at a point far up the line and completely out of view of the crowd in the grand stand. Had they been able to see as far as Sixty-seventh Street they would have understood why the President was not with them. It was at that point that he made his entrance upon the parade.

Between Sixty-eighth Street and Sixty-seventh Street the head of the procession which had made its way down from Eightieth Street came to a sudden stop. For a moment the halt was puzzling, but in the next moment a big automobile, surrounded and headed by a corps of motor cycle police, swept upon the avenue. Behind it was another car full of secret service men. There was a pause and then volleys upon volleys of cheers rang out, as the cause of the strange interruption appeared to be none other than the President of the United States.

Guards Drop Behind.

The Secret Service men, apparently by his own orders, swept off to one side and left him alone with his Secretary, Joseph Tumulty, and his physician, Dr. Carey I. Grayson. Brig. Gen. Dyer, acting up to that time as grand marshal, came forward and gladly relinquished his leadership to the President. Then with Dr. Grayson at one side and Secretary Tumulty on the other, but both a little in the rear of him, the President proceeded down the avenue to the tune of an ovation such as New York has never given him since his entrance into public life.

From the windows of the high buildings, where men and women were heavily clustered; from the sidewalks, where the spectators stood many ranks deep; from behind and from the front, the leader of the parade was singled out in a moment as the "President of the United States." Boy Scouts took up the cry and ran down the avenue with it, announcing his approach, to the crowds far below, who could not believe that it could really be true. But they saw him soon with their own eyes, and when they saw him they cheered with all the strength that was in them. The air became a cloud of waving flags, streamers, hats and handkerchiefs, through the bewildering maze of which walked the President of the United States, laughing, always laughing, at the continued outburst of enthusiasm which his presence evoked.

A striking indication of the degree to which the President had exposed himself to hostile approach occurred at Sixty-fourth Street, when a young woman rushed from the curb and deftly broke through a thin cordon of police. Straight to him she reached the side of the President and handed him a little Red Cross flag, which he took with a smile and a bow and marched on. The woman was hastily escorted to the rear by the nearest policemen, who manifested extreme nervousness over the episode, even though it did turn out so well. Hundreds who saw it could not refrain from comment on the danger of attack which the President courted by appearing so recklessly in the open.

Takes His Place as Reviewer.

The ovations were repeated all the way down the avenue to the grand stand at Twenty-third Street. Here the acclaim of the President reached a height unprecedented at any point in the parade. His appearance was strangely unattended by any outburst of music, but the cheers would have drowned all music out, and the President was evidently greatly pleased by the hearty greeting of thousands of men and women. To the right and the left he bowed and waved his acknowledgments, after which he took his place in the reviewing stand, with Mayor Hylan at his right and Mrs. Wilson and Governor Whitman at his left.

Others in the President's box were Dr. Grayson, Joseph P. Tumulty, Brig. Gen. Mann, U. S. A.; Rear Admiral Usher, commandant of the Brooklyn Navy Yard; Henry Morgenthau, ex-Ambassador to Turkey; Police Commissioner Enright, and Dock Commissioner R. A. C. Smith. Directly behind the President's party was Mrs. Hylan, the Mayor's wife, and his daughter, Virginia Hylan. A little to the left of the group, as interested spectators, sat Mrs. Charles Evans Hughes, wife of Justice Hughes, and their two daughters.

The President's interest was concentrated upon the procession before him, and when anything particularly striking caught his attention he invariably pointed it out to Mrs. Wilson. Upon him, as upon every one else in the stand, the parade of the Red Cross made the deepest impression.

After the spectators had been made to feel what the Red Cross stood for by the presence of such an army of determined women in line, who had thrown themselves into its cause with all the devotion that was in them, it was hardly necessary to tell them that they "should give."

Parades in All Boroughs.

What took place on Fifth Avenue took place in all the boroughs of the city on a smaller scale. Manhattan saw the biggest part of the demonstration, and the crowds were naturally much larger here than elsewhere, but the appeal which the Red Cross made was equally striking in all parts of the city.

The women who marched on Fifth Avenue revealed a certain enthusiasm and determination, which often evoked the awe of the spectators. Here were women who had responded to the call for service with all the heroism of men who go forth to the fire and shell of the front. Unit after unit swing past the grand stand, with the red flare of the nurse's cape exposed to the sun, over a blue background, making a picture of womanhood born to great deeds of sacrifice. It mattered little whether they were the field nurses about to go abroad for active service, clad in blue suits, blue hats, and tan shoes, or the auxiliary units of the Red Cross, composed of the white-clad and white-veiled women who do their bit at home by knitting the socks and sweaters for the soldiers or by caring for the families of the soldiers at the front, they were all a part of America's great line of second defense, completely mobilized in soul and spirit to bolster up that first line at the front with every breath of energy that was in them. Better proof of the fact could not be had than the subtle gleam which flashed from their eyes as they turned their heads to pass the President of United States—a gleam which carried a pledge of allegiance to the cause for which this nation stood.

City's Leaders in Line.

At the head of the parade as it swung by the grand stand, after the President had left it, appeared the War Fund Committee of the Atlantic Division of the American Red Cross, its members including G. M. Dahl, Chairman; Cleveland H. Dodge, Chairman of the National War Finance Committee; Seward Prosser, Chairman of the National Executive Committee, and Robert W. de Forest, Vice President of the national organization. Following the committee came an interesting group of some of America's wealthiest and most prominent men who have given their energies to the cause of the Red Cross. This group included Henry P. Davison, Cornelius N. Bliss, Jr., Henry Clay Frick, Felix M. Warburg, Nicholas Murray Butler, Robert Fulton Cutting, Alton B. Parker, Charles E. Hughes, and ex-Ambassador James W. Gerard.

A human red cross, composed of 150 women, dressed in white and wearing red scarfs over their heads, struck the keynote of the demonstration and evoked storms of cheers all the way down the line. The order in which the units marched was, with but slight exceptions, as follows:

Workroom on a Float.

Among the units of the parade which attracted considerable attention was the Women Workers of the Legal Committee of the Red Cross, who made a striking showing with their blue uniforms and white sashes which hung from shoulder to waist. In the centre of each sash sparkled a small red cross.

The Teachers' Training Centre followed with a float showing a replica of their model workroom at 20 East Thirty-eighth Street, the scene on the float depicting a group of women knitting and weaving various garments for the soldiers. About 5,000 members of the New York County Chapter of the same organization followed the float.

The West Side Branch of the Red Cross Workers marched without music, but made up for the deficiency, as did many of the other units by passing the grand stands with an outburst of song. Just as the Century Theatre Auxiliary was passing the grand stand President Wilson displayed an expression of care and fatigue, which was plainly marked upon the lines of his face. He broke into a cheerful laugh, however, as the girls passed him singing one of the popular war songs containing the catchy refrain, "What's the use of worrying."

At 4:30 o'clock the President and his immediate party left the reviewing stand, motoring up Fifth Avenue in a space cleared to one side by the police. The President took his course of departure in order to have an opportunity to present his respects to the long line of marchers that had not yet passed the reviewing stand. As his automobile swung up the lane he stood up and bowed his acknowledgments to the nurses, who gave ringing ovations all the way up.

French Soldiers' March.

Governor Whitman and Mayor Hylan continued to review the parade. Many interesting units made their appearance after the President departed, one of the most thrilling being a military band of fifty French soldiers dressed in horizon blue and followed by 100 sailors from one of the French battleships now stationed at an Atlantic port. More than 2,000 members of the allied theatrical interests were in the parade, headed by three young women on white horses.

Red Cross auxiliaries of churches of every denomination were in the parade with thousands of women marchers. Women conductors in the employ of the B. R. T. to the number of fifty were warmly greeted by the crowds, as were also 100 members of the National League for Women's Service, who preceded two of the ambulances maintained by the organization. The Honor Squad of the Police Department, led by the Police Band, was also in the parade.

Workers of the wool department of the New York Chapter of the Red Cross afforded the spectators much amusement by bearing upon poles which they carried the insignia of the knitted stocking. Another striking effect was achieved by a detachment of the ambulance section of the United States Army Medical Department. There were transports in this section, with two army field kitchens bringing up the rear.

The last line of the parade passed the grandstand at 7:50 P. M. Mayor Hylan left at 7 P. M. and Governor Whitman left at 7:25 P. M. Beginning at 2 P. M., the procession took nearly six hours to pass the reviewing stand.

ROOSEVELT REVIEWS PARADE IN BROOKLYN

20,000 Marchers, Including Many Soldiers, Open Drive for $2,000,000 Red Cross Fund There.

Brooklyn yesterday afternoon opened its drive for $2,000,000 for the Red Cross war fund with one of the greatest street parades in its history. With hundreds of thousands of cheering spectators greeting them along the route 20,000 paraders marched under smiling skies, with flags and banners flying and to the music of many bands.

While Manhattan enjoyed the presence of President Wilson, Brooklyn had a former Chief Executive of the nation, Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, as its guest, and the borough did not fail to make the most of him. While on his way to Coney Island to speak at the opening of the new Service Club there the ex-President rode in his automobile down the line of the great parade and received an ovation all the way.

The procession started from Bedford and Division Avenues at 2 o'clock, the route followed being Bedford to Lafayette Avenue, to Livingston Street, to Court Street. The parade was headed by a police escort and a squad of mounted Police Reserves from the Brooklyn Riding and Driving Club.

The Second Brigade of the State Guard, comprising the 14th, 23d, and 47th Infantry, 13th Coast Artillery Corps, 2d Field Artillery, and Squadron C, led the military division with Brig. Gen. James Robb in command. In the column were sailors from the navy yard and a battalion of Naval Reserves.

These were followed by thousands of Red Cross members and nurses and uniformed nurses from nearly all the hospitals in the borough; National League for Women's Service, with its motor corps; Camp Fire Girls, Woman's Motor Corps of America, Woman's Naval Service, workers from the shipyards and other industrial plants, Boy Scouts, Junior Naval Reserves, and a detachment of employes of several Brooklyn department stores.

Red Cross auxiliaries, representing many Brooklyn churches, were also in line. Many interesting floats were in the parade. Attired as Joan of Arc, herself and steed in armor, Miss Marie Hutchinson rode in the Red Cross division.

Among those who reviewed the parade were Borough President Riegelmann, President of the Board of Aldermen Alfred E. Smith, and army officers from Governors Island.

10,000 MARCH IN THE BRONX.

Borough President Bruckner and Others Act as Reviewers.

It is estimated that between 30,000 and 40,000 people witnessed the Bronx division of the Red Cross parade. The marchers—10,000 in number—took one hour and a half to pass the reviewing stand at Burnside Avenue, on the Grand Boulevard and Concourse. Borough President Henry Bruckner with other Bronx officials reviewed the marchers. Headed by Grand Marshal Olin J. Stephens the procession started at 161st Street and swung up the Grand Concourse as far as the Kingsbridge Road, where it was disbanded. A platoon of police in charge of Inspector Richard O'Connor was the guard of honor.

One of the features of the parade was a division composed of the mothers, wives, and sweethearts of soldiers in France, as they swung along with their service flags, some bearing as many as five stars. Military detachments interspersed the procession. There were sailors from the Pelham Bay naval training station, soldiers from nearby camps, a detachment from Base Hospital 1, Kingsbridge Road; the Coast Defense command, 2d Field Artillery, Pelham Bay Naval Reserves, and nurses from Base Hospital 1, Fordham, Lincoln, and Lebanon Hospital, and the Montefiore Home. Boy Scouts, school delegations, and auxiliary nursing corps were also in the line.

Three hundred Bronx patrolmen assisted by 325 of the Bronx Reserves, policed the line of march. Not an accident marred the occasion. The Catholic Protectory and Street Cleaning Bands, and numerous other musical organizations, including fife and drum corps, enlivened the occasion.

ALL PEACE PLEAS INSINCERE--WILSON

words to you as to what it all seems to me to mean and it means a great deal.

"There are two duties with which we are face to face. The first duty is to win the war. [Great applause.] And the second duty, that goes hand in hand with it, is to win it greatly and worthily, [applause,] showing the real quality of our power not only, but the real quality of our purpose and of ourselves. Of course, the first duty, the duty that we must keep in the foreground of our thought until it is accomplished is to win the war. I have heard gentlemen recently say that we must get five million men ready. Why limit it to five million? [Great applause.]

"I have asked the Congress of the United States to name no limit [applause] because the Congress intends, I am sure, as we all intend, that every ship that can carry men or supplies shall go laden upon every voyage with every man and every supply she can carry. [Applause.] And we are not to be diverted from the grim purpose of winning the war by any insincere approaches upon the subject of peace. I can say with a clear conscience that I have tested those intimations, and have found them insincere. [Applause.] I now recognise them for what they are, an opportunity to have a free hand, particularly in the East, to carry out purposes of conquest and exploitation.

Stand by Russia as Well as France.

"Every proposal with regard to accommodation in the West involves a reservation with regard to the East. Now, so far as I am concerned, I intend to stand by Russia as well as France. The helpless and the friendless are the very ones that need friends and succor, and if any man in Germany thinks we are going to sacrifice anybody for our own sake, I tell them now they are mistaken. For the glory of this war, my fellow-citizens, so far as we are concerned, is that it is, perhaps for the first time in history, an unselfish war. [Applause.] It could not be proud to fight for a selfish purpose, but I can be proud to fight for mankind. [Applause.] If they wish peace let them come forward through accredited representatives and lay their terms on the table. [Applause.] We have laid ours, and they know what they are. [Applause.]

"But behind all this grim purpose, my friends, lies the opportunity to demonstrate not only force, which will be demonstrated to the utmost, [applause,] but the opportunity to demonstrate character, and it is that opportunity that we have most conspicuously in the work of the Red Cross. [Applause.] Not that our men in arms do not represent our character, for they do, and it is a character which those who see and realize appreciate and admire; but their duty is the duty of force. The duty of the Red Cross is the duty of mercy and succor and friendship.

"Have you formed a picture in your imagination of what this war is doing for us and for the world? In my own mind I am convinced that not a hundred years of peace could have knitted this nation together as this single year of war has knitted it together, [applause,] and better even than that, if possible, it is knitting the world together. [Applause.] Look at the picture. In the centre of the scene, four nations engaged against the world, and at every point of vantage, showing that they are seeking selfish aggrandizement; and, against them, twenty-three Governments representing the greater part of the population of the world, drawn together into a new sense of community of interest, a new sense of community of purpose, a new sense of unity of life. The Secretary of War told me an interesting incident the other day. He said when he was in Italy a member of the Italian Government was explaining to him the many reasons why Italy felt near to the United States.

"He said, 'If you want to try an interesting experiment go up to any one of these troop trains and ask in English how many of them have been in America, and see what happens.' He tried the experiment. He went up to a troop train and he said, 'How many of you boys have been in America?' and he said it seemed to him as if half of them sprang up and said 'from San Francisco'; 'Me from New York'; all over. [Laughter and applause.] There was part of the heart of America in the Italian Army. [Applause.] People that had been knitted to us by association, who knew us, who had lived among us, who had worked shoulder to shoulder with us, and now friends of America, were fighting for their native Italy. [Applause.]

Friendship the World Cement.

"Friendship is the only cement that will ever hold the world together. [Aplause.] And this intimate contact of the great Red Cross with the peoples who are suffering the terrors and deprivations of this war is going to be one of the greatest instrumentalities of friendship that the world ever knew, and the centre of the heart of it all. If we sustain it properly, will be this land that we so dearly love. [Applause.]

"My friends, a great day of duty has come, and duty finds a man's soul as no kind of work can ever find it. May I say this? The duty that faces us all now is to serve one another, and no man can afford to make a fortune out of this war. [Applause.] There are men among us who have forgotten that, if they ever saw it. Some of you are old enough—I am old enough—to remember men who made fortunes out of the civil war, and you know how they were regarded by their fellow-citizens. That was a war to save one country—this is a war to save the world. [Applause.] And your relation to the Red Cross is one of the relations which will relieve you of the stigma. [Laughter and applause.] You can't give anything to the Government of the United States; it won't accept it. There is a law of Congress against accepting even services without pay. The only thing that the Government will accept is a loan, and duties performed; but it is a great deal better to give than to lend or to pay, and your great channel for giving is the American Red Cross. [Applause.]

"Down in your hearts you can't take very much satisfaction in the last analysis in lending money to the Government of the United States, because the interest which you draw will burn your pockets, it is a commercial transaction, and some men have even dared to cavil at the rate of interest, not knowing the incidental commentary that constitutes upon their attitude.

"But when you give, something of your heart, something of your soul, something of yourself goes with the gift, particularly when it is given in such forms that it never can come back by way of direct benefit to yourself. You know there is the old cynical definition of gratitude as the lively expectation of favors to come. [Laughter.] Well, there is no expectation of favors to come in this kind of giving. These things are bestowed in order that the world may be a fitter place to live in, that men may be succored, that homes may be restored, that suffering may be relieved, that the face of the earth may have the blight of destruction taken away from it, and that wherever force goes there shall go mercy and helpfulness.

Give Till It Hurts.

"And when you give, give absolutely all that you can spare, and don't consider yourself liberal in the giving. [Laughter.] If you give with self-adulation, you are not giving at all; you are giving to your own vanity; but if you give until it hurts, then your heart-blood goes with it. [Applause.]

"And think what we have here! We call it the American Red Cross, but it is merely a branch of a great international organization, which is not only recognized by the statutes of each of the civilized Governments of the world, but it is recognized by international agreement and treaty as the recognized and accepted instrumentality of mercy and succor. And one of the deepest stains that rests upon the reputation of the German Army is that they have not respected the Red Cross. [Applause.]

"That goes to the root of the matter. They have not respected the instrumentality they themselves participated in setting up as the thing which no man was to touch, because it was the expression of common humanity. We are members, by being members of the American Red Cross, of a great fraternity and comradeship which extends all over the world, and this cross which these ladies bore today is an emblem of Christianity itself.

"It fills my imagination, ladies and gentlemen, to think of the women all over this country who are busy tonight and are busy every night and every day doing the work of the Red Cross, busy with a great eagerness to find out the most serviceable thing to do, busy with a forgetfulness of all the old frivolities of their social relationships, ready to curtail the duties of the household in order that they may contribute to this common work that all their hearts are engaged in, and in doing which their hearts become acquainted with each other.

"When you think of this, you realize how the people of the United States are being drawn together into a great intimate family whose heart is being used for the service of the soldiers not only, but for the service of civilians, where they suffer and are lost in a maze of distresses and confusions. And you have, then, this noble picture of justice and mercy as the two servants of liberty. For only where men are free do they think the thoughts of comradeship; only where they are free do they think the thoughts of sympathy; only where they are free are they mutually helpful; only where they are free do they realize their dependence upon one another and their comradeship in a common interest and common necessity.

The Indian Nearly Right.

"I heard a story told the other day that was ridiculous, but it is worth repeating, because it contains the germ of truth. An Indian was enlisted in the army. He returned to the reservation on his furlough, and was asked what he thought of it. He said: 'No much good; too much salute; not much shoot.' [Laughter.] Then he was asked, 'Are you going back?' 'Yes.' 'Well, do you know what you are fighting for?' 'Yes, me know; fight to make whole damn world Democratic Party.' [Laughter and applause.] He had evidently misunderstood some innocent sentence of my own. [Laughter.]

"But, after all, although there is no party purpose in it, he got it right so far as the word 'party' to make the whole world democratic in the sense of community of interest and of purpose; and if you ladies and gentlemen could read some of the touching dispatches which come through official channels, for even through those channels there come voices of humanity that are infinitely pathetic; if you could catch some of those voices that speak the utter longing of oppressed and helpless people all over the world, to hear something like the 'Battle Hymn of the Republic,' to hear the feet of the great hosts of liberty going to set them free, to set their minds free, set their lives free, set their children free, you would know what comes into the heart of those who are trying to contribute all the brains and power they have to this great enterprise of liberty.

"I summon you to the comradeship. I summon you to this next week to say how much and how sincerely and how unanimously you sustain the heart of the world."

Mr. Dodge's Address.

Chairman Dodge, introducing Mr. Davison, who preceded Mr. Wilson as a speaker, said:

"Fellow Members of the Red Cross, Ladies and Gentlemen—We are gathered here tonight as a portion of the twenty-three and a half millions of members of the Red Cross in the United States. We have come here to infuse our hearts and minds with new enthusiasm and purpose for the great adventure which we are undertaking beginning tomorrow, purposing to raise the largest sum which has ever been raised in the history of the world for humanitarian purposes. And when I say the largest, I do not forget what we raised a year ago. We have named a minimum figure of $100,000,000, but I think Mr. Davison, I am sure I will, will be very much disappointed if we do not, well, 50 or 100 per cent. oversubscribe. [Applause.]

"And why shouldn't we? Last year the plans of the Red Cross were vague. We were just beginning our great purpose. Now so much has been accomplished, and the confidence of the whole country has been thoroughly placed on the Red Cross, and every man, woman and child in the United States has a near relative in the army, and they have an interest in the Red Cross.

"A year ago when we entered the great war, the American Red Cross had a very strong, efficient organization, but those who were nearest to it recognized the great plans which had to be carried out with the enlargement of the work, and with enough strong reinforcements, and we put our heads together and decided that a War Council of the Red Cross should be formed, and we selected the finest, ablest men we could think of to fill that position, and it was perfectly splendid the way those men gave up their business and their work, and their partners and their firms and trust companies said, 'Go,' and there was no hesitation for a moment, and we asked the President of the Red Cross to appoint these men.

"I remember very well that after writing the letter I added a postscript stating that the appointment of this Council would make the difference between a five-million-dollar proposition and a fifty-million-dollar one, and after the letter had been sent I thought perhaps I had been rash in stating such a large sum, and wished to get the letter back; but you know very well that two months later the confidence of the country was so secured that they went out and doubled the highest figure which I mentioned. Now so many thousands of noble men and women have sacrificed everything for this work here and abroad that it seems invidious to single out any one game for particular praise, and yet, my fellow-members of the Red Cross, you know and we all know and every one of his associates knows that the Chairman of the War Council of the American Red Cross is the man who has put life and vigor and fire and efficiency into the glorious, magnificent work which has been done.

"There has been a little change in the program, and Mr. Davison is going to speak first. We thank God that he got back to this country safely and in time to address this great meeting, and the words which he says, and the words which our President utters, will go all over the United States as the keynote of this great campaign. My dear friends, I take great pleasure in, not introducing, because our New York boys don't need introductions to the New York audiences, but in announcing the Chairman of the American Red Cross world organization, Mr. Harry P. Davison."

Mr. Davison spoke as follows:

Mr. Davison's Address.

"It must be admitted that the military situation on the western front is serious and that the next few months will undoubtedly be the critical months of the war, as Germany is hurling, at all costs, her vast forces against the line, determined, if possible, to divide and smash the armies before we can get there in force. Conscious of this, I can say that I have never left Europe more confident of the final success of the Entente, as I have never known the morale as high all along the line and back of the line as it is today.

"I have spoken of the military situation because the work of the American Red Cross is so closely allied with it. You must appreciate that it is impossible to get within a few minutes, any picture of the work it is doing, both at home and throughout the western front. You have seen our boys don their uniforms. They have given you their leave-taking. They have gone to their camps, and many of them have gone 'over there.' You have resolved that nothing which would protect them from sickness or add to their comfort shall be withheld. Furthermore, you have demanded that a service should be rendered to their families left behind, and to them 'over there' for their peace of mind in connection with their families at home, and also that to those unfortunate enough to become prisoners of the enemy every possible service through the Red Cross shall be extended for their health and comfort. The women of the country have not only demanded this of the American Red Cross, but by their patriotism and industry have made it possible to make provisions for their comfort. Of course, it is not conceivable that this work at home, enormous as it is, and requiring every kind of talent and human resource, should be in any sense restricted, but rather enlarged and continued during the war.

Grateful to American People.

"If you could have seen during the recent offensive the rushing by night of Red Cross camions loaded with food to meet the thousands of men, women, and children being bombarded out of their homes without notice; if you could have seen them receiving the hot food and drink given to them by the American people as they are on their way, they know not where; and if, later, you could see the thousands and thousands of them who have been helped by the American people to secure lodging, food, and clothing, you would then understand the look of gratitude upon their faces—gratitude to the American people.

"If you could go throughout those countries into the buildings where thousands of children are being cared for—maternity homes where mothers and their babies are attended, of workshops where thousands of people are given employment to make materials necessary for the destitute of these countries, in the dispensaries and countless villages where, with the aid of the Rockefeller Foundation, the greatest war is being carried on against tuberculosis; if you could visit with the Red Cross representatives the families of the soldiers whose names are given by the military authorities, to whom direct relief is extended; and could go with the Red Cross representatives in the front line trenches to see them give articles of comfort and serve hot drinks to the soldiers of our allies; if you could go into the Red Cross rest rooms and canteens and see them care for and feed over 3,000,000 men a month; if you could visit the many hospitals in Europe organized and being run by the Red Cross, and knew that, in addition, supplies are contributed to more than 1,000 military hospitals in France and Italy; if you could go through the factories where artificial limbs are being made for our own boys and those of our allies, and the factory where splints are being so scientifically made that they have been put upon the wounded men before they have been moved from No Man's Land, thus saving many limbs and lives which otherwise would have been lost—you would then not fully cover the field of Red Cross operations for there is today practically no breach into which the Red Cross does not rush. It is in this way that the American people are giving courage not only to the soldiers of our allies, but to their families, and assuring them that they must keep heart whatever happens, as the American forces will soon be there in number and quality to fight with them until the war is won.

Has Shown America's Heart.

"My tour on the Continent with the heads of the respective Red Cross commissions was practically an ovation from beginning to end, not to me or to the Red Cross, but to the American people, as we have studiously made clear that the work of the American Red Cross is but an expression from the American people to those who have suffered for and as well as themselves in a common cause.

"The continuation of this work will hold and further establish our relations with the peoples of our allies, which should be the reverence of the present situation, which is not within the power of man to describe, impossible, and will contribute more than any other voluntary act within our power to the winning of the war, to the saving of the lives of our own boys, and to the end that this world be made possible to live in, which it will never be again until the German military power is crushed.

"I hope there are no American men and women who do not realize that the time has arrived when each must contribute generously and cheerfully with the feeling that their contribution is in no sense a gift, but as an act of protection and of justice as well.

"A Frenchman, Prefect of one of the provinces, a picturesque and charming old gentleman, said to me: 'We of France knew your riches, knew of your power—but it took the war to show us your heart.' Well, now ladies and gentlemen, in these tragic weeks of the world's history, when all our associates are in the death struggle for freedom, let us indeed carry on—carry on and show not only to them—those fighting with us and for us, on and back of the line, but to our enemies as well, that there is yet in the world a power of love, a power of sympathy, a power of Christianity, and a power of mercy which must and shall re-establish the world for the betterment of all mankind."

The President Introduced.

After the "Battle Hymn of the Republic" had been sung, Mr. Dodge introduced the President. He was interrupted by applause when he referred to the President's marching down Fifth Avenue and again when he called him "the spokesman for the spiritual forces of the world." The entire audience got on its feet and gave three cheers after Mr. Dodge had asked them to rise as evidence of their allegiance to the President. Mr. Dodge said:

"The vital importance of this great work is evidenced by the fact that the President of the American Red Cross left all his many cares and responsibilities at Washington to come here tonight to cheer us in our great endeavor. We all read this morning with great interest the classic speech which he made last night at the theatre. [Laughter and applause.] Those of you who saw him march down Fifth Avenue this afternoon—and let me tell you that no one on the committee, much as we longed to have him do it, dared ask him. [Laughter;] the President himself asked for the privilege of walking in the parade [Applause]—I do not think that those of us who saw him thought that he was a very tired man [Laughter,] but I can vouch for the fact that he was having an awfully good time. [Laughter,] and I think we want to give him a very good time tonight. [Applause.] because, my fellow-members of the Red Cross, much as we need his cheer and encouragement, what must it not mean to him to have these twenty-three and a half million members of the Red Cross all over the United States pledging anew in this coming week their allegiance to him and all that he stands for.

"You know that, incidentally, the President of the Red Cross is ex officio Commander in Chief of our armies and navies and also the President of the United States. But, more than that, as Mr. Davison implied, he is today the spokesman of all the great spiritual forces of the world. He is the beacon light to which the eyes of countless millions of men and women in every land tonight, who long for freedom and peace, are looking in these hours of stress and toil.

"Let us rise now, dear friends, and bow our allegiance to the President of the United States. [Great applause and three cheers for the President.]

As the President's voice, impressive in intensity, indicated that he approached the end of his speech the big force of Secret Service operatives, Department of Justice men, and uniformed and plain-clothes men under Inspector Faurot, converged toward the Thirty-ninth Street side of the house. Quickly they cleared a wide aisle from the southern end of the stage to the West Thirty-ninth Street exit. With elbows touching the guards formed a lane and while the tremendous outburst, which greeted the President's last words, was mounting to its height, the President, Mrs. Wilson, and Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland H. Dodge, passed through the protecting lane to the street.

Outside, in West Thirty-ninth Street, a big crowd, knowing that Mr. Wilson has chosen that side for his entrance, waited. At a signal the police cleared the street from Broadway to Seventh Avenue, but the crowd, though cheated of a close sight, caught a glimpse of Mr. Dodge as he assisted Mrs. Wilson into the limousine, and immediately a great cheer went up. The enthusiasm reached its apex, however, a second later, when the President, the last of his party to leave the Opera House, emerged, stepped quickly into the motor, and was driven off toward Broadway with a chain of guarding machines in his wake.

Record for Opera Box Office.

From the box office standpoint the night was the greatest in the history of the Metropolitan Opera House. Gifts of at least $50 to the Red Cross came from every ticket-holder, running up the total money value to the house to the Red Cross to something more than $200,000.

The highest previous box office record, curiously enough, was made at the launching of the official pro-German propaganda of the German Government in the United States. This was in 1902 when the Kaiser sent his brother, Prince Henry of Prussia, to this country to launch quietly the Prussian program which sought to weld German-Americans into a solid unit to lay the foundation for making the United States a German colony.

On Jan. 25, 1902, Prince Henry attended the Metropolitan Opera House at a performance at which Maurice Grau had collected a great array of stars. Tickets sold for $50. The Prince, who had been kept awake all night for the four preceding nights by the serenades of German bands, unfortunately went to sleep during the opera and then left early, to the rage of several of the prima donnas, who refused to appear in their rôles after his exit. The total box office receipts on this occasion was between $550,000 and $60,000.

CROWDS CHEER WILSON OUT FOR A STROLL

President, Escaping from Watchers at Waldorf, Walked to University Club and Back.

President Wilson, who announced on Friday evening that he was not the President of the United States for the moment but only a "tired man having a good time," got up yesterday morning refreshed and looking very fit. His physician had forbidden golf for the morning because of the arduous day ahead of the President, so after breakfasting with Mrs. Wilson in their suite at the Waldorf, he was forced to decide upon some mode of exercise.

A considerable crowd was waiting around the entrance of the hotel watching for the big black machine in which the President toured the city on Friday, but not one saw the tall figure leave the hotel shortly after 9 o'clock and walk to Fifth Avenue, turning north. Then the size of the President's bodyguard, the Secret Service men, who never leave his side when he goes out, attracted the crowd's attention, and a small boy yelled: "There goes Wilson!" At once the crowd burst into applause which the President acknowledged smilingly, but it was evident that he had not come out for an ovation. President Wilson proceeded hurriedly up the avenue, stopped now and then by passers-by who insisted on saluting him. Their way was marked all along by the volume of cheering and the honk of auto horns that burst out as men and women in autos, on buses, and in taxis recognised the nation's Chief Executive. Soldiers and sailors in the uniform both of the United States and of our Allies stood stiffly at attention, saluting with extra care as the Commander in Chief of the Army and Navy of the United States walked by.

The President walked to the University Club at Fifty-fourth Street and Fifth Avenue, where he remained for about an hour, working on the speech he made last night. He then returned, walking down the avenue on the east side, where it was shady. His return progress was almost a triumphal procession, for the news had spread that President Wilson was coming, and there was not a man, woman, or child but who was ready to cheer him and to wave good luck with hat or handkerchief.

He stopped in a book store for a moment, and before he could come out a crowd had gathered outside that packed the sidewalk. Seeing this, the proprietor of the store let the President out a side door, and when the crowd saw him coming from the side, they cheered him again, and made way for him to pass.

As the President reached Thirty-fourth Street, a man who resembles him slightly pushed his way to the front and attempted to get through the guards. He was stopped, but the President recognized him and he was allowed to pass.

"Hello, Woodrow," he said.

"How are you, John?" President Wilson replied. The man was the President's cousin, John Wilson, of Franklin, Penn.

The President then entered the hotel apparently having enjoyed his stroll hugely.

The President after reviewing the parade went to dinner at Colonel House's and motored to the Metropolitan Opera House, arriving there at 8:30 o'clock. He left immediately after his speech.

From the Opera House President Wilson drove back to Colonel House's, his passage up Fifth Avenue being heralded by cheers as the big machine and its attendant guard of motor cycle police-men and Secret Service men was recognized. After bidding Colonel and Mrs. House good night the President and Mrs. Wilson returned to the Waldorf and went directly to their suite. Today President Wilson will attend morning services in the First Presbyterian Church. He will return to Washington tonight on the midnight train.

MANY NOVEL FEATURES TO MARK CAMPAIGN

Giant Crosses to Move Uptown by Million Steps—Bells and Whistles to Toll Totals.

The collection of funds for the second Red Cross war fund will begin in this city tomorrow, when 1,000 booths will be opened, at which cash and pledges will be received. Twenty thousand women will begin a house-to-house canvass, and an army of committees will invade Wall Street and the business section to collect from firms and corporations and their employes. Hundreds of meetings will take place daily, at which collections will be made, and schools, clubs, associations and groups of employes will raise separate funds to add to New York's total, which is fixed at a minimum of $25,000,000, the city expected to contribute one-third as much as the rest of the entire nation. Such a large assessment was fixed for New York City not only because it is the headquarters of the largest industrial corporations and financial institutions, but because of its record for generosity in giving for war relief in the past.

The Liberty bell, in City Hall Park, where more than $2,500,000 worth of Liberty bonds were purchased, will again be one of the centres of activity. President Alfred E. Smith, of the Board of Aldermen will open the campaign there on Monday noon with an address on what is expected of New York City. He will be followed by a fine array of speakers and entertainers, including Bourke Cockran, Sir Auckland Geddes, Daniel Frohman, Julia Marlowe, Miss Maxwell of the Presbyterian Hospital, who has been engaged in Red Cross work in France, and Elisabeth Marbury. All of the famous bands of the city will play tomorrow at various meetings, including the open-air rally in the City Hall Park.

Two Red Crosses, each twelve feet high, will be used to measure the totals of New York City's contributions. Pulled by soldiers, the first, starting at Fifth Avenue and Thirty-ninth Street, will move up a block for each million dollars given by this city. The Fifth Avenue Cross will be carried from Tenth Street to Eleventh Street for the first million, and will record each additional million by moving north a block.

A curtain of steam will be shot into the air in Times Square at night, and a large Red Cross will be projected on this background. A cross of red light will be thrown from the Plaza Hotel at night upon the Plaza fountain. Every church bell and factory whistle will join in a chorus at 3 o'clock and toll off the millions collected in the preceding twenty-four hours.

There will be a field day at the Polo Grounds tomorrow afternoon, beginning at 1 o'clock. The New York Police Band will play, and other attractions will hold the field up to the time when the game between the Yankees and Cleveland begins.

Theodore Roosevelt will make a speech at 8 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon at the Red Cross event at Carnegie Hall, when Josef Hofmann will give a piano recital.

A new method of subscribing to the Red Cross was introduced by E. Howell, President of the Shevers Ice Cream Company, who has sent a pledge to the headquarters of the fund on the fortieth floor of the Woolworth Building to contribute the interest coupons from $25,000 worth of Liberty bonds for the term of the war. An appeal will be made by the Red Cross Committee for others to follow this example.

French System of Movable Surgical Units Adopted in Pershing's Army.

MODEL HOSPITAL ON TRUCKS

10 Per Cent. of Injured Need the Immediate Treatment Which It Will Afford.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

From a Staff Correspondent.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES, May 16.—It is announced that sanitary formations, i. e., movable surgical units, are to be attached to the American Army. The importance of the measure can hardly be exaggerated, as the whole medical experience of the war goes to prove that rapidity in the treatment of the wounded is the vital desideratum, which is admirably provided by the sanitary formations operating at the shortest possible distance behind the firing line.

THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent has just visited an "autochir," as the French call these units. Everything needed for a model operating hospital is transported on two trucks. The first contains a steam engine, which drives a dynamo for the radioscope and electric plant and provides steam for an elaborate system of heating pipes. By an ingenious arrangement one side of the truck forms a sterilizing chamber, in which six trays of instruments can be purified by superheated steam every half hour. The other truck carries radio apparatus and a portable barrack for operations, together with all appliances.

Nine surgeons and doctors and thirty attendants and nurses form the staff. The former work in groups of three in spells of eight hours each, which makes it possible to conduct operations continuously. In the recent battle of movement the unit was naturally unable to approach the line as closely as usual—on the Somme and in Champagne it was located in a big concrete dugout a few yards behind the first-line trenches—but nevertheless its extreme mobility permitted it to work at a point where a fixed hospital could not have risked staying.

Many patients were operated upon by the small staff in the four weeks from March 23 to April 20, and at first the pressure was so great that the personnel had only two or three hours' sleep in three days. Many lives were thus saved.

"My books show that on an average 10 per cent. of the wounded require prompt treatment," said the surgeon in charge of another sanitary unit of somewhat different character to THE TIMES correspondent yesterday.

This was a surgical post established on similar lines but on the initiative of the General commanding a division. It forms part of and moves with the division, whereas the "autochir" is at the disposition of the army or group of armies.

"These units are especially valuable for men suffering from shock owing to loss of blood, even though an immediate operation is unnecessary. We have been able to save a great number brought here in a state of collapse who would certainly have died before they could reach a hospital. We have a special room for warming them and administering restoratives and saline injections."

It is planned to make these divisional units general throughout the army by a system such as that when the divisions move the surgeons will have only to transfer their men material to the new locality, where everything will be ready for installation.

Asks Hylan to Help Italy Here.

Dr. Felice Ferrero, who has recently been appointed by the Italian Government as chief of the Italian information bureau in this city, called upon Mayor Hylan at the City Hall yesterday and requested the Mayor's co-operation in stimulating the interest of Americans in the cause of his country. Dr. Ferrero is also correspondent of the Corriere della Sera, one of the leading newspapers in Milan.

The Mayor told him he would do everything in his power to interest citizens in the cause of the Italian people.

5,000,000 IN DAY'S PARADE.

Red Cross Drive Celebrated Throughout the Country.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—At least 5,000,000 men, women, and children took part in the "parade of mercy" held today in hundreds of cities, towns, and villages to mark the opening of the $100,000,000 war fund drive for the Red Cross. Big cities, from coast to coast and from Chicago to New Orleans, saw elaborate parades and reports to National Headquarters here from towns and villages told of unusually large and attractive pageants.

The Washington parade included 4,000 women in Red Cross uniforms and various departments of the Government were represented. Messages from General Pershing and from Henry P. Davison, Chairman of the Red Cross Council, who has just returned from Europe, were read at the Red Cross building here.

BOSTON, May 18.—A parade in which women and children predominated opened Boston's Red Cross drive today. Five divisions of marchers and automobiles, with many symbolic floats, skirted the Public Garden and the Common and wound through the retail district. It was estimated that 15,000 to 20,000 were in line.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, May 18.—At sunset, 25,000 persons marched in a "Victory Chest" parade through the downtown district today. The parade started a week's campaign which opens Monday next to raise a $6,000,000 war fund to provide for sixteen organizations, including the Red Cross, Y. M. C. A., Jewish War Relief, and Knights of Columbus.

Representatives of enlisted men carrying service flags comprised one of the eighteen divisions in the parade, which was four miles long. Twenty bands furnished music for the marchers. One division was made up entirely of mothers, wives, sisters, or daughters of Cleveland soldiers who are overseas.

Insurance Employes Held for Fraud.

Four employes of the Stuyvesant Insurance Company, Manhattan, were held for trial in Newark yesterday on a charge of conspiring to defraud the company. The men were William A. Baird, an adjuster, of Manhattan; George W. Comstock of Bloomfield, and Harry A. Harris and Albert J. Fruber of Newark. It was alleged that the men reported losses to the company greater than the actual amount. Harris fixed bail for Baird at $4,000, Comstock at $3,000, Harris at $1,000 and Fruber at $2,500. The men will be tried June 12.

ALL INTERESTS VOICE MAIL TUBE DEMAND

City's Protest Universal Against Returning to Truck Delivery Between Stations.

DANGER SEEN IN CHANGE

Would Increase Street Congestion and Add to Delays, Says Ex-Postmaster Morgan.

Protests against the inefficiency of the postal service are finding further expression in a general outcry of mercantile and civic associations against the threatened abandonment of the underground postal service in New York City. The House of Representatives has already approved that clause in the Postal Appropriation bill which cuts out all provision for underground mail service in New York City after the end of the present fiscal year. If the Senate acquiesces it will be necessary to return to the old method of delivering mail in New York between substations and the main Post Office by trucks rushing over streets already congested by automobiles, vans, trolley cars, buses and other vehicles.

The pneumatic tube service lies south of 125th Street in Manhattan. All the postal stations below this point are connected by underground metal tubes operated by compressed air and through which carriers are sent at short intervals containing letters. The underground system consists of twenty-seven miles of double 8-inch tubes. About 80,000 carriers are transmitted per day carrying approximately 5,000.00 pieces of mail. Each of these carriers has capacity for about 450 ordinary letters or 250 large letters. These carriers are dispatched every ten to fifteen seconds. There is a line connecting the New York and Brooklyn Post Offices and another from the Brooklyn Post Office to the Flatbush Avenue station of the Long Island Railroad.

The effect of the abandonment of the present system for truck delivery is described in the following comparison between the two systems, which was recently made by B. C. Batcheller, an engineer familiar with the underground mail service and all its workings:

"Suppose that tubes in New York City are to be done away and the automobile trucks substituted. A letter has been posted and carried to, let us say, Station W on West Eighty-third Street, which is up on the west side of Central Park and that that letter is to be delivered in the neighborhood of Station D which is at Thirteenth Street and Fourth Avenue. If automobile trucks are used for transporting that letter it will go down the west side of the park, collecting mail at each station. There will be a truck, perhaps, every half hour or every hour, according to the service as arranged. When that truck arrives at Station W the letter will have been pouched and the pouch will be put on to the truck and go down to, perhaps, Times Square. There all the mail on that truck will be dumped off, and it will have to be resorted to go with mail that has come to that station for distribution and put on to a truck that is going over on the east side, including Station D. That involves a good many delays, in the first place waiting for the truck to arrive at Station W; then slow transportation down to Times Square; then dumping out and a resorting. Then awaiting for a truck to go out on the route on which Station D is located, followed by slow transportation, and then it finally arrives at its destination.

Inspector Thomas Myers of the Traffic Squad declared recently that one mail truck on a city street, so far as the ordinary regulations of traffic was concerned, amounted to ten commercial trucks. According to the best evidence on the subject, to replace the business done by the tubes would require perhaps 150 heavy trucks, running constantly at high speed, and more or less regardless of traffic regulations. The engineers of the Congressional Commission made a test recently in Chicago of the extent to which the substitution of mail trucks for pneumatic tube service would add to the general streets traffic, and it showed that at a point on Adams Street the increase would be as follows: 11 A. M. to 12 M., 4.01; 4 P. M. to 5 P. M., 2.01; 5 P. M. to 6 P. M., 2.01; 8 A. M. to 6 P. M., 2.06.

Their conclusion was: "It is obvious that many of the streets where these motor vehicles would operate are already badly congested, and that anything that can be done to keep down the number of vehicles is of great advantage to the community."

The contention is made here that in New York the threatened congestion would be much more serious than in Chicago, because the topography of the city is different and the business centres, Wall Street, the downtown dry goods district, Madison Square, and Times Square are larger and more widely separated. If all the letters were carried from the incoming trains at Grand Central Terminal to the main Post Office on Eighth Avenue and all outgoing letters from the city stations to the Grand Central and Pennsylvania stations by trucks, the congestion on Forty-second and Thirty-fourth Streets would be very much greater than it is now because the additional trucks, according to engineers who have studied the situation, would have to make about 6,000 trips each day.

Ex-Postmaster Edward M. Morgan, who has made a life study of the postal service, is emphatically opposed to the abandonment of the pneumatic tube service and has maintained before the Congressional committee at Washington that the tubes were absolutely indispensable to the postal service. Discussing the subject yesterday, he said:

"It is, and long has been, my opinion that the continuation of the entire existing system of tubes in New York City and Brooklyn is justified because of the rapid service which it provides for the transmission of mail, particularly that of the first class. If the pneumatic tube service, upon which the public depends for the quick transmission of mail, were replaced by wagon service it would be far from satisfactory and result in overwhelming popular complaint and adverse criticism of the service. Postal trucks carrying mail on the streets of New York must go either fast or slow. If they go fast—very fast—they add another peril to the many from which pedestrians suffer, and to diminish which efforts are being made by every city administration. If they go slow, the delivery of letters is, to that extent, retarded, and through weather conditions, snow, ice, slush, and the congestion of street traffic which follows any one of these, the whole system may break down, as it is reported to have done in Philadelphia last Winter, where postal trucks were stalled in many parts of the city and the delivery of letters thereby suspended.

"Underground service is not affected by storms, street traffic congestions, or other service conditions. Motor service becomes badly crippled during a sleet storm or snowstorm, and in the event of the discontinuance of underground service, the delivery of important business mail might be delayed for hours to the almost incalculable loss of merchants, bankers, manufacturers—in fact, the whole business community of the city.

"The advantages of the pneumatic tubes are also felt in the section of the city above 125th Street through making possible the rapid transmission of mail to and from that section, such mail being sent to Station L on the east side and Station J on the west side of the city, where it connects with motor wagon service operating above these points. It is a fact that, notwithstanding these advantages, the greater portion of complaints of delayed mail originates in that section, and if the pneumatic tubes are superseded by motor wagon service below 125th Street the complaints will naturally be increased.

"It is my opinion that no curtailment in pneumatic service either below or above Forty-second Street should be made. While the district north of Forty-second Street is mainly residential it would be advisable to consider the fact that important commercial and financial concerns, first-class hotels, prominent clubs, hospitals, public and educational institutions are also located in that territory. A large volume of mail for other Post Offices and for local delivery originates in that territory, and it would not be good policy to provide a less efficient service for that section. It is my belief that the continuance of pneumatic tube service in New York City in its present entirety is not only justified but absolutely necessary."

AERIAL MAIL SERVICE RUNS WITHOUT HITCH

Letters Delivered on Time in All Three Cities Involved—May Use Larger Airplanes.

The airplane mail service between Washington and New York, via Philadelphia, worked without a hitch yesterday, the mail being delivered on time in all three cities now included in the daily aerial service. Lieutenant Stephen Bonsal, who piloted the machine which brought the Washington and Philadelphia mail to New York, arrived at Belmont Park at 2.52 P. M. yesterday, having covered the distance between Philadelphia and New York in one hour and seven minutes—that is, at a speed of approximately ninety miles an hour.

Lieutenant Bonsal left Belmont Park with the New York mail boxes for Philadelphia and Washington at 11.23 A. M., yesterday, and landed on the aerial mail field in Philadelphia at 12.38 P. M. Lieutenant Paul Culver brought the Washington mail to Philadelphia, where he transferred it to Lieutenant Bonsal, who piloted it to New York. It was said at the Post Office that the mail brought by Lieutenant Bonsal, which arrived at the Pennsylvania Station Post Office at 3.15 P. M., was distributed within an hour after its arrival.

Lieutenant Culver piloted the machine which took the mail to Washington from New York and Philadelphia. The total round trip flying time between Washington and New York yesterday was unofficially reported last night to have been a little more than five hours.

A plan to use larger airplanes in the service to Philadelphia and Washington because of the expected increased use of the mail is under discussion by the postal authorities, it was reported yesterday at Belmont Park.

It was said that all persons except army men and Post Office employes directly concerned in the mail service would hereafter be barred from the field, as a measure of precaution against accidents. There will be no flight today.

FAVORS 2-CENT MAIL RATE.

Commerce Board Urges Congress to Pass City Measure.

The Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York, on receiving word yesterday from Senator Calder that the Senate had passed the amendment to the Post Office bill fixing a two-cent rate for all first-class mail delivered within New York City, immediately communicated with a number of trade organizations, civic societies, and business associations in an effort to enlist their aid in having the amendment favored by the House committee and adopted by both branches of Congress.

New York City is the only city in the country where a three-cent rate is now in effect, and the extra cost to merchants and business men annually amounts to hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Senator Calder's telegram was in part as follows:

"I have secured passage of an amendment ... the Post Office bill fixing a two-cent rate for all first-class mail, delivered within New York City. Please communicate with Senate and House conferees relative to the matter."

President A. E. Marling of the Chamber of Commerce wired Senator Calder thanking him for his effort and sent messages to the New York Congressional delegation and members of the Senate and House committees urging that the measure be vigorously supported in conference.

CRITICISE MAIL SERVICE.

Burleson Assailed by Witnesses at House Committee's Hearing.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—The postal service, both in New York City and in the nation at large, was criticised again today before the House Committee on Rules. A resolution by Representative Francis of New York, seeking a general inquiry into the delivery of mail, was under consideration.

George A. Gardner, former Assistant Superintendent of Railway Mail Service, told his version of an investigation which Postmaster General Burleson recently conducted as to the efficiency of pneumatic mail tubes. Mr. Gardner was a member of this commission. He told the committee that public hearings were refused; that the inquiry seemed to aim itself wholly toward discrediting the pneumatic tubes, and that it was not infrequent for the members who favored the use of automobile trucks as against tubes to hold a meeting by themselves in which they arrived at "findings." In his opinion, Mr. Gardner said, the commission had been "hand-picked" by Postmaster General Burleson and its investigation had been a travesty.

Frederick B. Deberard, representing the New York Merchants Association, again made an extended complaint as to the character of the postal service which his organization had uncovered, both intra-city and between distant points. A complete record of reports which the association has gathered from all over the United States from commercial and civic bodies was placed before the committee. Mr. Deberard reported that apparently there was a feeling that Postmaster General Burleson had make a mistaken effort to cut down the costs of operating the department, with the result that the service had greatly deteriorated. He said that these facts had been placed before Mr. Burleson.

President Ryan of the Postal Clerks' Union said that Mr. Burleson's attitude toward the employes of his department was leading them to resign in great numbers. He declared that in Detroit, where there are 1,200 employes, there had been 500 resignations in one year, due to the much greater pay which the employes were able to get from private establishments.

Mr. Ryan said also that the department had cut down its force of railway mail clerks 20 per cent. As a result, he declared, mail which formerly was sorted on trains between stations was dumped in one mass into the various offices. There it was sorted by the regular force, which it overwhelmed, and slow delivery resulted

CHAMBERLAIN URGES WAR INQUIRY TEST

Inclined to Force Senate Vote on Resolution as It Stands, Without Compromise.

RESENTS ANY DICTATION

Not the Province of the White House. He Holds—Hughes Confers on Aircraft Inquiry.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—The opposing sides rested today in the Senate contest over Senator Chamberlain's resolution to authorize the Military Affairs Committee to go ahead with its contemplated inquiry into aircraft, ordnance and the Quartermaser General's Department. The issue will be settled on Monday, it is expected, when the resolution will be called up for a vote.

Although talk of compromise was in the air, advocates of the measure were insisting that they believed they had enough votes to assure the adoption of the resolution as it now stands. Senator Chamberlain maintained that "the other side"—meaning the supporters of the Administration—had misunderstood the intent of the resolution, but that they had begun to see that it was not aimed at harassing President Wilson. He was opposed to altering the resolution so as to confine it to aircraft, as suggested by some of the Administration Senators. He wanted a vote on it, he said, as it now stood before the Senate.

Other supporters of the resolution spoke of the possibility of agreeing upon an amendment to exclude ordnance and the Quartermaster's Department. But they will not consent to this unless they find they have not votes enough to adopt the resolution unamended.

Senator Thompson of Kansas, following the cue given by President Wilson, talked today of confining the investigation to aircraft. If the bill is amended so as to stipulate only aircraft, he said, the Administration Senators will vote for it.

As the matter now stands, the advocates of the resolution are sure of its passing, so far as it affects aircraft. They are not sure, however, that they cannot put it through without amendment. The only question is, one Senator said tonight, whether its proponents want to allow the resolution to go to a test vote as between the President and the Senate.

Senator Chamberlain is not reconciled to the idea of allowing the White House to dictate what is to be left in his resolution. He insists that the Senate alone ought to be the judge of what investigations it wishes to conduct. His friends in the Senate—and they are on both sides of the chamber—contend that the White House opposition was largely meant as a rebuke to him for his activity in the investigations conducted by the Military Affairs Committee last Winter.

"I've got plenty of fight left in me," said Senator Chamberlain. "I'm not fighting the Administration; I'm fighting to help win this war. The way to do it is to find out our mistakes and see that they are not repeated. This investigation would show exactly what these mistakes have been in aircraft, ordnance, and in the Quartermaster General's Department. The country is impatient to know what has been going on."

With many Senators away from the capital today it was impossible for supporters and opponents of the Chamberlain resolution to make any lineup of forces. They will have to wait until Monday morning to do that. In the meantime efforts for compromise are under way.

Hughes Holds Conferences.

WASHINGTON, May 18. (Associated Press.)—Plans for the Department of Justice investigation into airplane production were made today by Charles E. Hughes, who is to have charge, in conferences with Attorney General Gregory, Secretary Baker, Senator Chamberlain, Chairman of the Senate Military Committee; Brig. Gen. Charles McK. Saltzman, Assistant Chief of the Signal Corps; Major D. C. Beatty of the Signal Corps, and William L. Frierson, Assistant Attorney General.

The conferences, held in the offices of the Attorney General, lasted all day and through this evening, when Mr. Hughes planned to return to New York for several days, until the collection and classification of documents relating to airplane production are completed by Mr. Frierson and other War Department officials.

Senator Chamberlain spent several hours going over plans for the inquiry with Mr. Hughes and the Attorney General, and it was reported later he might withdraw his pending resolution providing for a Senate aircraft investigation when assured that the Department of Justice will go deeply into all phases of the situation. He did not confirm this, however.

Secretary Baker participated in the conferences about a half hour and promised the full co-operation of the War Department in producing any records or data which Mr. Hughes might wish.

The Attorney General explained that the investigation was to be thorough, and asked Mr. Hughes to do his utmost to develop whether any criminal liability was involved in the conduct of any persons connected with airplane production.

DANIELS HOLDS BACK TURBINE ENGINES

Refuses Request of Shipping Board on Ground That Destroyers Must Be Built First.

SCHWAB MAY SEE PRESIDENT

His Aids Assert 180 Ships Are Being Held Up at Hog Island Yards by Secretary's Stand.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—According to officials of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, the construction of 180 merchant ships at the great Government shipyard at Hog Island cannot be completed on schedule time because of a decision of the Navy Department to decline a request from the Fleet Corporation to furnish turbine engines for these vessels. The position of the Navy Department is that, as the turbines are to be placed in new destroyers, which are needed urgently for convoy and patrol work, it would be unwise to permit delay in the completion of the destroyer building program. Besides, it is urged, the transports which are to be constructed at Hog Island would be without adequate means of protection from German submarines if the destroyer program got behind.

The matter was taken up today by Secretary Daniels with Major Gen. Goethals, chief of storage and traffic under the War Department, after Mr. Daniels had heard that a report was being circulated that the Emergency Fleet Corporation had made its request to the Navy Department and had been refused. Charles M. Schwab, General Manager of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, had been represented as having said that if the Navy Department did not give the corporation facilities for obtaining turbines he would bring the matter to the attention of President Wilson. The transports being built at Hog Island, according to the position credited to Mr. Schwab, could be ready for service two months sooner if the Navy Department would furnish the turbines.

Although it was asserted that the Navy Department had rejected the proposal, these complaints were not known to Mr. Daniels, it was said, until he went to Philadelphia yesterday and heard the report that he had refused to let the Emergency Fleet Corporation have some of the navy turbines. As things have turned out, Mr. Daniels made a decision in line with the position attributed to him. He gave this explanation this afternoon of his reason for not complying with the request of the Fleet Corporation:

"We are holding back on the construction of certain types of naval vessels in order to release steel plates for merchant ships," said Mr. Daniels.

"General Goethals came over and asked whether we could not release some of the facilities that the navy has secured for making turbines for destroyers, in order that turbines might be more quickly secured for transports and other ships.

"I explained that the Navy Department and the Shipping Board have been working together, and that the navy had spent between two and three million dollars to supply additional facilities for the manufacture of turbines.

"If we turned these facilities over to the War Department or the Shipping Board, the completion of destroyers would be delayed. This, we think, would be a great mistake, and I could not agree to the delay. Destroyers are the paramount thing, and we could not consent to delay a single minute.

"The safe conduct of troops and supply ships is the supreme duty of the navy. It is of vital importance. We are glad to have been so successful in this work up to date.

"Merchant vessels are getting more and more numerous all the time. This means we will need more destroyers to properly safeguard them. Therefore, it would be a great mistake to transfer our turbine facilities to any other work at this time.

"The additional facilities we have for building turbines for destroyers are what we have created. Foreseeing that we would be short of machinery unless then existing facilities were promptly extended, we took steps when the new destroyer program was adopted to provide additional facilities. The entire program hinges on our ability to get turbines when needed and as hulls are launched.

"Both sides naturally feel that their ships represent the supreme need. What we are doing in getting our destroyers quickly is as much for the army as for the navy.

"The navy has some special facilities which the Shipping Board could not use. We have a definite, fixed destroyer program, while the program of the Shipping Board is being enlarged from time to time. After destroyers now under contract are finished it probably will be wise to turn over to the Shipping Board such of our turbine facilities as they can utilize. It will then be necessary to determine whether still more destroyers are to be built.

"Even now we are experiencing a little delay in getting destroyer machinery. If our turbine facilities were released we would have hulls waiting for engines in the Summer."

WOMEN ALIENS PUT UNDER MEN'S RULES

Only Exception Is Half-Mile Limit, Which Will Soon Be Revoked.

ARREST "FRENCH OFFICER"

Arthur M. Aten Accused of Impersonating One in Order to Cash Worthless Checks.

Instructions regarding the registration of the women enemy aliens in the southern district of New York were received by United States Marshal Thomas D. McCarthy yesterday. The instructions, which came from Attorney General Gregory in Washington, are to the effect that, with the exception of Regulation 4, the President's proclamation of Nov. 16, 1917, is now to be interpreted as including women who are subjects of Germany, and its other regulations are immediately in effect. Regulation 4 forbids enemy subjects from approaching within half a mile of military reservations, munition factories, &c. This regulation will also apply to women in the near future.

The date for the registration of women will probably be announced this week. In New York and other cities of more than 5,000 population the registration will be in charge of the police. In places of less than 5,000 population Postmasters will direct the registration.

Theodore Lorber, a German whose American home is in the Union Hill section of New Jersey, was arrested yesterday charged with giving a fictitious address when he changed his residence. When told he was under arrest Lorber flew into a rage and tried to strangle the Federal agent who took him into custody, but was finally subdued and handcuffed. He is held pending further investigation.

Jacob Palm, who was taken to the Enemy Alien Bureau, charged with failure to register, said he came here when he was eighteen months old, and did not think he was required to register like other Germans. At first he said he was born in Brooklyn, but later admitted that he was born in Germany in 1877. He was ordered detained while the Secret Service settled his birthplace.

Joseph Steinier of Red Bank, N. J., owns a motor boat and went out for a spin on the Shrewsbury a few days ago. He had not gone far when his boat broke down. He had such difficulty in making the short distance that the facts reached the ears of an agent of the Department of Justice. Enemy aliens are forbidden to operate vessels of any kind in American waters. Steinier has a good record and was paroled on his promise to get rid of his motorboat.

Paul Degenhardt, who says he is an artist's model, was taken into custody charged with uttering insulting remarks about the United States and also with "justifying Germany's actions in Belgium." He was born in Hanover, Germany, and has been ordered interned for the period of the war.

Peter Metz, a prosperous farmer near Morristown, N. J., was arrested with his son Fritz yesterday, charged with violating the Espionage act. The son, it is charged, claimed exemption from military service on religious grounds, and was in the habit of citing passages from the Bible which he said proved the cause of the Allies was unjust. Father and son, it is said, tried to express their views at a Red Cross meeting and the arrests followed.

Charles R. McGuinness, who says he lives at 93 Halsey Street, Newark, was arrested yesterday, charged with posing as a Captain in the United States Navy. He was arraigned before United States Commissioner Stanton in Hoboken yesterday, and held without bail for further examination tomorrow. He is also charged with obtaining money under false pretenses and with passing worthless checks.

Officers of the Army Intelligence Service yesterday arrested Arthur Mills Aten on a charge of impersonating a French officer and using the uniform to cash checks when he had no funds in the bank. It was said that the arrest was made in a club in East Sixty-seventh Street, and that Aten had a list of addresses of persons socially prominent. He had just left the house of a society woman where he had been calling.

The officers said that Aten had cashed checks in hotels in Washington, Baltimore, and other cities and that he had failed to pay a hotel bill on his last visit to Baltimore. Aten said that he had the right to wear the French uniform because of short service in the French aviation section. He also said he went abroad in the American Ambulance Service. Before he went to Europe he said he had taken part in an effort to show that Dr. Cook had not scaled Mount McKinley. The officers withheld the home address of Aten and other information about him pending fuller investigation of his record.

Mayor George N. Seger of Passaic yesterday wrote to Dr. Paul Luck requesting his resignation as a member of the Board of Education of Passaic. The Mayor's letter said:

"Your recent utterances as quoted in the local and metropolitan press cannot be construed to be other than un-American. The public schools of our country are strictly American institutions, and one who is not in sympathy with all they stand for cannot serve them fully and loyally. I respectfully request that you tender your resignation as a member of the Board of Education at your earliest opportunity."

When Dr. Luck was asked over the telephone if he was going to resign, he said:

"I am not going to talk any more."

Last Monday night the Board of Education passed a resolution to eliminate the teaching of German in the public schools of the city. Dr. Luck, who opposed the resolution, declared that German culture and German ideas of education were far superior to American. He stated that the teaching of German in American schools should be compulsory. He assailed those who criticised him for his stand.

William W. Welch, a lawyer of Passaic, who was present at the meeting, told Dr. Luck he knew a man now in an internment camp who was placed there for making remarks that were not one half as seditious as those made by Dr. Luck. The doctor, in reply, said: "You cannot intern me. I am an American citizen."

TOBACCO FUND NEEDS THE HELP OF PACKERS

Miss Carson Calls for Volunteers —Gen. Pershing Sends Unsolicited Approval.

The tobacco fund organization, founded by Miss Margaret Sumner Carson, daughter of Colonel John M. Carson, U. S. A., which is known as "An Army Girl's Transport Tobacco Fund," needs volunteers to aid in packing tobacco kits for distribution on the American and allied transports on board of which the soldiers of the United States are now being sent to Europe. Until May 1 the tobacco companies delivered the tobacco to the fund packed and ready for distribution, but recently, owing to the "speeding up" of overseas transportation, they have been compelled to deliver the tobacco unpacked, thereby creating a new problem for the army girls to solve.

In order to meet the new situation a volunteer Packing Committee, which has been given working space by the Metropolitan Tobacco Company, at 29 Fourth Avenue, was organized. The women in charge of the packing work are Mrs. Valentine Mott, Mrs. Henry Sanford, Mrs. H. F. Benjamin, Mrs. John M. Carson, Mrs. M. H. Husted, and Mrs. Hayden Cole. Miss Carson said yesterday more volunteers, and many of them, were needed immediately. Recently the women in charge of packing the kits have been putting them up at the rate of 5,000 to 8,000 a day, and this means folding the cartons, filling them and then packing them in large unit cartons ready for shipment.

The work of the Army Girls' Tobacco Fund has been approved by General Pershing, who recently wrote to Miss Carson, expressing his appreciation of the work she and those associated with her are doing to make more pleasant the overseas voyages of the men who are fighting under him in France. General Pershing's letter, which came unsolicited, reads:

General Headquarters
American Expeditionary Forces,
France, April 12, 1918.

Miss Margaret S. Carson, An Army Girl's Transport Tobacco Fund, 25 Pine Street, New York City, N. Y.

My dear Miss Carson: In behalf of the soldiers traveling on transports, I desire to acknowledge, with thanks, the gift from your fund delivered (on the transports) * * * and to express my appreciation of the thoughtfulness of yourself and the ladies associated with you in raising such a fund for the benefit of the soldiers.

Will you not convey to the subscribers my warm thanks for their kindness?

Cordially yours,
JOHN J. PERSHING,
General Commanding.

FINDS TRAFFIC HERE HEAVIEST IN WORLD

Deputy Commissioner Harriss Makes Tests at Seventeen Corners in New York.

MORE DENSE THAN LONDON

Report Says Columbus Circle Is the Busiest Corner of Any on Both Continents.

Dr. John A. Harriss, Special Deputy Commissioner of Traffic, said yesterday that New York City presents more traffic problems of a serious nature than any other city in the world. Since his appointment, a few weeks ago, Dr. Harriss says he has made as scientific a study as possible of the problems confronting him, and he has suggested several improvements, some of which will go into effect before the end of the month.

One became part of the traffic law last week, when the Board of Aldermen passed an ordinance permitting physicians who apply for special cards, which may now be obtained of the Police Department, to park their cars for a reasonable length of time in crowded thoroughfares when on professional duty. Dr. Harriss expects to make an experimental test this week of his plan to relieve the congested theatre traffic in the Forty-second Street block between Broadway and Eighth Avenue.

To familiarize himself with actual traffic condition, the Commissioner had a tabulated count made a few days ago of the number of vehicles, both horse and motor, passing seventeen of New York's busiest corners from 8:30 A. M. to 6:30 P. M. These he contrasted with a similar count made during a twelve-hour period on seventeen of London's busiest corners just before the war. These statistics show that Columbus Circle is the heaviest traffic centre in New York, the count made for Dr. Harriss aggregating 39,210 vehicles for one day, while London's busiest corner prior to the war, at the Ritz Hotel, Piccadilly, witnessed the passage of 28,735 vehicles for a twelve-hour period. Columbus Circle traffic, therefore, for a period two hours less than London's most crowded centre, exceeded the latter by nearly 10,500 vehicles.

Times Square, at Broadway and Forty-second Street, furnished the second largest number of vehicles for a ten-hour day, 19,650; the Fifth Avenue and Forty-second Street corner came next, with 18,800; Central Park West and Seventy-second Street showed 18,710; Fifth Avenue and Fifty-seventh Street, 17,890; Pier 25, North River, foot of North Moore Street, was the sixth busiest traffic centre with 17,512 vehicles, and Bleecker and Lafayette Streets seventh with 16,412. Other busy corners were Fifth Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street, Broadway and Thirty-fourth Street, Fourth Avenue and Twenty-third Street, Park Avenue and Sixtieth Street, the Queensboro Bridge approach, Eighth Avenue and 110th Street, and Seventh Avenue and 125th Street.

The total amount of traffic for New York's seventeen most congested places was 274,305 vehicles; while London's seventeen corners showed 235,032, an excess for New York of 38,475 during ten hours, as against a twelve-hour count for London.

READING PRAISES AMERICA.

Discussed Brigading with Allies in Address at Montreal.

MONTREAL, May 18.—A high tribute was paid to the American people for their abnegation in permitting their troops to be brigaded with French and British armies by Lord Reading, British Ambassador to the United States, in an address to the Canadian Club this afternoon.

Lord Reading also discussed Canada's part in the war, and aroused much enthusiasm by his references to the way the dominion, unsolicited, rushed troops to France to fight for the empire and democracy.

OUR MEN IN PICARDY FULL OF CONFIDENCE

Pin Their Faith to Gen. Foch and Are Undisturbed by Gloomy Reports.

EAGER TO PROVE METTLE

Soldiers Inspired by Pride of the People at Home—Feel Allies' Eyes Are on Them.

By FLOYD P. GIBBONS.

Copyright, 1918, by The Chicago Tribune Company.

WITH THE AMERICANS UNDER MARSHAL FOCH, May 18.—The French newspapers have published cables from New York stating that American troops are now occupying support positions in the Allied defenses opposite the German in the present battle.

In view of this fact, the writer hopes the censorship will find the following details unobnoxious to the particularly stringent rules necessarily in vogue during the hours and days when the fate of the war, if not the world, hangs in the balance.

As stated in previous dispatches, I have accompanied the American troops on their march from certain parts of the battle line to the position we now occupy within sound of the pounding front. The contingent to which I am attached is thoroughly American from the lowest private to the commanding General, and the promise is that it will remain as American entity. The infantry, artillery, and auxiliary branches of this organization will remain attached and support one another.

We are under the French High Command, and buried in the midst of the preparations that are now on foot. Our packs are full, our morale high. Every officer and man in the organization has the feeling that the eyes of their dashing French comrades in arms and their hard-fighting British brothers are on this contingent. Our inspiration is the belief that the hope and the pride of our own people across the sea are centred upon us. With this sacred feeling, this American contingent stands ready to meet the task and rests resolute tonight on the brink of great events.

Their Confidence Unshaken.

Some of the disquieting news now prevalent reaches us. But its effect, as far as I can ascertain, is nil. Officers and men are unconcerned with recent reports of the enemy's successes as though we were children in the nursery of a burning house, and the neighborhood was ringing with fire alarms. German advances before Amiens, enemy rushes gaining gory ground in Flanders, carry no shock to the high resolve that exists in the allied reserves, of which we are a part.

The army knows nothing but confidence. If there is other than optimism to be derived from present events, then the army has cause to look upon such a result as gratifying, because it can derive nothing but the most needed effort and creating a greater measure of effort and assistance from the slower functioning powers at home. Reasoning in that way, hostile pessimism will hurry to the wheel every American shoulder that failed to take up its individual war burden under the wave of optimism.

But the army has better reason for its optimism. Our officers know something about the dark days that preceded the battle of the Marne. They are familiar with the gloomy events that led to the removal of the French Government from Paris to Bordeaux at that time. They recall then how the enemy was overrunning Belgium, how the old British were in retreat, how the German was within twenty miles of the French capital.

And then came that message by Foch and the brilliant stroke with which he backed it up. What followed was the tumble and collapse of the German effort and a forced transformation in the enemy's plans from a war of six weeks to a war of four years. One colossal effort became one colossal failure which is put into Americaness in our army and brought up to date by the expression, "The bigger they are the harder they fall."

Our army knows that the man who turned the trick at the Marne is now our commander, and not the slightest doubt is entertained that it is our destiny to take part in another play of the cards which will call and dash the Prussian hand. Our forces [illegible] are staking their lives to a finish on Foch's ace in the hole.

Look to General Foch.

That deadly earnestness is our army's confidence in General Foch. The capture of a hilltop in Picardy or the loss of a village in Flanders has no effect upon that confidence. It finds reinforcement in the belief that America has gained sober and keener appreciation of her part in the war since March 21.

The army now feels that the people 4,000 miles away from the battlefronts will have a better understanding of the intense meaning in General Pershing's words, "Confidence is needed, but overconfidence is dangerous." In other words, it is felt that the home tendencies to underrate the enemy's strength and underestimate the effort necessary to overcome him make good material for Billy Sunday sermons and spread-eagle speeches, but they don't load guns or place men in the front line.

It would seem best that Americans realize that Germany is not yet beaten, that she is yet to be beaten, and that from this minute on America's share in the administration of that beating must be greater, more determined, than heretofore deemed necessary. If such a realization could reach the American people with the same kind of shock they would get if they read one morning that the German army was marching upon Washington, then our soldiers would feel that the terrific events of the last three weeks had not been entirely without good results to the cause of democracy. Shocks make realizations less easy to forget. Forgetfulness from now on means defeat.

Lagging memories find no billet in the personnel of this especially fortunate American contingent. Its records registering 300 recent casualties keep in mind the fact that the contingent has seen service on the line and still has scores to settle with the enemy. Officers and men, with but few exception, have undergone their baptism of German fire and have found the experience to their liking. This contingent has an esprit which makes members of every regiment and brigade in it vie with members of other regiments and brigades. Ask any enlisted man and he will tell you that his company, battery, regiment, or brigade "has it all over the rest of 'em."

More important still is the [illegible] bond of confidence which exists between infantry and artillery. That confidence was built upon the alertness of the front-line sentinels in the infantry and the sleepless cannoneers standing tireless beside their guns in the rear. The nervous doughboy in an advanced position facing the Germans in the dark of early morning had only to shoot a rocket skyward to bring down a protecting curtain of fire between him and the enemy in less than a minute's time.

SEE WAR CHANGING US FOR THE BETTER

Columbia Professors Emphasize Change in America's International Relations.

WANT NO RETURN TO PAST

Find War Develops Spirit of Sacrifice, Larger Outlook on World, and National Unity.

Several of the best known professors of Columbia University have contributed their opinions as to "What the War Means to America" in an article by that title which appears tomorrow in The Columbia Alumni News. Among the contributors are Professors Brander Matthews, John Dewey, Calvin Thomas, Michael I. Pupin, John Bates Clark, William A. Dunning, and Carlton J. H. Hayes. The professors point out the changes in America's international relations, and emphasize the value the war will have to this country in helping her find herself.

Professor Thomas, head of the Department of Germanic Languages and Literatures, finds that the war means "the Republic is engaging in saving its soul, or, rather, as a preliminary step in proving to mankind that it has a soul worth saving."

Professor Thomas says:

"Prussianism has now unmasked itself; it stands for just what Attila and Tamerlane and Genghis Khan stood for, that is, for conquest, domination, and rule. As matters not that German statesmen now and then take the trouble to deny that this is so; Germany is not ruled by statesmen, but by soldiers. We cannot trust a single word its statesmen say, but we can trust what its soldiers do. And it has become plain as a pikestaff that there will be no good life possible on this planet for those who love liberty, justice, and fair play until the menace of the beast is done away with."

"It is no time now for us who are professors of German, who have lived in Germany, who have loved many things in German life, and who sincerely wish well to the German people—it is no time for us to sentimentalize in an elegiac strain and urge that the Germans are fond of flowers and Christmas trees and folksongs. They have given themselves over to the Beast and we have got to fight the Beast until he is no longer dangerous. Never since time began did a nation fight in a nobler cause."

Abandon Selfish Isolation.

Brander Matthews, Professor of Dramatic Literature at Columbia, believes the war has many messages for us, and that it will have more. "Two of them," he says, "are of immediate purport. First, we have now abandoned, once for all, our selfish isolation, and hereafter we must hold ourselves ready to bear our share of the world's burdens. Second, we must look to ourselves, we must make sure that we are a people and not a mere horde of discordant creatures. We must take the measures necessary to make us homogeneous and united—one in speech, in law, in thought, and in our unattainable ideals."

Carlton J. H. Hayes, Associate Professor of History, points out that in the first place the war means an end to the isolation of the American people.

"Hitherto," says Professor Hayes, "knowledge of the outside world has been restricted in the main to two relatively unimportant sections of our community—the lower-class immigrants and the upper-class 'globe-trotters.' Now there is hardly a family in this country which has not at least one member in Europe or on the way to Europe."

Professor Hayes continues:

"We cannot be satisfied with 'balances of power' or other pompous definitions of impotence and imbecility. We must set out to organize the world for democracy and lasting peace. To this goal the union of the arms of France, Britain, Italy, Japan, and the United States now points. Of this union General Foch is the badge and symbol. And if upon this foundation there be reared a super-state of the free nations of the world, and if to the present temporary union succeed a permanent union, then indeed will the meaning of the present war surpass in mind and degree the meaning of all other wars that the world has ever seen."

Robert E. MacAlarney, Associate Professor of Journalism, says:

"The war means a multitude of things to America. But reduced to permanent sediment these things mean permanently changed national standards.

"No longer, when the conflict is ended, will it be possible for certain varieties of vicious national and municipal selfishness to exist unrebuked. The aloofness of the United States from world responsibility has vanished all time. Memorial Day and Fourth of July celebrations—all things have lost forever their provincial restricted meaning. In the future these will signify the beginnings of the beginnings of the bigger and greater world spirit of liberty which the United States of America will help impose upon even unwilling Germany."

Dr. John Dewey, Professor of Philosophy, extolls "that spirit of sacrifice and devotion" which the war has created in the hearts of the American people.

TO CONTROL FELT OUTPUT.

Government to Regulate Supplies by Licensing System.

To insure adequate supplies of felt for Governmental needs and to regulate, through a licensing system, the manufacture of felt for civilian needs, Sylvan Stroock, of the War Industries Board, yesterday assumed control of the entire production of felt in the United States, it was announced today.

This action was decided upon by Government agents in conference with the felt piece goods manufacturers here, it was stated.

SCHWAB LAUDS MEN AS SHIPS QUIT WAYS

Government Cargo Steamship and Mine Sweeper Launched at Shooter Island.

6,000 ATTEND CEREMONIES

Director General Says We Are Turning Out Vessels So Fast Now It Makes the Kaiser Ill.

Six thousand guests and workmen employed by the Standard Shipyards were present at Shooter Island yesterday afternoon to witness the launching of a Government cargo steamship Englewood and the mine sweeper Heron, which took place without a hitch amid great enthusiasm.

The first vessel to slide down the ways into the water was the Englewood, at 4:15 o'clock, which was named by Miss Mary Mock, niece of Charles M. Schwab, Director General of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, who stood beside her. After the bottle of champagne had been broken on the stem of the vessel Mr. Schwab left the platform and walked down the steps in order to address the 5,500 workmen present.

"You are the bone and sinew of this contest," he said in part, "and upon your fidelity depends our opportunity of winning this war. The rats we are now turning out ships in the American shipyards is making the Kaiser ill. You are deserving of the high wages paid by the shipbuilders, but in return you must give every ounce of work that you are capable of to the Government."

In speaking to the reporters afterward, Mr. Schwab said that the delay in the shipbuilding program was caused by the yards all being occupied with navy contracts, and this meant that new plants had to be constructed for the merchant ships. All sorts of wild rumors were afloat, and the public were led to expect too much. Six million tons were predicted as the output for the first year, when Great Britain, with all her existing well-equipped plants, could only turn out half that tonnage in twelve months. Mr. Schwab said that the total new tonnage in the United States this year would exceed 3,000,000, and in 1919 he was sure that the 6,000,000 tons mark would be reached. He added that the Englewood would be ready for sea inside six weeks.

The cargo steamship launched yesterday is a single screw vessel of 7,500 gross tonnage, 400 feet long and equipped with triple expansion engines of 2,500 horse power, which will give her a speed of eleven knots.

The mine sweeper Heron, which was successfully launched at 4:45 o'clock was named by Miss Astrid Rundquist, daughter of Lieutenant Rundquist. The Heron is 190 feet long and fitted with 1,200 horse power engines and carries a crew of eighty-three men.

In addition to Mr. Schwab, addresses were made by United States Senator William Calder of New York, Dock Commissioner Hulbert, and the Rev. Dr. Charles A. Eaton. The guests were taken from the factory to Shooter Island in the steamboat Ursula.

BROWN HEARINGS TO START.

Commissioner Copeland Says They Will Be Held in About Two Weeks.

After a conference with Corporation Counsel Burr in the latter's office, Health Commissioner Royal S. Copeland announced yesterday that the charges against Lucius P. Brown, Director of the Bureau of Food and Drugs, suspended more than two weeks ago, would be completed in a few days and hearings would begin in about two weeks.

Commissioner Copeland also announced that on Monday the Bronx office of the department, under Acting Sanitary Superintendent James O'Leary, would inaugurate a campaign against stray dogs in that borough. He said that many complaints had been received of late from persons in the Bronx who reported having been bitten by stray dogs. The police will assist in the campaign and will enforce the law compelling owners to muzzle their dogs.

'UNSINKABLE' SHIP TYPE IS REJECTED

Navy Board Reports Against Plan of Buoyancy Boxes as Tried on the Lucia.

TIME AND SPACE ARE LOST

These Objections Declared to Outweigh Any Possible Gain—No External Protection for Ships.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—A board of experts appointed by Secretary Daniels to conduct tests has reported adversely on the so-called unsinkable ship. In the opinion of the board, a ship provided with the system tested "would, after the explosion, be little better than a waterlogged derelict, and, under these conditions, even should she remain afloat, her salvage would prove difficult."

The test was made on the steamship Lucia, which was fitted with the Donnelly system of buoyancy boxes. The inventor whose name the system bears is a builder of dry docks, and has had wide experience in this work. In its report the board says that the installation of the system is not available for general adoption under existing conditions for these reasons:

1. The questionable efficacy as a preventive against sinking.

2. The reduction in cargo-carrying capacity with deadweight and cubic contents.

3. The length of time required for installation.

The Lucia was not subjected to actual test by exploding a torpedo against her side, but the board says it made calculations based on results of damage actually received by vessels that had been torpedoed, and reached the opinion cited.

The board points out that while there is no doubt that buoyancy boxes could be installed in sufficient numbers and so located that they would not endanger the stability of a vessel, this can be done only by a loss in actual deadweight capacity of the vessel equal to the weight of the boxes installed, and also a reduction in the cubical capacity of the holds.

As regards the time required for making an installation of this type of other vessels, the board states that this is a matter of vital importance, as the laying up together, or in succession, of a large number of ships for any considerable length of time is not considered permissible in view of the present shipping situation. Mr. Donnelly asserts that one week would be sufficient time to install the Lucia type of boxes in a vessel. The board gives its opinion that this is impossible of accomplishment on account of the large number of boxes involved—12,000 in the case of the Lucia—and the wharf and storehouse space that would be required for boxes before they could be installed, which, under existing conditions of congested freight terminals, is impossible to obtain.

In addition to reporting on the installation on the Lucia, Secretary Daniels directed the board to investigate and report upon the value and practicability of other means of preserving buoyancy of vessels in war service. In complying with these instructions, the board reported:

(a) That external protection by any means so far suggested is not a practical solution of the problem of preserving buoyancy, by reason of the reduction in speed, and the difficulties in attaching or operating such features.

(b) That attached methods of buoyancy protection by "bulges" and "blisters" are objectionable on account of the reduction in speed and the difficulty in fitting this form of protection.

(c) No form of buoyance box or any so far suggested material for stuffing affords a practicable solution of the buoyancy problem, on account of the reduction in deadweight and cubic capacity, &c.

(d) A judicious selection of cargo will aid materially in obtaining better buoyancy conditions in the case of damage resulting from flooding of holds.

(e) Internal protection by sub-dividing bulkheads is the best way to preserve buoyancy of vessels operating in the war zone.

OPEN CLUB FOR SOLDIERS.

Col. Roosevelt Speaks at Exercises at Coney Island.

Colonel Theodore Roosevelt was the guest of honor yesterday at the official opening of a club for men in the service known as War Camp Community Service Unit No. 7 in Moose Hall on Surf Avenue, near West Fifth Street, Coney Island. The club was given to the service men by the business men of Coney Island.

After the exercises Colonel Roosevelt, together with William Hamlin Childs, Borough President Edward Riegelmann of Brooklyn, Colonel J. C. F. Tillson, representing General Mann of the Department of the East; Captain H. Hamlet, representing Admiral Usher, and Lieut. Col. R. C. Berkeley, commandant of the marine forces in Brooklyn, spoke at Seaside Park. A military parade was held in connection with the opening of the club unit.

Colonel Roosevelt criticised the pacifist and the conscientious objector, and said: "We want three times as many men in the service as there are at the present time. And I want to say that if there is one person I honor above the soldier it is the mother. The mother who does not bring up her son to be a soldier is as despicable as the boy who runs in battle."

ALMA GLUCK'S VOICE FOR RED CROSS DRIVE

Singer Appeals for $1 Each from the Millions Who Hear Her Sing by Record.

SURE EACH IS ABLE TO GIVE

Gives Opportunity for Other Phonograph Musicians to Mobilize Their Admirers.

A plan to mobilize her millions of music-lovers for the benefit of the Red Cross drive was laid before the American Red Cross officials yesterday by Mme. Alma Gluck. The singer was enthusiastic over the plan that had occurred to her, and succeeded in impressing all who talked to her with the unique opportunity it offered, as she expressed it, "to make the dollars of music-lovers sing in France."

Mme. Gluck is reminded, day in and day out, of the fact that somewhat more than 1,000,000 of her records are sold annually in the United States. Here is a more than ordinarily intimate relationship between diva and song-lover. Scarcely a day passes that she does not receive letters from all parts of the country in which members of her adorned circle tell her all sorts of little friendly details about themselves, their devotion to herself or to this or that song she has "sung" in their homes—letters of mothers telling frequently of the naming of some new arrival in the family after her, and letters of children telling her that when they grow up they are going to sing just as she does if they can. Mme. Gluck treasures these intimate letters and the friends who write them, and she keeps up the friendships that thus grow out of her from far parts of the country.

When the Red Cross drive began she turned from her recent activities in behalf of the Liberty Loan to devote herself to the cause of humanity and solace in the war. She began by making a personal contribution of $25,000 to the Red Cross fund. In addition to this gift, however, and the gift of her services in many song recitals at camps and base hospitals for soldiers, it occurred to her that she might give her wider self by winning for the Red Cross the contributions of these millions of "Gluck lovers" whom the talking machine interests mentioned in connection with the million of her records sold each year. She issues herewith an appeal to all those who have bought her records to send $1, "no more, no less," to be turned over to the Red Cross.

H. P. Davison, Chairman of the War Council of the Red Cross, has asked the heads of that organization to co-operate in putting her plan into effect, Mme. Gluck said.

"It occurred to me," said Mme. Gluck yesterday, "that of all persons likely to be moved into generous assistance of the Red Cross in its humanitarian work in the midst of this terrible war, the people who love music, the men and women and children of tender hearts that thrill with joy or sorrow or sympathy when they listen to simple songs, are those naturally most likely to respond here. I recalled the many notes of sweet and tender sentiment that had come to me from my own big musical family in this connection, and I made up my mind that, if it were possible, I should mobilize all of them,—all to whom my voice reached and who might care in some sweet way to repay me for any pleasure it gave them—into forming a sort of Alma Gluck army for the Red Cross. If thereafter the plan is extended by other singers to their circle of song-lovers in turn, I shall be most happy indeed.

"I knew that each of those million records annually presupposed a talking machine costing from $50 to $250, and that to persons who could afford to pay for a machine and for the records, a single dollar spent in such a good cause was a matter of comparative ease. I therefore appeal to every person who has a record of mine to prove that he or she likes my song in very fact by sending in for me to the Red Cross one dollar—no more and no less. I feel sure that if this appeal receives sufficient publicity my little sentimental army of from one to five millions will do its very considerable bit for our country's Red Cross. To all of these, my affectionate listeners, I shall henceforth say: 'If you love me, give. One dollar, no more and no less.'"

Mme. Gluck has sung for the records in almost every language represented in the world war—English, French, German, Italian, as well as in Spanish and Hebrew. Her Red Cross army will therefore be in very fact an international one, as is the Red Cross itself at heart.

In her plan of "singing in" dollars for the Red Cross drive, Mme. Gluck invites her devotees to send their contributions to the office of the Treasurer of the American Red Cross, payable to the American Red Cross or the Treasurer at 52 William Street, or 280 Fifth Avenue, marking the envelopes in addition: "For the Alma Gluck Red Cross fund." While the singer herself suggested a uniform contribution of $1, "no more, no less," she did not insist absolutely upon $1 as a maximum, and it is not likely that the Red Cross will enter any vigorous objection to members of Mme. Gluck's "music family" sending in as much more as they may wish to show how highly they value the privilege that they belong to it. Or may be they may send in $1 for each record.

MEMORIAL SERVICE HERE FOR JAMES G. BENNETT

Staffs of Herald and Telegram Arrange for Tribute at Grace Church on Tuesday Afternoon.

Under the direction of employes of The Herald and The Evening Telegram, memorial services for James Gordon Bennett, who died last Tuesday morning in Beaulieu, France, will be held at Grace Church, Broadway and Tenth Street, Tuesday afternoon, at 2:30. The arrangements for the services were made at a meeting of the employes of Mr. Bennett's New York newspapers, who adopted resolutions last night expressing their keen feeling of loss in the death of their chief.

Besides many of Mr. Bennett's personal and business friends and associates, the services will be attended by representatives of the Mackey Club, the Westminster Kennel Club, the Aero Club of America, and other organizations in which Mr. Bennett was interested. The services will be conducted by the Rev. Charles L. Slattery, D. D., rector of Grace Church, and the Rev. Samuel N. Watson, D. D., rector emeritus of Holy Trinity American Protestant Episcopal Church in Paris. It was Dr. Watson who officiated at the marriage of Mr. Bennett and the Baroness de Reuter in Paris on Sept. 10, 1914, and who also baptized Mr. Bennett at that time.

The reading of the Episcopal order for the burial of the dead will begin the services, and will be followed by a choir service and a tribute to Mr. Bennett's memory by Dr. Watson, his old friend. The committee which arranged the memorial service consisted of men representing every department, editorial and mechanical, of The New York Herald and The Evening Telegram. The committee is as follows: Hamilton Peltz, Albert Steimer, T. H. Hamilton, J. D. J. Kelley, John T. Burke, John G. Logan, J. K. Ohl, William A. Willis, Owen Oliver, Brooks H. Beitler, W. A. Rogers, J. Harry Ballard, John F. Donlon, Snowden H. Summers, Frank B. Flaherty, William Bonte, George L. Cooper, T. O. Davidson, William F. Gallagher, Thomas Lambert, Paul Drane, William Brant, James A. Winters, Robert Schaefer, J. Mora Boyle, Hal Fink, Frank Cruden, James O'Sullivan, George Dorsett, Arthur Le Comte, L. B. Cutler, Abram Newman, James Gobetz, A. B. Hunt, Albert Foster, Edward McArdle, Willis Steele, Thomas J. Cecil, Richard Quann, Thomas Roche, Thomas Fitzgerald, and John Murphy.

ASK TRIBUTE TO FRANCE.

Woman's Naval Service Would Honor Joan of Arc on Memorial Day.

As appropriate at this time and a graceful tribute to America's ally, France, The Woman's Naval Service ask that a special commemorative ceremony to Jeanne d'Arc be held in connection with the parade of Memorial Day. The organization of which Miss Alice Carpenter is Chairman, Mrs. James Roosevelt, Vice Chairman, and Mrs. Henry A. Wise Wood, Treasurer, ask the public to make this request of the Mayor and committee in charge of the Memorial Day parade. This will be the 487th anniversary of the death of Jeanne d'Arc, and it is proposed to hold the ceremony before her statue on Riverside Drive, between Ninety-second and Ninety-third Streets.

The Memorial Day parade, as a rule, disbands at Ninety-first Street on the Drive, and, it is said, that with little trouble it could be continued to the foot of the statue where, with the large numbers of French soldiers who are in the city, an impressive ceremony could be held. The Woman's Naval Service recommends that a committee of French officers be invited by the Mayor to be present to receive the tribute of the fighting men of America to the memory of the heroine of France.

NEW YORK LEADS IN LIBERTY LOAN DRIVES

In Three Campaigns Took Over 160% of Quotas, Against 142% for Rest of Country.

TOTAL IS $3,852,172,550

Many Subscriptions Properly Belonging to This District Placed Elsewhere Recently.

The announcement by the Treasury Department in Washington of the final figures for the Third Liberty Loan permits of a comparison with the two previous bond issues, which indicates the excellent showing made by the New York Federal Reserve District. Although in the tabulation given out by the Department, New York was placed at the foot of the list of twelve districts, it having subscribed to 124 per cent. of its $900,000,000 quota, reference to the data for the first and second loans shows that New York had heretofore headed the column, its subscriptions to the first loan amounting to nearly 198 per cent. of its quota, and its subscriptions to the second loan totaling more than 172 per cent. of the quota.

Had it not been for the fact that a great many subscriptions which properly belonged to the New York district were filed in other districts it is the belief of local bankers that this district would have again occupied the first place. In determining the quotas the Treasury Department took into consideration the bank deposits in the various districts, the theory being that the funds on deposit in the various sections of the country would be drawn on for the payment of the bonds. Large corporations having the bulk of their funds on deposit with New York institutions were induced to file subscriptions in districts where they maintain sales offices or plants, and consequently the applications filed in New York were only a small part of the total applied for. It has been argued that it is unfair to fix quotas on the basis of bank deposits and then have corporations and individuals file subscriptions in places where they do not maintain proportionate deposits, and thus help small communities to make "records" and win honor flags at the expense of New York, which is burdened with a large quota and denied the subscriptions.

Taking the three loans, totaling $8,000,000,000, it appears that the subscriptions aggregated $11,822,778,800, or 147.7 per cent. The New York district's aggregate quotas for the three loans was $2,400,000,000, or 30 per cent. Its subscriptions to the three loans amounted to $3,852,172,550, or about 32½ per cent. For the three loans, New York subscribed to more than 160 per cent. of its quota, while the aggregate subscriptions of the remaining eleven districts to the three loans amounted to about 142 per cent. of their quotas.

The following table gives the records of the three loans by districts, the respective quotas, subscriptions, and percentages being given in each case.

Totals	$3,000,000,000	$4,170,019,650	139.0

It will be noticed that the Minneapolis District, which made the best showing for the Third Liberty Loan, made the worst for the first loan, when its subscriptions amounted to 87.8 per cent. of its quota. Two other districts, namely, Atlanta and Kansas City, fell under their respective quotas in the first loan.

The following table gives the percentages of the Treasury quotas for each of the three loans:

	First, (%.)	Second, (%.)	Third, (%.)
Boston	12	10	8 1-3
New York	30	30	30
Philadelphia	7	5 1-3	8 1-3
Cleveland	9	10	10
Richmond	4	4	4 1-3
Atlanta	3	2 2-3	3
Chicago	13	14	14 1-6
St. Louis	4	4	4 1-3
Minneapolis	4	3 1-2	3 1-2
Kansas City	5	4	4 1-3
Dallas	2	2 1-2	2 2-3
San Francisco	7	7	7
Total	100	100	100

It will be noticed that New York and San Francisco are the only two districts which had been asked to supply 30 and 7 per cent., respectively, for each of the three loans, the quotas for the other ten districts having varied.

The Federal Reserve Bank of New York announced yesterday that on subscriptions to the Third Liberty Loan totaling $1,114,930,700 it had already received payment to the amount of $812,489,904, or nearly 73 per cent., so that the balance due on the bonds is only $302,440,796.

From the statement given out it appears that of the total subscriptions filed in this district bonds to the amount of $796,571,950 were paid in full on or before May 9, the date specified by the Treasury Department. This is approximately 71½ per cent. of the total subscription. The initial 5 per cent. instalment payment made by banks or individuals who elected to pay for their bonds on the Government installment plan amounted to $15,917,964, the same appiying to the remaining $818,358,750 of bonds which were not paid for in full.

IRISH HERE ADDRESS APPEAL TO WILSON

Friends of Freedom Adopt a Mild Petition for Independence of Erin.

ENGLISH RULE DENOUNCED

Convention in Tumult Over Choice of Chairman—Devoy Assails "Hostile Press."

The National Order of the Friends of Irish Freedom began a two days' convention in the Central Opera House, in East Sixty-third Street, yesterday afternoon. About 1,000 men and women, most of them of Irish birth or ancestry, attended the meeting, which adopted a petition, read by Supreme Court Justice John W. Goff, calling on President Wilson and Congress to take such measures as are best calculated to bring about the independence of Ireland. The petition was much milder in wording than the utterances of most of the speakers, and it was noted that it was not received with the whirlwind of applause which greeted bitter references to England on the part of many of the speakers.

The arrests of Sinn Fein leaders, according to Diarmid Lynch, one of the principal speakers, were made as a part of British propaganda to create anti-Irish sentiment in the United States. Lynch, who is an American citizen, was recently deported from Ireland as a result of his alleged Sinn Fein activities. He said the arrest of the Sinn Fein leaders was "engineered with the ingenuity of hell."

Tumult Over Chairman.

John Jerome Rooney was temporary Chairman of the convention, and the Rev. Father Thomas J. Hurton of Philadelphia, the permanent Chairman. The nomination of Father Hurton as permanent Chairman was the occasion of a stormy outbreak. The trouble began after Mrs. Sheehy-Skeffington, who has been campaigning all over the country in the interest of the Sinn Fein, nominated Dr. John F. Kelly of Boston for the place. Immediately she had placed Dr. Kelly in nomination the hall was in an uproar, everybody wanting to speak at the same time.

James Larkin supported the opposition to Father Hurton. He shouted that while some priests in Ireland had stood by Ireland, a great many more had acquiesced in the British policy.

"Let us have the truth on this floor," he shouted above the din, "and not try and railroad this cause."

Rooney, who was in the chair, shouted to Larkin to sit down and half the crowd joined the request.

"You can shout me down perhaps, but you cannot stifle my convictions," Larkin yelled.

John Devoy of the Gaelic American, then took the floor. He talked about the hostile press and begged those present to keep in mind that the convention had been called to "build a machine that will work better than has the one of the last two years."

"We face today," he said, "a proclamation from the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland who commands all of England's military forces in our old home, which proclamation is designed chiefly to injure our cause in the minds of the American people. If we adopt Mrs. Sheffington's motion we show a lack of harmony."

The matter finally came to a vote and Father Hurton was elected.

After briefly outlining the purposes of the convention Father Hurton named a committee on resolutions and named Justice Goff as the Chairman. Father Hurton said that England was maintaining a great propaganda machine in this country against Ireland. He advised all present to join in an Irish propaganda, and suggested among other things that everybody write letters to the editors of newspapers in all parts of the United States. He introduced Lynch as the first speaker.

Menace of Sinn Fein.

Lynch said that the Irish were determined now to fight to the end, and that if England tried to enforce her decrees the young men of Ireland would sell their lives dearly. The Sinn Fein military organizations he declared to be better organized and armed than ever before. Some of the companies were better armed than others. When the speaker said that Ireland had just one natural enemy the crowd shouted the name of "England" before he had a chance to utter the name. He said he was certain that the news that a German submarine had landed a plotter on Irish shores would prove to be "a deliberate lie."

"These arrests and that story," he said, "are all intended to stir up prejudice against Ireland in this country."

Justice Goff followed Lynch and read the petition which is to be submitted to President Wilson and the members of Congress. The petition follows:

"To the President and Congress of the United States:

"We, the delegates to the Irish Race Convention, assembled at the Central Opera House, New York, on May 18 and 19, 1918, representing large bodies of citizens in all parts of the country and having many thousands of near relatives faithfully serving the Republic in the army and navy, respectfully submit the following petition and ask your favorable consideration of the statements and declarations therein contained.

"1. We and those we represent are loyal to the United States, anxious for its success in peace and war, and ready to make every sacrifice for its honor and its interests, as our race has ever been from the revolution to the present day. The cradle land of our race has ever been the most friendly to this republic of all the countries of the Old World, and the whole population of Ireland remains absolutely true to that friendship. The voice of Ireland's leaders was raised eloquently for the American cause during the Revolution, while her sons in the Continental Army were gallantly fighting for the victory to which their valor materially contributed. Today men of the Irish race are rendering the same valiant service in the fighting forces of the Republic as their predecessors gave in the Revolution, Mexico, the civil war, and the war with Mexico, the civil war, and the war with Spain. We respectfully submit that this record of loyalty and service is beyond the possibility of successful contradiction.

Irish Rights in America.

"2. Ireland and the Irish race in America have a right to a return of the friendship given without stint or condition to America, provided that can be made without injury to America's honor or interests, or violation of America's relations to her co-belligerents. We urge that what we ask would promote American interests, redound to the honor and glory of the Republic and be of enormous service to the cause for which we are fighting. We respectfully submit that failure to take such action will prove an injury to that cause in the eyes of the civilized world. We pray, therefore, for the application to Ireland, now, of President Wilson's noble declaration of the right of every people to self-rule and self-determination. We fully confident that American statesmanship can find a way to accomplish that result in a manner to strengthen the cause for which America is fighting.

"3. If Liberty has the same meaning in Ireland as in America, and Ireland is entitled to her liberty. We claim that her acquisition of it would be a benefit to the United States. She is held by England's military force alone; her population has been reduced to one-half of its natural extent by unjust legislation and worse administration; her once flourishing industries have been destroyed, so that a large proportion of her sons and daughters are obliged to seek in other lands the means of living denied to them in their own. Her condition is the direct result of that foreign rule. This rule has been a complete failure, even from the point of view of the real interests of England, and every English attempt to settle the Irish question has signally failed because of the persistent withholding of full self-government and the retention of control of finances and vital interests in London. This statement is as true of the present English Government as of any of its predecessors, and this has been many times ackowledged by her statesmen. With the removal of foreign rule will go the political divisions which have been fostered by that rule.

Ireland "Held in Bondage."

"4. Ireland is thus governed, held in bondage, and her natural growth stifled for the unreal benefit of England. A country capable of supporting twenty millions (20,000,000) of people is kept in a state of arrested development because of this selfish and narrow view by English interests and statesmanship; the contribution to the world's wealth and happiness, which a highly gifted race could make, if free, is destroyed. This makes the Irish question an international one, and not a mere matter of internal English politics. If it is not satisfactorily settled now it will continue to trouble the world, and remain a danger to the world's peace, for the Irish people will never consent to a continuance of English rule or a paltry measure of self-government which deprives Ireland of the control of her vital interests and her economic life.

"5. Because of the immense sacrifices of every kind which the United States is now making, and is prepared to make, our country now has it in its power to effect a settlement of this disturbing condition which so seriously weakens England and takes from her the power to make her full contribution of strength to her co-belligerents, such a result would be a lasting tribute to the moral leadership of America, and to accomplish it we urge our Government to exert every legitimate and friendly influence in favor of self-determination for the people of Ireland.

"We therefore respectfully ask the President and Congress to take such measures as, in their wisdom and judgment, are best calculated to bring about this result."

Mrs. Mary F. McWhorter of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Ancient Order of Hibernians said that she represented 70,000 Irish women in the United States. When she asked the question, "Has Ireland any friends?" a voice in the audience answered:

"Yes, Germany."

The man was not rebuked, neither was he applauded.

Supreme Court Justice Daniel F. Cohalan was present but did not address the convention. The convention will open its second and last session at 1 o'clock this afternoon.

IRELAND QUIETER; 500 ARRESTS MADE

have any connection with the conspiracy.

James Cotter was sentenced to six months' imprisonment; Richard Cotter was discharged.

According to the prosecuting attorney the Cotters were found at midnight in a boat outside Kingstown Harbor, their whereabouts being discovered by their burning some papers. James Cotter had in his possession a document bearing on the air raids on London, the suggestion being that he intended to convey this to the enemy.

Complete Surprise to Dublin.

DUBLIN, May 18.—The arrest of the Sinn Fein leaders and the issuance of Lord French's proclamation came as a complete surprise here. In Dublin the arrests were made by detectives acting in co-operation with the military, while in the provinces they were carried out by the Royal Irish Constabulary.

So far as has been ascertained, no formal charge has yet been preferred against the prisoners. They were taken into custody on warrants issued under the Defense of the Realm act.

A large number of residences of prominent Sinn Feiners were visited this morning. Their headquarters was raided, and books and documents in large quantity were seized. Immediately after the police left there was isplayed outside the building a placard reading: "Business as usual."

George Gerachty, Chairman of the Roscommon Town Commissioners and President of the Sinn Fein Executive, was among those arrested.

Th eonly arrest reported at Cory is that of a newspaper man named Barry.

The Irish Times today says the Government has not acted a moment too soon, as all the signs pointed to another outbreak of armed violence, possibly in connection with the landing of German troops on Irish shores.

John Dillon, head of the Irish Nationalists, has summoned a special meeting of the Irish party to discuss the situation.

Professor John MacNeill, President of the Gaelic League and head of the Sinn Fein Volunteers, the only prominent Sinn Fein leader who has not been arrested, said today that from his conversation with Professor de Valera, he believed him strongly anti-German, and was sure that he would not be a party to any German intrigues.

Professor MacNeill does not believe that there has been any communication between the Sinn Fein leaders and Germany. He said that personally he hoped America would win the war and enforce President Wilson's principles of government.

William O'Brien, Nationalist member of Parliament for Cork, in a telegram to The Evening Herald says that the first effective answer to the "centaur-like Government, half militarist and despot, and half sham," would be the unanimous election of Arthur Griffith, Sinn Fein candidate for the Parliamentary sent for East Cavan.

The officers of the organization administering funds to the Sinn Feiners in the rebellion were searched by the police.

The total number of arrests in Dublin so far is about one hundred. The crowd at Kingston cheered the prisoners.

Evidence of a German plot is being eagerly awaited by the people. If it should be proved that there was a conspiracy it would be condemned by the startled country.

There is some evidence that the Sinn Fein leaders had preparations made for a long time for any coup that might take place. When the police and soldiers went to the headquarters in Harcourt Street, Dublin, this morning they discovered that beyond a lot of more or less routine correspondence there was no document of importance. It was from these offices that the whole Sinn Fein movement was directed.

Professor de Valera was in the offices last night for a few hours conferring with some of his lieutenants. He left shortly after 10 o'clock, taking a train to his home at Greystones, where he was arrested. He made no attempt to conceal his surprise.

Countess Markievicz protested bitterly against her arrest and insisted on taking a pet dox, which wore the Republican colors, along with her.

The latest developments were considered at a conference at the Mansion House today.

Tadge Barry, who has twice been imprisoned already in connection with revolutionary movements, was arrested and conveyed to Dublin by a strong escort. Peter Hourihan, editor of The Southern Star of Skibbereen, was also arrested. Dr. McNabb of Belfast was taken by the police while electioneering in East Cavan.

BELFAST, May 18.—Among those arrested here for connection with an Irish conspiracy are Joseph McGuinness, Sinn Fein Member of Parliament for the Southern Division of County Longford; J. McGrath, Walter Scoles, John M. Centes, a Belfast Sinn Feiner, who was sentenced to death in connection with events at Dundalk during the rebellion of 1916, and Denis McCullough, another Sinn Feiner.

Prominent in the 1916 Easter Revolt.

Professor de Valera, William Cosgrave, and Countess Markievicz all were arrested for the parts they played in the Sinn Fein revolt in Dublin in Easter week of 1916, when the short-lived Irish republic came into being. All received sentence of death, but this was commuted later to life imprisonment. After several months in prison all were released.

Professor de Valera was elected Member of Parliament for East Clare last July, and in October Premier Lloyd George announced in the House of Commons that de Valera was plotting to bring about a new Irish rebellion, a few days before de Valera was elected President of the Sinn Fein at Dublin. Since the passage of the Irish Conscripion bill de Valera has been very active in working against it and has had many conferences with John Dillon. He was born in New York City.

William Cosgrave was elected Member of Parliament for Kilkenny last August. In a speech several days later he said the Irish would fight German domination. On May 1 he was selected to accompany the Lord Mayor of Dublin on his proposed visit to the United States in connection with the anti-conscription campaign in Ireland.

One of the most prominent figures in the Dublin revolt in 1916 was Georgina, Countess Markievicz. She led a part of the Sinn Fein forces and was reported to have personally killed a guard in an effort to capture Dublin Castle. She returned to Dublin last July. On Dec. 3, 1917, two boys were arrested while carrying high explosives from Scotland to Ireland. They were reported to be members of a Boy Scout organization headed by the Countess.

Arthur Griffith has aided the Sinn Fein by his pen and counsels more than by active leadership. He took no part in the fighting of Easter week and at various times has been in conflict with de Valera, who is of a more fanatical type.

Professor John MacNeill, the only Sinn Fein leader who has escaped arrest, was apprehended during the Sinn Fein disorders in Dublin in 1916. He was tried by court-martial and sentenced to life imprisonment, but was later released by the British Government.

THINK CONSCRIPTION IS DEAD.

London Papers Place This Interpretation on Irish Arrests.

LONDON, May 18.—The London afternoon papers interpret the Government's action in Ireland as showing conclusively that the Cabinet has decided to remove the causes which have prevented the full assistance of the Irish people in the war. The Standard believes that conscription is to be dropped, and adds:

"We now hope that steps will be taken toward creating an Irish army on the same lines as the armies have been raised in the Dominions, and that Irish pride and Irish national sentiment will be conciliated, instead of flouted."

The Westminster Gazette assumes that the Government has not taken the step "which will have profound effects in the present state of Ireland without ample and conciusive evidence," and adds:

"Whatever sympathy there may be with the Irish agitation in this country so long as it is conducted on a purely national basis, there will be none with any movement which looks for aid to Germany."

Commenting on the proclamation by Lord French, The Dublin Freeman's Journal is quoted in an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Dublin as saying:

"Conscription is to be launched in Ireland under the cover of revelations connected with an alleged German plot. That appears to be the meaning of this rather strange proclamation, which is Chief Secretary Shortt's first word to the Irish prophets.

"Of course it is not impossible that a few foolish men in Ireland may have been interested in a conspiracy to invoke German aid as the Covenanters threatened to invoke it in 1914, but the Irish people have never been pro-German, and, notwithstanding all the provocation received from the English Government, they are not pro-German today."

The reference to voluntary enlistment in the proclamation appears to confirm predictions that the Government changed its policy concerning conscription in Ireland owing to Nationalist and Sinn Fein opposition.

A report became current in Ireland Friday that the Government contemplated launching a recruiting scheme on the lines of that formerly conducted by the Earl of Derby in England. It gained much prominence in Irish newspapers and was discussed widely. However, a Dublin dispatch to The Daily News says the report met only with ridicule. The dispatch adds:

"The atmosphere is completely unsuitable, and it is doubtful if a single public man with real influence could be found to back the scheme."

Another report is to the effect that a number of prominent Irishmen have submitted to Premier Lloyd George a request to appoint General Sir Bryan Mahon, who has just relinquished the military command in Ireland, Director of Recruiting in Ireland. General Mahon is popular with large classes of Irishmen, with whom he is regarded as having very active sympathies; but whether the appointment would have practical results can only be speculated upon. According to one view, the General could succeed only if the Government gave Ireland a Home Rule Parliament.

Signatures are being invited in Ireland to a proposal that the Irish question be submitted for adjudication to a competent international tribunal, says a dispatch to The Times from Dublin. Such a tribunal, adds the dispatch, might consist, for example, of the United States and the neutral powers of Europe.

KAISER TO IRISHMEN.

Following "Ireland's Battle for Liberty" with Lively Sympathy.

Shortly after having sent a laudatory telegram to Kaiser Wilhelm on the occasion of the celebration of St. Patrick's Day in Berlin by a group of German reactionaries and refugee Irishmen, the German-Irish Society, according to the Hamburger Fremdenblatt of March 25, received the following message from Privy Councillor von Berg, Chief of the Kaiser's Court-Cabinet:

"His Majesty the Kaiser and King has gladly received the homage of the German-Irish Society and sends his best thanks. His Majesty is following brave Ireland's battle for liberty with interest and lively sympathy and in the proud consciousness that the German sword has already led a number of peoples to freedom."

LORD MAYOR'S TRIP DELAYED.

Irish Arrests Interfere with His Project of Visiting America.

Copyright, 1918, by The Chicago Tribune.

DUBLIN, May 18.—The Government's wholesale arrests of Sinn Fein leaders will probably postpone the Lord Mayor of Dublin's trip to the United States as Ireland's envoy. I spent an hour with the Lord Mayor this morning. He is very much depressed over developments, and may be unable to leave for some time. He has his passports, and intended getting away next week. He said:

"I am uncertain now about my departure. De Valera was a member of the Mansion House conference that was opposing conscription. Developments might necessitate my remaining here indefinitely. It is certain I shall not go as long as I think I am needed here. One reason of my trip to the United States was to explain to the people there that, while we agree with the Sinn Fein, we have at no time sympathized with the idea that we should use force to gain Irish freedom. No one can tell now for the moment what will be the result of the Government's move with the responsible leaders in prison."

John Dillon, leader of the Nationalists, arrived at the Mansion House shortly after 11 o'clock. He was visibly agitated, but not inclined to talk.

"This might alter the whole situation," was his cryptic observation. He said he would not make a further statement until more details were available.

It is reported that arrests of Sinn Feiners are taking place all over Ireland. There is an air of suppressed tension in Dublin, but no provocative action among the street crowds thus far.

CAPTAIN RESNATI WILL BE BURIED IN ITALY

General Tozzi, Chief of Italian Military Mission, Visits Hempstead to Arrange for Funeral.

Special to The New York Times.

HEMPSTEAD, L. I., May 18.—General Pasquale Tozzi, chief of the Royal Italian Military Mission, arrived here today from Washington with his staff to make arrangements for the funeral of Captain Antonio Silvio Resnati, the famous aviator killed in an airplane fall yesterday at Hazelhurst Aviation Field. General Tozzi spent two hours at the field and received additional details of the accident from Major Canady, commander, who had forwarded to him last night the report of the investigating board headed by Major Hitchcock.

Captain Resnati's body is to be sent to Italy for burial, and it is probable the funeral will be held here on Tuesday. There will be a guard of honor of Italian, British, French, and American officers. An Italian "Three Ace" flag, an emblem awarded only to aviators of remarkalbe war achievements, was draped over the body by a group of Italian officials and army officers. It is a red and green flag with three white crosses.

FIND BODY IMBEDDED IN DOWNTOWN COAL BIN

Burial of Unidentified Man in Adams Building Cellar Result of an Accident.

The body of a man, apparently a laborer, was found yesterday buried beneath sixty tons of coal in the cellar of the Adams Building, 61 Broadway. The police said the body was found in a bin connecting with a coal chute down which a large quantity of coal had been poured last week.

The man was about 45 years old, with sandy hair and black mustache. The body was attired in brown overalls, black cap, blue shirt and black shoes. In one of the pockets the police said they found a metal check marked "J. B., Inc., No. 22."

The body was found by a fireman while shoveling coal from the bin. Dr. Phillipson of Broad Street Hospital said the man had been dead several days. The coal bins in the cellar connect with four chutes leading to the Exchange Alley side of the building. It took the police and firemen two hours to extricate the body, which was imbedded in the coal. The man was about five feet five inches in height and weighed 163 pounds. The police found nothing to indicate that the man's death had been other than accidental.

NEW RELIEF FUND FOR ITALY

Organization Formed to Supplement Work of American Red Cross.

A new relief fund to be known as the Italian War Relief Fund of America, the organization of which marks the first comprehensive effort by Americans for general relief work in Italy, has been organized. At the instance of the Boston committee of the Italian War Relief Fund, and with the full approval of Count V. Macchi di Cellere, the Italian Ambassador, a New York committee has been formed which will affiliate with other American organizations, and will direct its work to the special needs that arise in Italy. The work of the committee, it is announced, will not run counter to the work which has been done, and is still being carried on, by the American Red Cross in Italy, but will afford, as did the American Field Ambulances in Italy, an opportunity for friends of Italy to make themselves felt in direct work of relief.

The headquarters of the committee while shoveling coal from the bin. Dr. will be opened in a few days in the new Equitable Trust Company Building at 347 Madison Avenue. The committee announces that after the Red Cross Fund has been raised it will be glad to receive contributions in large or small amounts. All checks should be made payable to S. Reading Bureau, the Treasurer.

The national movement will be in charge of an Executive Committee, of which Mrs. H. P. Davison, 680 Park Avenue, will be the Chairman. Others on the committee are Robert Underwood Johnson, John Foster Carr, Mrs. Mary Hatch Willard, Attorney General Gregory, Eliot Norton, and Thomas Hastings.

The American Poets' Ambulances in Italy, the work of which has been completed, collected $176,807.98, the total cost of the administration of the work being only $804.93. Within fifteen weeks after the committee was organized 200 ambulances, completely equipped, were delivered to the Italian authorities.

200 DIE AS TNT PLANT IS WRECKED

lam S. Haddock almost lost his life during one of the late explosions. A heavy piece of steel blown from the wreckage passed close to him, and the force of the blast threw him to the ground. He was badly bruised, but continued his work.

Finally Blown Clear of Fire.

Throughout the afternoon the fire burned. Each succeeding explosion reduced the blazing pile, as embers and chemicals were widely scattered. Soon after 6 o'clock an explosion, louder and more powerful than any since noon, swept away the remnants of the fire and practically cleared the blackened space.

Many bodies were consumed in the flames, the authorities declared, while parts of others were so tossed about, the Coroner's deputies said, it would be impossible to identify the portions as might be eventually found.

Among the dead, Coroner Samuel C. Jamison found, was Asmuel Diecht, Assistant Superintendent of the Heidelberg plant of the Aetna Company, while John B. Johnston, Superintendent of the Oakdale plant, was among the badly injured.

Answering the first call for hospital aid and ambulances went a corps of nurses and physicians from St. John's Hospital, located in the southern part of the city, the nearest one to the road to Oakdale. The nurse, Meryl Aschelman, was acting as a stretcher bearer, carrying a wounded man to the ambulance, when one of the explosions came. She was thrown to the ground and the patient on the stretcher was killed. When help reached Miss Aschelman it was found that one leg had been blown off.

Story of a Survivor.

Scarcely one who lived through the explosion is able to tell a coherent story of the happenings. H. H. Canan, employed as a starter at the plant, was eating his lunch with several other workmen, when the first explosion occurred, and escaped with slight bruises.

"I was sitting with two friends about 100 feet from the TNT stock room when the blast came," he said. "I started up and up. I lost consciousness. When I hit the ground I came to. My two friends landed about a hundred feet from me. I got to my feet and was hurrying away when I came to an injured man. I put him on my back and started from the plant, when the second explosion occurred."

The explosion hurled burning embers in every direction for almost a mile. Oil derricks were set afire, adding further danger of explosions and conflagration. Pumping on oil operations was stopped, and sand was thrown on the burning derricks to extinguish the flames.

Portions of human bodies are being picked up tonight a mile and more from the plant. Residents about Bonnerdale reported seeing the bodies of men flying through the air, and early tonight arms and legs were being reported along the railroad tracks three-fourths of a mile from the Aetna plant.

During the afternoon, while the Red Cross parade was being held, the thousands of white-robed women know nothing of what had happened at their very door. In some of the streets some curiosity was aroused as the reason for an open lane through the streets of the line of march. This was ordered hurriedly and was strictly enforced by the police, to give rapid and free access to the various hospitals, whither the wounded were being carried from the special trains.

Area of Deadly Fumes.

The fire that followed the explosion was probably as destructive as the blast, although precaution prevented it from taking its toll of human life. Residents of the neighboring boroughs describe the scene as one resembling the eruption of a volcano. Clouds of yellowish brown smoke rose in dense volume, carrying with it a suffocating gaseous fume that spread over the countryside. These fumes and those of sulphuric acid that had been released kept off any one who would attempt to get to the plant on rescue work. Troops of the State constabulary arranged a zone of safety about half a mile from the plant. Tonight the deadly fumes were still so heavy that no one had been able to approach within that distance.

Dr. J. A. Hanna, a Pennsylvania Railroad surgeon, in charge of the first relief train which brought the injured to this city, described Oakdale as a "living hell." He said that when his train left the stricken community the flames were shooting three and four hundred feet into the air and threatening to engulf the town. He said his train had to race through the flames to pass an unexploded tank of T. N. T., and at any moment he expected to hear a repetition of the former blasts.

Dr. Hanna said he saw children lying dead on the hillsides a mile away. Relatives and friends of employes of the plant tried to storm through the barred zone in an effort to learn if loved ones had been killed. Dr. Hanna was struck by a flying piece of iron about two miles from the plant.

When the injured began to arrive at the railroad station in Pittsburgh the Red Cross procession was at its height. Without waiting to finish the line of march, seventy-five registered Red Cross nurses, awaiting orders to go to France, left the line of march and, under the direction of Miss Catherine Dempster, Secretary of the Red Cross nurses' organization here, commandeered first-aid stretchers being carried in the parade and proceeded to the station and the various hospitals, nursing forces of which have been depleted by the war.

Absolutely no confirmation of the estimated number of deaths is yet available. Many killed probably were consumed by the flames, and their deaths never will be definitely established, beyond being reported "missing."

Six rescuers are reported to have fallen into a burning stream of sulphuric acid, but their names are not known.

The communities for half a score of miles of the scene of the explosion tonight are in a high state of nervousness. Two large tanks of T. N. T., another powerful explosive, still stand, and there is great fear that these will let go at any minute. No one is permitted to approach them within half a mile.

BRITISH SUBMARINE EXPLOITS IN BALTIC

Little Squadron Long the Terror of German Warships and Transports.

SUNK NINE IN ONE DAY

Three British Craft, Since Self-Destroyed, Attacked a Whole Hostile Armada.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 18.—Describing the work of British submarines in the Baltic and their destruction to avoid capture by the Germans, the Petrograd correspondent of The Morning Post says:

"Under all the circumstances it is perhaps rather a marvel that the Germans did not make a glorious capture of nearly every submarine we had in the Baltic. They captured none, and they destroyed none. There is not a German harbor in the Baltic that our submarines have not entered and charted for their own convenience, creeping under mine fields and through channels so shallow as hardly to admit of this hazardous manoeuvre.

"We never had more than nine submarines in the Baltic, and we still had seven when the end came. One of our boats put down nine enemy transports in a single day. Russia knew and openly admitted last Summer that it was the British submarines which held Petrograd intact.

"When Reval went it was obvious that the end was near. The British submarines, still seven in number and all in fighting trim, had by this time moved over to Finland, and ultimately concentrated, with their stores and workshops ashore, and a huge barge for floating mechanics in the harbor of Helsingfors.

"With three or four warring parties jealously eyeing the British ships and stores, and the Tovaristchi, [comrades,] airing their new gospel to the British crews of the submarines on every occasion, and with the absence of law and order in Helsingfors, opportunities for every kind of trouble were plentiful, and extreme tact and firmness were needed to bring things to a successful issue. As a result, not a single ounce of any kind of metal—British property, some of it priceless nowadays here—will ever fall into human hands, either those of the Huns or the White Guards or the Finnish Red Guards, or Russian Tovaristchi. All seven submarines, the repair-shop barge, and every scrap of stores lies safely in minutely disintegrated form at the bottom of the Baltic.

Had to Destroy £3,000,000 Worth.

"In charge at Helsingfors was Lieut. Commander Downie. The task of destroying some £3,000,000 worth of British Government property to save it from the Germans, who had already landed at Hango, was his last sad duty. Plans for the private sale of enormously valuable stores of all kinds—metals and composites, electric fittings, &c.—were canceled when it was discovered that arrangements existed whereby all such matters of priceless value to the enemy were to be handed over to the Germans wherever found. It was decided to put British property to the bottom.

"That fraction of the British Navy which was under Russian orders in the Baltic consisted of submarines, which I will call (because these were neither their letters nor their numbers) Alpha 2, 10, 12, 20, and 21 and Beta 29, 30, 33, and 34. The Alpha class was fairly large, carrying thirty-odd men. The Beta was an older type, with about half that number.

"The biggest thing the Germans have done in a naval way in this war was the landing on the Islands of Messel and Dago. Certainly the only effective opposition they met at sea came from British vessels, three in number. Of the four Beta boats one was undergoing repairs at the time, leaving three available—29, 30, and 33. These three went into the thick of things and gave the Germans a very unwelcome surprise. Failing an adequate intelligence service, the British submarines took sight for themselves of the oncoming armada of dreadnoughts, cruisers, destroyers, and transports, and plunged into their midst. Everything was against our submarines, but they all came out of it alive, and the enemy did not.

"Captain Sealey, in Beta 30, was of the true British type, the finished article of the British Navy. Beta 29 was commanded by Commander Downie, whose record proves him perfectly true to type; but it was his first command.

Attacks the German Armada.

"The Germans, notwithstanding convenient arrangements made for the maximum of immunity, were mistrustful of the British boats, and the Armada moved inside a ring of destroyers and other smaller craft. Sealey, taking a comprehensive glance at their dispositions, dived under five of the destroyers nearest to him, the same tactics being imitated by Commander Downie and by Beta 33. They came up inside the protective ring, to be immediately assailed from aircraft and ships with a rain of missiles—in particular with so-called deep-sea bombs.

"Sealey conned his objective—one of the dreadnoughts—dived and fired two torpedoes at a range probably too short for the run of either torpedo, for the dreadnought escaped. But one of the torpedoes passed on and put down a destroyer on the other edge of the encircling ring.

"Sealey then passed practically under a dreadnought and came up on the other side, still within the encircling ring of destroyers. Turning, he rapidly selected another objective, and then dived to get it. This time he put down a transport carrying hydroaeroplanes—a particularly useful shot, for these hornets, besides bombarding our craft, which were, of course, quite visible at fighting depths under water, also kept the ships informed where deep-sea bombs would best serve the Germans. Sealey damaged a cruiser so badly that he was able to chase her for many hours, but could not overtake her.

"All this time hydroaeroplanes were dropping deep-sea bombs upon all three boats, while every ship was pumping shell and deep-sea bombs in their direction, according to the signals of the hydroaeroplane spotters. Whether by good luck or more artful dodging Beta 30 got no more than a few tremendous jerks from these deep-sea bomb explosions. Beta 33, though never actually struck, suffered so terribly from these repeated shocks that she was left helpless, unable to tell anything about herself except that her skin was unpierced. Smashed gauge glasses left her ignorant of her depth, her margin of buoyancy, what power was still available to move or lift, sink or drive her, and she was absolutely blind besides. She simply carried on and finally beached herself and was blown up by her own crew after all her valuable fittings had been removed. Beta 29 had the extremely bad luck to get aground in a tight place and suffered injuries which would be summarized in the case of an ordinary ship as 'in a sinking condition.' Commander Downie, however, stuck to it and got off."

WAR ORDERS OF FRANCE GIVEN TO WEST POINT

Collection of Medals and Decorations Presented by Delegate of French Government.

Delegated by the French Government, F. Cunliffe-Owen, senior Knight of the Legion of Honor in America in respect to date of appointment, accompanied by Captain Rouvier of the French High Commission and by Major Gen. Appleton, visited West Point yesterday to present to the Military Academy a collection of all France's Orders of Knighthood, war decorations, and war medals. The visitors were entertained at luncheon at the officers' mess by the Superintendent, Colonel Samuel E. Tillman, and the officers of his staff. The formal presentation took place immediately after a review of the cadets. In making it Mr. Cunliffe-Owen said:

"These badges are badges of heroism, and since the obstacles that formerly stood in the way of their bestowal by France upon officers and men of the American Army have, so I understand, been removed, I can only express my fervent hope that all of you cadets who are likely to be sent abroad on active service before the conclusion of this great war may return home with your breast adorned with the red ribbon of the Legion of Honor and the War Cross.

"There is something sacred about these orders and medals for valor. They help the convalescence of the wounded; they comfort the last moments of the dying, and they carry consolation to those bereaved by the war, in that they constitute an imperishable memorial of the deeds of patriotic devotion, and self-sacrifice. It seems particularly appropriate that France should be commemorated at West Point by this gift to your museum of the insignia of her Orders of Chivalry. No French soldier of note ever visits the United States without coming to pay the homage of his admiration to West Point. The love of France, your oldest friend, your ally of near 150 years ago, and now your ally again, is born and bred in you, from the very moment you come into the world. Nowhere in America is France, the France of the eighteenth century, and the France of today, more profoundly loved and admired, than here in this beautiful West Point, the memories of which may be said to serve as a guiding star throughout the career of its graduates."

SWANN POSTPONES HEARST PAPER INQUIRY

Refuses to Say Whether Politics Are Offered as a Reason for Alleged Boycott.

District Attorney Swann, who had announced his intention to begin an investogation yesterday of an alleged conspiracy by individuals and representatives of corporations "to induce public bodies within the State to interfere with the public sale of The New York American and The New York Evening Journal," based on information presented by attorneys for the publishers of those newspapers, said the inquiry would probably not begin until Wednesday. Assistant District Attorney Ferdinand Pecora was assigned to conduct the examination of witnesses, but he will be busy for several days in the trial of a court case.

The Staats-Zeitung started injunction proceedings yesterday against the Mount Vernon authorities to restrain them from carrying out the ordinance forbidding the sale of German-language newspapers in Mount Vernon. The case will be heard tomorrow, when the suit by The American and The Evening Journal will also be argued.

An order signed yesterday makes the German Herold a party to the proceedings.

Additional information on the subject was laid before the District Attorney yesterday by William A. De Ford, general counsel for Mr. Hearst's newspapers. Judge Swann again declined to make public the names of the individuals and the corporations said to have been mentioned in the information presented for his consideration.

"I do not believe it would be fair to mention names at this time, as the inquiry is merely to determine if an offense has been committed as defined in Section 380 of the penal law," answered Judge Swann. The prosecutor was asked if the information he had received contained any allusion to political motives.

"As to that I cannot say; certainly there is no politics involved in the inquiry," replied the District Attorney. "It will be a legal inquiry merely, which my duty requires me to make. Mr. De Ford seems to feel that the complaint will be far-reaching."

It is believed that the members of the Common Council of Mount Vernon who voted for an ordinance to bar the sale of Hearst newspapers from that city will be questioned.

SUMMIT, N. J., May 18.—Mayor Ruford Franklin was served with a summons today in a suit for $100,000 for alleged malicious efforts to injure the business of the Star Company, publisher of The New York American and The New York Evening Journal.

This action grows out of the recent efforts of the Mayor of Summit to induce newsdealers here not to handle these newspapers. Joined within the Star Company as co-plaintiff is the Newark Newsdealers Supply Co.

At a meeting of the Defence League of New Jersey, attended by 110 members, held in the City Hall, Newark, N. J., last night, the following resolution was adopted:

"We pledge ourselves to use every lawful measure to discourage the circulation of the Hearst papers."

C. L. Patton of Caldwell, moved the adoption of the resolution, and the seconders were J. Osgood Nichols of Short Hills, and Harry E. Pickenback of West Orange.

CONDEMN THE AMERICAN.

Deletion of Proclamation Deliberate, Poughkeepsie G. A. R. Post Holds.

Special to The New York Times.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., May 18.—At a special meeting of Hamilton-Sleight Post, No. 20, G. A. R., held here tonight, the post went on record as resenting the publication in The New York American of the "deleted" Memorial Day proclamation of the President of the United States. Resolutions were unanimously adopted, and copies of the same were ordered sent to President Wilson and Edmund Platt, Congressman from this district, with instructions to the latter to act as he deemed advisable. The resolution, in part, follows:

"We deplore the publication as an affront to the President of the United States, as pro-German propaganda and as an insult to loyal American citizens. The claim that the publication was the result of an unfortunate error impresses us, especially in view of the significance of the 'deleted' form, and the fact that the garbled publication was made in the City of New York edition, as frivolous and entitled to no consideration.

"The claim that the proclamation was a news item and, therefore, properly subject to editorial deletion is equally frivolous."

NAVY CREW SCORES OVER RED AND BLUE

Midshipmen in Front by a Length After Sturdy Race on the Severn.

SYRACUSE FRESHMEN WIN

Orange Cub Eight Leads Academy Fourth Class Eight—Columbia 'Varsity Trails.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., May 18.—The Naval Academy and Syracuse were the victors this afternoon in the two splendidly contested races which constituted the regatta of the American Rowing Association for 1918 on the Severn. After a terrific struggle the Naval Academy, first crew, led the Pennsylvanians by a length at the finish of the senior race, and the Syracuse freshmen won by a bare half length from the Academy fourth class crew.

The Naval Academy second crew was the only entry in the junior race, but preferred contesting with the big crews to rowing over the course by itself. It finished third, two lengths behind Pennsylvania, and the same distance in front of Columbia. The Pennsylvania freshmen were distanced in their race.

The distance of both races was two miles. The Naval Academy covered the course in 11:26, Pennsylvania being four seconds behind. The Syracuse freshmen did the distance in 11:49⅘, and the Naval Academy fourth class men were only a second and a half slower.

The course and all arrangements were all that could be desired, and it was a splendid contest, in spite of the small field of entries. The fact that Pennsylvania had downed nearly all the big rowing colleges of the East, made today's contest of special interest. It was particularly sweet to the navy to achieve a double reversal of the result of four weeks ago, when both of its crews were defeated.

Penn Crew Confident.

Today it inflicted the same dose on Pennsylvania. Pennsylvania was absolutely confident, and there did not appear to be one member of the party who could see anything but the Red and Blue in today's race. Early in the season, Glendon said that he had the making of one of the best navy crews that ever rowed, and today he proved it.

The freshmen race was rowed first. After the first quarter of a mile it was clear that the contest was between Syracuse and the Naval Academy, with Pennsylvania struggling in the rear. Both were unusually husky for freshmen, and both rowed in beautiful form. It was not until the last quarter of a mile had been reached that Syracuse, by a powerful effort, with the midshipmen responding gamely to their challenge, forged a little to the head.

There was some dissatisfaction with Penn's tactics at the start, and once they were cautioned by Referee Williamson at the instance of Columbia. It was claimed that the bow and seven were paddling the boat ahead before the word was given, and many still insist that Penn gained a half yard in the actual start in this way. At any rate, Penn did jump a little to the head at first, and was overhauled by the Navy at about the half-mile point.

All the crews had stuck rather well together up to this point, but there the contest resolved itself into two races. The Navy and Pennsylvania fought it out nip and tuck, while Columbia was straining to prevent itself from being beaten by the Navy second crew.

The Pennsylvanians seemed unable to believe that they could lose and frequently hit the stroke up to a high pace, but every time the midshipmen were ready and met spurt with spurt. A little later it was the navy crew which was driving ahead and Pennsylvania fighting desperately to prevent open water from showing between the boats.

A half mile from the finish it was clear that Pennsylvania was a beaten crew. Struggle as it might, the navy lads were a length ahead and the Quakers could not catch up an inch. In the meantime, Columbia had succumbed to the inevitable. They could not keep on even terms with the navy youngsters and finished two lengths behind them, the navy juniors being above that distance to the rear of the Pennsylvanians.

An interesting incident of today's race is the fact that James A. Ten Eyck, the veteran Syracuse coach, and one of the notable figures of college rowing, saw his charges row a race for the last time this afternoon, and it was a splendid and creditable victory. He told friends that his coaching days were over and that he is going to Duluth, where he has a son in business.

LEADING BOXERS TO APPEAR

Nine Bouts Among Stars of Ring Arranged for Red Cross Show.

Early reports of the efforts of Messrs. Charles J. Harvey and Joe Humphreys, toward getting together a collection of the country's leading boxers to participate in the Red Cross carnival, which will be held in Madison Square Garden next Friday night, are gratifying. Boxers from the bantamweights up to the heavyweights have answered the call for contestants willingly wherever it was possible, and the indications are that two nights will be necessary to hold the show. This, however, will be decided by the committee under William Fox, in charge of the event.

This early success in securing the services of boxers is taken as a sure sign that the carnival will be a success from every point of view, and that it will accomplish one of its initial purposes—to improve on the figures of $23,000, which was raised in San Francisco recently for army athletic activities work. Benny Leonard, world's lightweight champion, was one of the participants in the San Francisco tournament, but it will be a physical impossibility for him to come to this city in time for the coming event. Messrs. Harvey and Humphreys are, however, confident that the popular little champion's absence will not materially affect the financial returns.

To date nine bouts have been arranged definitely, and there is every promise that more will be added to these just as soon as suitable pairings are decided upon for the boxers volunteering. The three big factors in the heavyweight class, Jess Willard, Fred Fulton, and Jack Dempsey, have been found inaccessible, but this division will be represented with a bout between Frank Moran, the Pittsburgh boxer, and K. O. Bill Brennan of Chicago.

Moran is boxing instructor at Camp Wadsworth, Spartanburg, S. C., and, despite his announced retirement following his beating by Fred Fulton, he readily agreed to take on a bout in aid of the cause. Brennan is awaiting his call in an early draft, and also consented to box. Another heavyweight bout will bring together Gunboat Smith, the California veteran, and Harry Greb of Pittsburgh, who recently enlisted in the navy.

Ted (Kid) Lewis of England, holder of the welterweight championship, has agreed to box, and his opponent will be Jack Britton of Chicago, former holder of the title. Another prominent bout will bring together Jeff Smith of Bayonne, N. J., boxing instructor at Camp Dix, and Augie Ratner, former amateur middleweight champion. In the lightweight class another bout was added yesterday, between Lew Tendler, Philadelphia's sensational boxer, and Mel Coogan, the Brooklyn veteran.

JUNIOR TOURNEY STARTS.

Brooklyn Tennis Title Play Advances to Second Round.

With a large entry of capable junior players the tennis tournament to decide the junior championship of Brooklyn began yesterday afternoon at the Terrace Club. In addition to the leading players hereabouts there were several entrants from Philadelphia who showed up well in the first two rounds. The best match from the standpoint of tennis was that in the second round, which brought Harold Taylor in conflict with Cecil Donaldson.

This was fought through three sets, Taylor wining at 6—4, 1—6, 6—3. Donaldson had previously beaten J. Gardner at 6—4, 6—1, while Taylor had advanced through the first round by reason of a default.

Frank Anderson had two sharp battles before he succeeded in making his way to the third round of the event. In the first round he defeated R. Tatnel at 6—3, 6—2, and in the second round was pressed to his best tennis before gaining a victory over C. Fisher at 6—1, 2—6, 6—4. Some pretty tennis was played by one of the Quaker City youths. G. Phingst won a first round match from M. Macshoud at 6—2, 6—4, and in the next round was carried to a three-set contest by G. Snow. Phingst won at 4—6, 6—3, 6—3.

An exhibition match in doubles was played by a veteran combination. The victors were Frederick B. Alexander and Fred Anderson. They defeated Harold Throckmorton and Abraham Bassford, Jr., at 7—5, 6—4.

GIRLS PLAY FOR TITLE.

First Metropolitan Tennis Tourney of Kind at West Side.

A new epoch in the growth of lawn tennis was marked yesterday when play began in the first metropolitan championship for girls at the West Side Tennis Club at Forest Hills. It was only a few years ago that a serious endeavor was made on the part of the United States National Lawn Tennis Association to interest the younger players in the game, and it was not until the last annual meeting of the association that a place for girls' tournaments was established among the season's tournament fixtures.

Several defaults marked the play of yesterday, and in two instances the absentees were players of pronounced ability. These were the Misses Barbara and Adelaide Hooker, who are finished players, lacking only a greater wealth of tournament experience to make them formidable contenders in any company. Both have competed in the indoor national championship for women.

One California girl appeared in the tournament yesterday, Miss Winifred Aydelotte, and coming from the Golden Gate State, the school for expert tennis players, her play was watched with interest. No fair estimate of her ability, however, could be established, as she had an easy match against Miss Evelyn Hayward, winning at 6—0, 6—1. Two players advanced through second round matches, Miss Ruth Goldsmith and Miss Joy Hansel.

The summaries:

First Round—Miss Winifred Aydelotte defeated Miss Evelyn Hayward, 6—0, 6—1; Miss Louise Kreuter defeated Miss Edith Guller, 6—4, 12—10; Miss Ruth Goldsmith won from Miss Barbara Hooker by default; Miss M. Goldstein defeated Miss Celeste Chandler, 6—1, 6—1; Miss Janet Travell defeated Miss Virginia Bell, 6—4, 6—2; Miss Helen Jenkins won from Miss Adelaide Hooker by default; Miss Joy Hansel won from Miss Hildegarde Rose by default.

Second Round—Miss Ruth Goldsmith defeated Miss M. Goldstein, 6—2, 6—3; Miss Joy Hansel defeated Miss Helen Jenkins, 6—1, 6—2.

JAP NET STAR IS BEATEN.

Kashio Loses to Gatcomb in West Side Tournament.

Several keenly waged matches were played in the continuation of the Spring tennis tournament at the West Side Tennis Club yesterday. In the Class A division E. W. Mecabe reached the final round bracket in the lower half of the draw, when he defeated Frank Ross at 8—6, 6—1. R. B. Gatcomb disposed of the Japanese player Seiichiro Kashio in the second round in a bitterly fought contest, with the score 7—5, 2—6, 9—7.

In the Class B ranks Norman Johnson and Dr. J. W. Travell reached final round brackets. The summaries:

Class A, Second Round.—Dr. Davenport defeated W. H. Brown, Jr., 6—3, 6—4; R. B. Gatcomb defeated Seiichiro Kashio, 7—5, 2—6, 9—7; Frank Ross defeated Russell Brown, 6—4, 6—4; E. W. Mecabe defeated A. R. Dunham, 6—2, 6—2.

Class B, Third Round.—Norman Johnson defeated George R. Kenyon, 6—1, 9—7; Dr. J. W. Travell defeated O. L. Becker, 6—2, 8—6.

DAWSON WINS AT TENNIS.

Californian Star Beats Fisher in Team Match, 6—4, 1—6, 6—2.

Ward Dawson of California stepped in the tennis limelight yesterday afternoon in a team match between the Pelham Bay Naval Reserves and the University Heights Tennis Club played on the University Heights courts. Dawson, who is now in training at Pelham Bay, defeated the University Heights representative, William Fisher, in a three-set contest at 6-4, 1-6, 6-2. Later, paired with J. S. O'Boyle in a doubles' match, these two defeated J. W. Mersereau and Embree Henderson at 3-6, 6-2, 6-3. J. S. O'Boyle was beaten by Paul Martin in one of the singles' encounters at 6-1, 6-8, 6-0, but his brother, H. B. O'Boyle, was more successful, triumphing over H. H. Manchester at 6-3, 4-6, 6-4. The team match ended in a tie at 5 all.

COLUMBIA VICTOR AT GOLF.

Blue and White Representatives Defeat Pennsylvania, 13 to 4.

PHILADELPHIA, May 18.—The Columbia University golf team defeated the University of Pennsylvania in a team match over the links of the Merion Cricket Club today, by a score of 13 to 4. The Blue and White representatives lost one of the four-ball matches of the morning session and one individual match in the afternoon. A. L. Walker, one of the leaders among the Columbia contestants, earned a decisive victory over Herbert Caldes of Pennsylvania, by 6 and 4. Two bad holes, however, counted heavily against Walker's approximate card for the eighteen holes.

M. I. T. OVERWHELMS RIVAL TRACK TEAMS

Technology Athletes Repeat Victory of Last Year in New England Championships.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 18.—Frank Kanely's athletes from Massachusetts Institute of Technology, who won the 1917 championship meeting of the New England Intercollegiate Athletic Association with 61 points, made an even better total today at the thirty-second annual meet, held on Tech Field. M. I. T. made a runaway score of 74 points, within one point of three times as many as its nearest rival, Brown.

The Tech team was well rounded out, scoring in every event, and in all except three of them getting at least two competitors into the point counting places. The team captured seven of the fourteen possible first places, eight second places, four thirds, and seven fourths. Brown won only one event, but brought its total up to 25 points with five seconds, a third, and three fourths. Holy Cross and Bowdoin were tied for third place, each with 13 points. Amherst gathered in 8 points, and Williams and Wesleyan 6 each. Boston College had 5, and Tufts and Middlebury, each with a third place, secured 2 points apiece.

The meeting showed that the New England college athletes have not spent much time in preparation this Spring, but the absence of high-grade performances in no way interfered with the competition. Most of the flat races were good. The only double first-place winner was O. A. Mills of Technology, who won both the hurdle races. Bawden of Tech was second in the quarter and half.

George F. Halfacre of the Technology team, who was leading the field in the two-mile run, brought cheers from the spectators when, after falling at the turn for the second lap, he regained his feet and finished in first place.

COLUMBIA WINNER AGAIN.

Tennis Team Gains Another Victory, Beating C. C. N. Y., 6 to 0.

Columbia won another tennis match yesterday afternoon on the South Field courts. This time it was the C. C. N. Y. racquet team that went down before the Light Blue and White players. The score was 6 to 0, and all the matches were decided in straight sets.

Columbia freshmen, playing after the 'Varsity matches, were defeated by the Yale freshmen, four matches to two. The Eli yearlings took three of the singles and the first of the doubles.

The summaries:

'Varsity.—Haldenstein, Columbia, defeated Barnett, C. C. N. Y., 6—4, 6—4; Forster, Columbia, defeated Hilsky, C. C. N. Y., 6—4, 6—2; Feisteiner, Columbia, defeated Brophee, C. C. N. Y., 6—2, 6—2; Von Bernuth, Columbia, defeated Schreiber, C. C. N. Y., 6—4, 6—3.

Doubles—Haldenstein and Feisteiner, Columbia, defeated Brophee and Barnett, C. C. N. Y., 6—3, 6—1; Forster and Von Bernuth, Columbia, defeated Schreiber and Hilsky, C. C. N. Y., 6—4, 6—1.

Freshmen.—Bundy, Yale, defeated Ives, Columbia, 4—6, 6—3, 6—4. Hedstrom, Yale, defeated Alexander, Columbia, 6—4, 7—5; Hurdy, Yale, defeated Bachrach, Columbia, 4—6, 6—4, 10—8; Bundy and Hedstrom, Yale, defeated Alexander and Ives, Columbia, 6—3, 6—2; Doubleday and Bachrach, Columbia, defeated Hurd and Adams, Yale, 4—6, 6—4, 6—3.

WINSLOW LEADS GUNNERS.

Professional Breaks 96 Targets at Manhasset G. C. Shoot.

Fred Winslow, professional, led a field of eight gunners at the traps of the Manhasset Gun Club yesterday afternoon when he broke 96 out of 100 clay birds. He had one perfect string, the third, but throughout was able to cope with the adverse conditions of a strong southeast wind that blew across the traps.

Among the club members Jack W. Eagleson, Herbert J. Matthews, and Heyward H. Shannon tied with 90 each, and will shoot off for the second leg on the monthly cup next week. Eagleson won a special 50 clay bird event by breaking 48, and with Winslow as a partner defeated Matthews and Daniel E. Smith in a pickup, scoring 24 out of 25, while Smith and Matthews broke 23.

BEST IN THE LONG RUN

The Log of the Test Car Fleets

"LINEAR MILES, 1,044,686. TIRE MILES, 4,178,744."

Thus runs the log of the SIX FLEETS as it sums up the leagues traveled by the Goodrich Test Cars in their nationwide tire-testing cruise of 1917.

That grand total marks the mileage high tide of tire making. Read it in the dawn of a new understanding of tire service, the rise of a new tire standard which includes all other standards—the TESTED of—

GOODRICH TESTED TIRES

The cold figures of the log underwrite the lasting strength of Goodrich Tires; for no tire could hide a weakness in that multiplied mileage. But they can not picture the all-around durability and dependability Goodrich Tires unfolded on every kind of road wherever the Test Cars ventured.

That mileage but hints at the endurance revealed in 166,960 miles, trekked on desert trails and Pacific highways; in 55,796 miles, hurtled through the Rocky mountains; in 198,744 miles traversed on the Great Plains; in 217,372 miles, toured from the Great Lakes west; in 3,285,860 miles added by Dixie and the north midland; and in 254,012 miles, which brought the Atlantic Fleet from Virginia, via a tour of New England, back to the City of Goodrich.

Daily, tire experts with the fleets watched the mileage mount. Those records and the tires stand surety for Goodrich Tires of 1918.

For 1918 Goodrich Tires—look at their generous, masterful size at any Goodrich dealer—took the bulk of the rough going. They measured up to all the Goodrich Tire qualities, and added new virtues.

BLACK SAFETY TREADS, and SILVERTOWN CORDS challenged every handicap of road and weather, and conquered with steadfast dependability and durability. They proved themselves the tires of the nation, sure to render full value service anywhere in America.

BANKER SEES PERIL OF EXCESSIVE TAXES

A. Barton Hepburn Says There Is a Limit to Which Congress Can Safely Go.

DISCUSSES WAR FINANCES

Wants Nation's Increment Determined and Warns Against Impairing Business.

A. Barton Hepburn of the Chase National Bank, in a paper on "Financing the War," prepared for Princeton University, calls attention to the danger of excessive taxation and warns Congress against imposing tax burdens which might result in lessening the activities or impairing the ability of the people to pay taxes and to subscribe to bond issues.

"The Congressional idea and the popular idea that this is a country of unlimited wealth, that we can finance other nations without stint, and spend billions by the score annually and obtain these vast sums, at will, by taxation and borrowing, is," he declares, "a mischievous idea. People can only buy bonds and pay taxes out of their savings, the money they have left after paying their current expenses, including the cost of living.

"The first income tax and revenue bill produced, in 1916, $512,702,028. The Commissioner of Internal Revenue estimates that it will produce $750,000,000 in 1917 and that the supplemental bill will increase the amount to $3,500,000,000. This amount is larger than the increment of the whole nation at the beginning of the war.

"There is a limit to what Congress can do with safety and propriety, and it seems to me that the best service we can render is to help find that limit, that the Government may not overstep the same and thereby invite disaster, the disaster of currency inflation and a paper basis. The Government can raise money without limit by resorting to the printing press. They can make Federal Reserve Bank notes legal tender, borrow from the Federal Reserve Bank, and take pay in such legal-tender notes.

Sees Danger of Paper Basis.

"That is practically what some countries in Europe have done. That would put us on a paper basis, produce inflation of currency, depreciation of values and all the train of concomitant evils. The great danger that confronts us is that we may fall into the same financial welter that obtains in some European countries, that we will lose the proud pre-eminence of being squarely on a gold basis, with the prestige that it will give us after the war and the impetus that it will give to our international trade after the war. Dollar exchange, with the dollar on a paper basis, will make little headway in displacing the pound sterling, and the recent enormous growth in our financial and commercial relations with the world may fade away."

Mr. Hepburn places stress on the fact that the only way in which the Government can raise huge sums of money necessary for the prosecution of the war is by the grueling economy of the people. The economy of the present, he declares, will seem extravagance one year from now.

"As economy increases," he says, "suffering will increase, and as war conditions predominate normal business conditions will have less influence, the basis of industry will become more and more artificial, and the success of business will become more precarious. A business man can study the crops, the mines, the factories, the currents of trade, world conditions, and can reach a conclusion, based upon his experience of the past, and determine within the limits of conservatism his line of activities. But war puts everything at hazard and upsets all calculations, tends to restrain business activity, and prevent new enterprises.

Desire for Retirement General.

"Business has mortality as well as mankind, and new activities must continually be born to compensate for business adventures that, for one cause or another, may cease to exist. In no other way can business be kept at full volume. Every man in business who has reached middle life looks forward to retirement, a period of rest, and the pursuit of those avocations which most appeal to him. Aristotle said, 'The object of labor is to secure leisure.' Men of this age, in troublesome times, are apt to reason that they had better retire with what they already possess rather than continue and put at hazard what they have accumulated for protection of themselves and dependents. It is the proper function of the Government to foster business prosperity. It is also their selfish interest to do so, for then the people will cheerfully bear heavy burdens of taxation and patriotically place their surplus funds at the disposal of the Government.

"The Government with its taxing power must stop short of impairing business, either by discouraging new enterprise or by the imposition of excessive burdens; and this is why the approximate determination of the increment of the nation is so important. To impose taxes greater than can be paid from current earnings would be to compel the reduction of capital in order to pay the tax. It would be in effect a capital tax. It would force borrowing from banks under circumstances which could have no other effect than to impair credit. The borrowing needs of any business enterprise are greatest when the volume of its business is greatest. With growth in volume of business the capital of the enterprise becomes fully employed and must be supplemented by appeals to the banks.

"The profits of a business determine the amount of income tax to be paid and also the excess profits tax to be paid, as fixed by recent legislation. Now the profit for the year of any going business is represented only in small part by money, as we have seen. It inevitably follows that most large corporations and many individuals will borrow money with which to pay their taxes imposed by recent laws; they will compete with the Government as borrowers in order to pay their tax obligations to the Government."

Mr. Hepburn says that one is tempted to speculate as to conditions after the war. How, he asks, can these nations so overwhelmed in debt bear up under the interest charges, let along payment of the principal?

"Just before the war," Mr. Hepburn remarks, "Germany imposed a capital tax in order to create a war chest. A capital tax means a certain per cent. levied upon all capital, the wealth of the nation. For instance, a 10 per cent. capital tax levied upon the wealth of the naiton, payable in Government securities to be canceled, would scale down the funded debt very largely. Portugal, in financial need, imposed a tax upon her outstanding bonds, which in effect reduced the interest which the holders received to 1 per cent., and later, when her financial budget was more favorable, changed the tax so that her bond owners realized 1½ per cent.

Says Repudiation Leaves Taint.

"Repudiation is vulgar and leaves a taint; by indirection the same result may be in part accomplished. Given fixed conditions one might, in the light of experience, figure out a reasonable conclusion as to the future. Conditions are not fixed and the financial condition of the warring nations is one hundred millions worse today than yesterday, and they will be one hundred millions more involved tomorrow than today, and the end of the war is not in sight. Why speculate? One thing is certain that following the war Dr. Demagogue will be in evidence, and will have abundant nostrums ranging from sugar-coated speciousness to rank repudiation.

"Adam Smith, in his 'Wealth of Nations,' revised in 1776, at which time the total debt of all civilized nations was about $2,500,000,000, uses this language: 'The progress of the enormous debts which at present oppress, and in the long run will probably ruin, all the great nations of Europe has been pretty uniform.' Shade of Adam Smith, if cognizant of affairs of the world in which you once lived, kindly cast the world's horoscope and tell us what of the future!"

BOSTON COPPER GOSSIP.

Calumet and Hecla Produced 11,734,820 Pounds During April.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, May 18.—The April output of the Calumet and Hecla and its subsidiary copper mines was 11,734,820 pounds against 13,784,569 pounds in March and 12,077,320 in February.

Winona has completed arrangements with the Minerals Separation Company whereby equipment is to be installed within ninety days for treatment of the Winona's sands. By virtue of the flat character of the mine's tailings, it is believed that oil flotation will permit of a substantial recovery.

Anaconda's high ore mine suspended operations Thursday for three months, during which time the shaft will be concreted the entire depth at a cost of approximately $75,000. It is not expected that this suspension will interfere seriously with Anaconda's production as the men will be sent to other mines, increasing the output at those points. The high ores daily production averaged 1,950 tons. It is estimated that Anaconda this month will produce approximately 28,000,000 pounds of copper, 900,000 ounces of silver, and 5,000,000 pounds of zinc. The daily tonnage of all ores, including the North Butte, is now 17,500. The labor situation at present is satisfactory.

The report of the Ray Consolidated Copper Company for the first quarter of 1918 shows net earnings of $1,095,862, or at the annual rate of $2.80 a year. This compares with net of $2,579,872 the previous quarter.

The gross production for the March quarter was 22,011,525 pounds of copper, compared with 22,750,677 the preceding quarter. The net cost of production for the quarter was 15.307 cents, contrasted with 13.836 cents for the December quarter.

All sales of copper reported for the quarter were made at 23½ cents a pound.

According to Butte correspondence the copper ore from Davis-Daly Colorado mine is moving up to 15 and 16 per cent., with as high as 18 ounces of silver and the general run from 12 to 14 ounces of that metal. The grade of the second class is holding at from 4 to 4½ per cent. copper.

TO BUILD UP FOREIGN TRADE

Plan to Insure Payment of Bills Ready in Britain and Germany.

The latest instrumentality toward building up foreign trade, already worked out and ready to be put in practice in both Germany and Great Britain, is a scheme for insurance of payment of foreign bills. The current number of The Americas, published by the National City Bank, describes this new idea, for which the Illinois Manufacturers' Association is already working in the United States, having demanded its adoption at the recent Foreign Trade Convention in Cincinnati.

The British machinery for this purpose has been developed by the British Trade Corporation, which itself is a creation of the British Government as part of its after-war reconstruction policy. The German enterprise is reported to be a private corporation, but there is a demand for an outright department of the Government to accomplish the same end.

The crux of the matter, in the opinion of the writer in The Americas, on which depends the success or failure of the idea, is the question of ability to insure on a very small premium, probably not more than a fraction of 1 per cent. If the premium were higher than this, the facility would not be worth the cost, but if bills could be insured for a small enough premium it would be a great help to exporters in figuring closely on their price quotations and stabilizing their business generally, without having to reckon on bad debts—which would be almost as good as conducting an export business on a cash basis.

GAIN $11,300,000 IN GOLD RESERVES

Banks Also Report Large Decreases in Federal and Member Bank Deposits.

FEWER NOTES CIRCULATED

Large Amount of Discounted Bills and Certificates of Indebtedness Are Liquidated.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—Liquidation on a large scale of discounted bills and United States certificates of indebtedness, following the consummation of the Third Liberty Loan, accompanied by considerable net withdrawals of Government and member bank deposits, is indicated by the Federal Reserve Board's weekly statement issued as at the close of business on May 17.

Total gold reserves show a gain of $11,300,000, substantial gains being reported by the Boston, Cleveland, Chicago, and St. Louis banks, as the result of shifting of credits in the gold settlement fund in connection with Liberty Loan operations. A decrease of about $27,000,000 in the gold reserves of the New York bank is accompanied by a change from an adverse balance of $62,500,000 in account with other banks, shown the week before, to a favorable balance of $400,000, while a decrease of $24,300,000 in gold reserves reported by the Kansas City bank is accompanied by an increase of $17,700,000 in discounts on hand and a decrease of $7,800,000 in net deposits.

A decrease of $96,800,000 is indicated in the total holdings of discounted bills, the Boston, New York, and St. Louis banks reporting substantial liquidation of this class of paper during the week. Of the total discounts on hand $526,200,000, as against $612,300,000 the week before, are secured by Liberty bonds and United States certificates of indebtedness. Acceptances on hand decreased $6,200,000, all the Southern and Western banks, except San Francisco, reporting smaller figures than the week before.

The decrease of $33,700,000 shown for United States Government short-term securities is due to net liquidation of a corresponding amount of United States certificates of indebtedness. But little change is shown in other classes of investments. Total earning assets show a decrease of $136,100,000 for the week.

Payment for Federal Reserve Bank stock by newly admitted members largely accounts for an aggregate increase of $197,000 in paid-in capital, all the banks except those at Boston and St. Louis reporting increases in capital account.

Net withdrawals of $89,800,000 of Government deposits and of $87,000,000 of members' reserve deposits for the week are shown, all the banks except Kansas City reporting smaller bank deposits than the week before.

Net issues for the week of Federal Reserve notes amounted to $2,700,000. Federal Reserve notes in actual circulation are given as $1,569,400,000, and for the first time since Jan. 25 show a slight decline as compared with the total of the week before. The ratio of total cash reserves to aggregate net deposits and Federal Reserve note liabilities shows an increase from 60.3 to 63.1 per cent.

HOLD MORE U. S. BONDS.

Increase of $309,000,000 for the Week Reported by Member Banks.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—Some indication of the character and volume of investment and loan operations of 693 member banks in about 100 leading cities in connection with the consummation of the Third Liberty Loan is afforded by the weekly statement showing the condition of these banks as at the close of business on May 10.

Total United States securities on hand show a net decrease for the week of about $50,000,000, an increase of $309,000,000 in the aggregate holding of United States bonds, other than circulation bonds, being more than offset by net liquidation of $361,100,000 of certificates of indebtedness. Loans supported by United States war securities show a rise for the week of $171,800,000, while other loans and investments increased by $105,500,000.

For the 120 banks in the three Central Reserve cities, corresponding changes involve a decrease of $47,400,000 in total United States securities, an increase of $172,200,000 in United States bonds other than circulation bonds, and a decrease of $219,600,000 in certificates.

Loans supported by Government war securities reported by these 120 banks show an increase of $119,000,000, and other loans and investments an increase of $85,800,000. Aggregate loans and investments of reporting banks show an increase of $227,500,000, of which $107,300,000 represents the increase at the Central Reserve city banks. Of the total investments the share of Government securities and loans supported by such securities is 20.5 per cent., as against 20 per cent. the week before.

Aggregate reserves of reporting banks show a gain of $60,600,000, and cash in vault a gain of $3,800,000. For the banks in the Central Reserve cities corresponding gains of $49,500,000 and $3,000,000 are shown. Net demand deposits declined over $334,000,000, and time deposits $20,800,000, while Government deposits show a gain of $221,000,000, largely with banks outside the three Central Reserve cities. The latter report decreases of $202,400,000 in net demand deposits, and of $12,000,000 in time deposits, as against a gain of $52,500,000 in Government deposits.

Owing to the gain in investments and the simultaneous decrease in deposits, the ratio of investments to total deposits of all reporting banks went up from 110.1 to 113.4 per cent. For the Central Reserve city banks this ratio shows an even larger increase, from 106.2 to 111.1 per cent. The ratio of combined cash and reserve to total deposits likewise shows a gain, from 13.6 to 14.4 per cent., and for the Central Reserve city banks, from 14.8 to 16.1 per cent. Excess reserves of all reporting banks increased by over $100,000,000 to $161,500,000. For the Central Reserve city banks excess reserves stood at $109,500,000, or $76,200,000 in excess of the total shown the week before.

After paying $369,942 preferred stock dividends, the balance remaining was equal to $72.53 per share of common stock, against $86.62 the year before. The annual statement issued yesterday showed cash on hand amounting to $12,733,726, against $10,448,846 at the end of 1916, while the inventory was $17,774,338, compared with $16,760,084. The surplus as of Dec. 31, 1917, totaled $26,982,024, an increase for the year of $8,311,105.

WHEAT.

The movement of wheat from the farms last week proved of very small proportions, but while stocks are extremely small at the present time the new harvest is approaching so rapidly that the trade is not concerned over the question of supplies. The movement for export continues of fair proportions, and it is the prevailing impression that the Grain Corporation of the Food Administration will be able to maintain its promised export movement until the new crop is ready for shipment.

RYE.

Market quiet; No. 2 Western, $2.11, cost and freight, New York.

CORN.

There was a very feverish market in corn on Saturday, and prices were subject to quick changes both ways. At times the market gave evidences of strength, but on every upturn selling pressure increased, and final prices were at about the low of the day, ranging from unchanged to ⅝c net decline. In the local cash market kiln dried No. 3 yellow was quoted at $1.50, No. 4 yellow $1.40, cost and freight, New York.

OATS.

While price changes in the oats market were feverish at times, the undertone was steady, and final prices were ⅛c to 1c net higher. A more bullish sentiment has developed of late in the July position on the theory that prices were too low, compared with corn, and there has been considerable buying against sales of corn. The local cash market was steady; natural quoted at 84@85c and clipped white at 84@88½c, all elevator.

PROVISIONS.

The provision market was very inactive, but a firmer tone prevailed, owing to small receipts of live hogs and less pressure in the cash position as a result of the recent Government purchases. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 6,500; estimated for Monday, 38,000, and for the week, 135,000; Kansas City received 500 and Omaha 6,700.

There may have been a slightly steadier tone in the coffee market yesterday, but there was no improvement in the volume of business. The opening was 1 to 2 points higher, and the market closed on the same level, with sales reported of December at 8.54 and of March at 8.71.

The spot market was dull and unchanged, on the basis of 8⅝ for Rio 7s and 10⅝ for Santos 4s. Range of prices:

SUGAR.

The trade as a rule seems to have ample stocks of refined sugar, and the demand is not at all brisk. While some local refiners have been tied up with Government orders, fairly good allotments have been made to brokers and the situation generally is on the mend. Two or three cargoes of raw sugar are due here within a day or two, and recent arrivals have allowed refiners to work full time.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

EGGS.—30,917 cases. The market is generally quiet and weak. There is a heavier offering of medium and lower grades than can be promptly moved and more pressure to sell such. ENGLISH STEEL TRADE IS DISTURBED BY WAR

Big Jump in Output Causes Unsettled Feeling, with Exaggerated Fears of Overproduction.

In England steel manufacturers are devoting considerable thought to the probable status of the industry when the war ends and releases much capacity which is now being devoted to war work. Comment in British trade periodicals indicates a feeling in some quarters that the elimination of the Russian market for the time being may be a factor in bringing about overproduction even during the course of the war. This theory is apparently scouted in other directions, and efforts to obtain higher prices for certain lines are being agitated.

"The situation in the steel trade contains some elements of disturbance," The London Ironmonger says in a recent issue, "although on the whole it is not unsatisfactory. The large increase in the production of most kinds of steel has caused an unsettled feeling, which has found expression in exaggerated fears of overproduction, particularly of open-hearth and crucible steel. Moreover, it is known that negotiations for an advance in maximum prices have been in progress, and in an instance which has been brought to our notice, a price in excess of the maximum has been charged with the note that it is made 'as arranged with the Ministry of Munitions.'

"At the moment the position is somewhat puzzling to traders, but official announcement may be expected in a week or so which will definitely clear up the question of prices. No advance need be expected in steel billets of ordinary quality, although it is recognized that the costs of production have increased in many directions. The difficulty may perhaps be met by a subsidy.

"There has been some speculation about the effect of elimination of the Russian markets upon the disposal of production. Assertions are made that the industry is faced with overproduction and that the works will soon be able to place extensive tonnages at the disposal of the trade. There is, however, little likelihood of such a state of things coming about. At present, no doubt, stocks of steel are accumulating at the works, but it is difficult to say how much of this is due to the insufficiency of railroad facilities and how much to excess of production. Those in a position to gauge future national requirements, however, are of the opinion that very little steel will be available for civil use at home and for export."

This comment is interesting from the American point of view for the reason that British Government purchases of steel for munitions and shipbuilding in the United States are reported to be on the increase. At the meeting of steel manufacturers, late in April, for the purpose of considering future war requirements of the allied nations, emphasis was laid by J. Leonard Replogle, Director of Steel Supply, on the large contracts pressing from abroad on the American mills.

John D. Ryan Quits Soo Railroad.

MILWAUKEE, May 18.—John D. Ryan, a member of the Executive Committee of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway Company, at the annual meeting of the Directors and stockholders here today, retired on account of his duties in connection with the war, and was succeeded by Edward S. Harkness. All other officers and Directors, whose terms had expired, were re-elected. No action was taken on the matter of dividends.

MANUFACTURERS TO DISCUSS WAR NEEDS

800 from All Over United States Expected Here for 23d Annual Convention.

URGED TO AID WAR PROGRAM

To Consider Man Power, Fuel, Transportation, and Housing in Light of War Conditions.

Changes in manufacturing conditions to meet the nation's critical needs as it enters the second year of war, readjustments in production, employment, in conservation of men and resources, will be reviewed at the twenty-third annual convention of the National Association of Manufacturers, to be held at the Waldorf-Astoria tomorrow, Tuesday, and Wednesday.

"How manufacturers can do not only their bit," says the convention announcement, "but their utmost to promote the national war program, will be indicated by men of high authority in the country's affairs. The conservation of man power, labor supply, mechanical reorganization, fuel, transportation, and food economies; industrial housing, financial problems, rehabilitation of disabled soldiers, export trade developments, and other subjects of vital importance will be treated comprehensively, with particular reference to the manufacturer's needs and opportunities; and the activities of the association and its plans for future co-operative action will be presented in a manner thoroughly in keeping with the times."

Among the speeches scheduled are: "Our Shipping," by Charles S. Page, United States Shipping Board, Washington; "Trade Acceptances and the Manufacturer," by W. M. Nones, the Norma Company, New York; "What the Trade Acceptance Means," by Lewis E. Pierson, Chairman of the Board, Irving National Bank; "France and Her Industrial Needs," by Charles F. Beach of Paris; "Export Trade During Wartime," by H. B. Van Sinderen, Director of the Bureau of Exports, Washington; "Combinations for Foreign Trade," by N. B. Williams, Washington, and "American Industry and the War," by James O. Fagan, Waverly, Mass.

A feature of the convention will be the attention devoted to discussing the best way to utilize in industries, soldiers disabled in the war. Two addresses on this subject have been scheduled for Wednesday's session. Major Harry E. Mock, U. S. A., will have as his theme, "Rehabilitating Disabled Soldiers and Sailors," while Professor H. E. T. Haultain, Vocational Training Officer, Toronto, will tell what Canada is doing.

On Tuesday evening, a memorial service for the association's late President, Colonel George Pope, will be conducted by the Rev. S. Edward Young, pastor of the Bedford Presbyterian Church, Brooklyn.

The convention will receive reports from standing committees and will be called upon to elect a new President to succeed the late Colonel Pope. Vice Presidents for the several States, and Directors-at-Large will also be chosen. Contrary to the usual custom the association will hold no annual banquet, the money usually spent for this purpose having been devoted to additional subscriptions to the Third Liberty Loan.

An exhibit devoted to "Conservation of Man Power" will be arranged in the Myrtle Room of the hotel. The scope of the industrial conservation movement promoted by the National Association of Manufacturers will be graphically illustrated by diagrammatic illustrations. Developments in industrial housing will also be interestingly treated.

Fully 800 leading manufacturers from all sections of the United States are expected to attend.

FIRE UNDERWRITERS MEET.

National Board Here on May 23 to Review Industry's War Work.

What is being done to safeguard the nation's war industries and food supplies against enemy plotters will be told at the fifty-second annual meeting of the National Board of Fire Underwriters, to be held at the Hotel Astor on May 23. The work of the National Board, as the representative of the fire insurance industry of the United States, for the last year has been so largely devoted to specialized Government service that many of its usual activities have been held in abeyance.

The Board has been organizing and directing for various departments and bureaus of the Federal Government, including the Council of National Defense, the Construction Division of the Quartermaster's Department, the Emergency Fleet Corporation, the Bureau of Yards and Docks of the Navy Department, the United States Food Administration, the War Industries Board, Department of Justice, and the United States Bureau of Education, a nationwide work in conservation and fire protection that has involved underwriters and underwriting organizations in every part of the country.

An important report to be submitted to the convention will be that of the Committee on Incendiarism and Arson, whose expert investigators, working with civic, State, and national officials, have brought to justice many dangerous criminals. Another report scheduled is by the Committee on Actuarial Bureau, which collects, tabulates, and analyzes the statistics of an average of more than 1,500 fires per day.

NATIONAL COAL WEEK SOON.

Consumers Will Be Urged to Order Winter's Supply in June.

The week from June 3 to 8 has been designated National Coal Week, when there will be a drive to induce those consumers who have not yet done so to order their Winter's supply of anthracite. At that time the mines will be in full swing, and the National Fuel Administration believes transportation difficulties will be reduced to a minimum. At present the Fuel Administration officials here are busy trying to fill the orders for more than 3,500,000 tons of coal now entered on the books of local dealers.

Men in the coal trade say that the situation is still acute enough to call for strict economy by all users of coal. They predict that unless the situation improves the National Fuel Administration will have to limit the fuel supply to nonessential industries.

The coal production is barely keeping pace with the demand for fuel needed for immediate consumption, according to Floyd Parsons, editor of Coal Age. He said that a few plants here and there were acquiring a reserve, but a lack of sufficient storage space would prevent many from laying in much larger supplies.

An exhibition of posters of all nationalities will be held at the Vanderbilt House, 677 Fifth Avenue, beginning Monday, May 20. It promises to be the most formidable exhibit of its kind, and is for the benefit of the American Red Cross, under the auspices of Auxiliary 132.

ITALY BACKS ZIONIST CAUSE

Provisional Executive Committee Receives Official Notice.

The Provisional Executive Committee for General Zionist Affairs announced yesterday that the Italian Government, through its Ambassador at the Court of St. James's, had officially signified its approval of the English and French declarations in favor of the Zionist movement and of a Jewish national homeland in Palestine. Nahum Sokolow, representative in London of the Zionist International Political Committee has received from Ambassador Imperiali, the following statement of Italy's attitude on the subject:

On the instructions of his Excellency Baron Sonnino, his Majesty's Minister for Foreign Affairs, I have the honor to inform you that his Majesty's Government is pleased to confirm the declarations already made through their representatives in Washington, the Hague, and Salonica, to the effect that they will use their best endeavors to facilitate the establishment in Palestine of a Jewish national centre, it being understood that this shall not prejudice the legal or political status enjoyed by Jews in any other country.

The British declaration in favor of a Jewish national homeland in Palestine was made on Nov. 2, 1917. The French statement was made on Feb. 12, 1918. On Feb. 25 of this year a dispatch appeared in the daily newspapers to the effect that the Italian Government had notified its Ambassadors that it approved of the stand on Palestine taken by the Allies. This, however, is the first authorized announcement by the Italian Government to the Zionist organization.

PLEA FOR JEWISH CHARITIES

Federation Issues Pamphlet of Information as to Needs.

The Federation of Jewish Philanthropic Societies has issued a pamphlet giving information to directors of the different affiliated institutions. It is pointed out that while the federation has collected 70 per cent. more in 1918 than the constituent bodies collected in 1916, the federation bears the burden of maintaining them at 80 per cent. increased cost.

More progress would have been opened up for charities had it not been for the war. The trustees of the federation estimate that it is necessary to raise $300,000 in order to assure the safety of its institutions in consequence of the increased cost of operation, the societies having accumulated a deficit of about $150,000. The federation has no reserve fund, because all money received from the public is allotted to the constituent societies, the total expenditure of which is $4,600,000 annually.

The pamphlet also contains questions and answers for the information of solicitors for contributions. Felix M. Warburg is President of the federation, Dr. Julius Goldman and Mrs. Sidney Borg, Vice Presidents; Harry Sachs, Treasurer; J. Edwin Goldwasser, Executive Director, and Lee K. Frankel, Secretary, with offices at 1 Madison Avenue.

PLAN TO AID ORIENTAL JEWS

Jewish Sisterhood to Provide for Education and Employment.

The Neighborhood House synagogue and Talmud Torah of the Sisterhood of the Spanish and Portuguese, 133 Eldridge Street, just consecrated, will, it was announced yesterday, give special attention to activities in behalf of Oriental Jews, while welcoming Jews from all countries.

The Sisterhood is one of the oldest in America, having been started in 1847 as the Ladies' Sewing Circle of the synagogue. The new home in Eldridge Street contains a synagogue conducted according to the orthodox ritual of the Sephardic Jews, and will provide accommodation hitherto lacking for coreligionists from Spain, Syria, Greece, and Turkey. Many of these are poor and decline to accept charity, but are anxious for employment and the education that will fit them for American citizenship. The Sisterhood's activities extend to work among wayward girls brought to the Night Court. This work is in charge of Mrs. Mortimer Menken and Mrs. Elizabeth Barnett.

DINNER FOR E. W. HAMMER.

Thompson-Starrett Men Honor Builder of Clearing Hospital.

The members of the Thompson-Starrett Company gave a dinner last night at the McAlpin Hotel in honor of E. W. Hammer, who has directed the construction of the Park Hill Clearing Hospital on Staten Island. The dinner was in the nature of a celebration of the completion of this large Government hospital and also a farewell to Mr. Hammer, for he is leaving for Camden, N. J., to take charge of the construction of 900 brick houses, which are being built by the Tidewater Company for the employes in the shipyards there.

The chief speaker was Major E. A. Simmons of the Army Transport Service, who was associated with Mr. Hammer in the construction work of the hospital. He spoke in high praise of the engineer, and prophesied that he would establish a record in this new undertaking. Among those who attended the dinner were M. J. Fisher, assistant to the President of the Thompson-Starrett Company; George T. Zimmerman, Treasurer, and Major Simmons's staff.

LUNA PARK OPENED.

Reflection of War Seen in Coney Island Amusements.

Luna Park, at Coney Island, was opened for the season last night, and with the opening of all the other amusement resorts and the detailing of 100 extra policemen to the Coney Island Station, the season was declared "officially" open by those who follow the life of the resort every Summer. The latest innovation is the woman press agent, who takes the place of men who have gone to war. In many other parts of the amusement parks women have taken the places of men, and many of the acts in the shows are staged entirely by them.

One of the new shows in Luna Park is a panorama painting and representation of the battlefields. The spectator enters through a communicating trench, and walks through a ruined village to the trenches. Many of the other amusements show the influence of the war.

WAR WORKERS TO RETURN.

French Labor Leaders Reach an Agreement with Premier.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 18.—The Matin states this morning that after an hour's interview between the Premier and the metalworkers and other labor representatives an agreement was reached "in complete fashion" on points in dispute regarding the application of the Mourier law. The Matin says:

"M. Merrheim, Secretary of the Metalworkers' Union, declared that notices would be issued during the night inviting all workers in war factories to resume work."

The concluding words are the first open mention permitted of the state of affairs. The consequences of any further interruption of production are obvious, and the Matin's announcement is greeted with general relief.

SOLDIERS ABROAD MAY VOTE

Baker Willing if States Can Devise a Practical Plan.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—The question of taking the soldier vote in France has been reopened by the War Department with the hope that some way may be evolved to take it which would not interfere with the military efficiency of the army. Secretary Baker indicated that any State which devised a practical and workable way of collecting the soldier ballots would be permitted to do so.

"The question of having the soldiers vote is a difficult one," the Secretary said, "but everybody is anxious to have it done, if possible. You know with the soldiers in this country we made a rule that wherever a State had provided the machinery for taking the vote we would help all we could to facilitate the operation of that machinery. The War Department obviously cannot take the responsibility of taking, collecting, and returning the votes.

"If it is possible for us to work out a plan by which we can facilitate the States doing it through their own agencies, agencies of their own creation, we would be very happy to do it. If States provide machinery which is practicable and can be worked we will do our utmost to enable them to work it. If some plans are practicable and some impracticable we will not punish those States whose plans are practical because of the impracticability of others.

"If it is possible to work out a plan it will apply to the American Expeditionary Force."

MRS. BOWEN GETS DIVORCE.

Her Former Husband Entered the Service with Squadron A.

The New York Supreme Court last week granted to Mrs. Margery Shannon Bowen a decree of absolute divorce from Thomas Floyd Bowen. The marriage of the couple took place in May, 1916. Before her marriage Mrs. Bowen was extremely popular with the younger set, and attained some prominence as a dancer, appearing in practically all the amateur society affairs. During the last two years she has been prominent in various patriotic activities, and long before this country entered the war she was one of the chief workers for the Red Cross. She is now enrolled with the Motor Corps of the National League for Women's Service. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Porter Shannon of 121 Madison Avenue.

The defendant is in service with the Expeditionary Forces. He was a member of Squadron A, and went with the squadron into the war. He is the son of Mrs. A. Floyd Bowen. Harry K. Vingut, who married Miss Edith Gaynor, daughter of the late Mayor Gaynor, is his uncle. He belongs to the Racquet Club.

ACTOR BROODED OVER WAR.

Abingdon's Notes Told Suicide Motive—Cohan to Deliver Eulogy.

The body of William L. Abingdon, the veteran English actor who committed suicide late on Friday night at his home, 235 West Seventy-sixth Street, by cutting his throat and wrists, will be buried in Woodlawn Cemetery tomorrow afternoon, following services at the Campbell Funeral Church, Broadway and Sixty-sixth Street. George M. Cohan and De Wolf Hopper will deliver eulogies at the services.

Friends of the dead actor said yesterday that he had been brooding over the outcome of the war. Several notes which he left confirmed this opinion, they said. Mr. Abingdon's two sons are in the British service, one with the army and the other in the Royal Navy. In a small booklet, upon which was engraved "In Memoriam—William Terriss," the medical examiner found notes giving the motive of the suicide. William Terriss, it was explained, was the leading man at the Adelphi Theatre, London, and had been a close friend of Abingdon's during the latter's sixteen years at that playhouse. Terriss was shot dead at the stage door of the theatre following a performance several years ago.

"For some time I have been suffering from neurasthenia, melancholia, a desire to avoid people, and a lack of interest in anything and everything," one of the notes read. "Haven't been near the club in three weeks. Hiding away in cheap picture shows or staying in the house. Even baseball has no attraction for me. Everybody is against me. One more mistake and then—'the great conundrum.'"

Edward Hartley.

What is your idea of practical economy? Ours is to give, not the most for your money, but the most of the best for your money. The "most for your money" kind of service is expensive at any price, because quality never can go with quantity. But the "most of the best for your money" kind is Value with a capital V.

REFUSE TO RISK NEW SHIP.

Launching of the Mokah Delayed Because of Condition of Ways.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW LONDON, Conn., May 18.—The new steamer Mokah was not launched at the Noank Shipyards this afternoon to the great disappointment of Vice President McCabe and a large number of persons who had expected to witness the launching of the first of the Emergency Fleet Corporation's vessels to be built at the local yards.

The reason for postponement was due to the fact that the Government inspectors who looked over the ways advised that they were not in proper shape to launch the steamer. Workmen immediately made an endeavor to remedy the defects and get the ways in proper condition to have the launching at 5 o'clock, as scheduled.

While Mr. McCabe and Mr. Morse felt that the ways were safe, the Government inspectors disagreed with them and would not permit the launching to take place. Announcement of the time of the launching will be made later.

A large party from New York came here at noon today intending to go to Noank to witness the launching, and another party came here from the Fore River Shipyards at Quincy, Mass.

WANT FORD FOR SENATOR.

Movement in Michigan to Make Him a Bipartisan Nominee.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Mich., May 18.—A movement was started today to place Henry Ford before the Michigan electorate as a candidate for the Republican Senatorial nomination. Robert H. Day is sponsor of the movement. Whether Mr. Ford had cognizance of the project or would accept the honor if nominated Mr. Day would not say.

At a meeting of a number of those favoring Mr. Ford's candidacy called by Mr. Day, resolutions were adopted as follows:

"Resolved, That those present at this meeting unanimously pledge their active support and agree to use every legitimate means to procure the nomination and election of Henry Ford as Senator for the State of Michigan on the Republican ticket; and, Whereas prominent members of the Democratic Party of the State of Michigan have expressed a desire for the election of Mr. Ford as Senator, it will be our endeavor, if possible, to procure his indorsement by that party also, so that he may become the unanimous choice of the people of Michigan as their representative in the Senate of the United States."

FIGHTING WITH LAMPS AND STAMPS

189 Women's SALE! 142 Misses' Wool Jersey Suits $19.74

The Jersey is a soft, light weight quality, yet with just enough firmness to hold its shape well. Remember, Wool Jersey does not crush nor does it soil easily—practical, indeed!

Handkerchiefs

There are handkerchief styles that conform to good usage as conscientiously as any other item of attire.

Fashion decrees the daintily colored square of linen or lawn as the proper accessory to the smartly tailored suit.

A simply hemstitched kerchief should be identified with the quaint organdie frocks in vogue. An elaborately embroidered handkerchief is needed to complete the formal dinner gown.

The fastidious woman is particular about these little niceties of correct dress. We feel sure she will be grateful for our policy, which insists on style and quality, and yet charges for intrinsic worth alone.

Handkerchiefs for every use, priced 12c for a plain "service" handkerchief, to $4.96 for an exquisite example of the Madeira needle-woman's art.

We are asked to give publicity to the Campaign and to urge every one to give freely, voluntarily and liberally, and to urge others to do likewise. It is a pleasure to add our voice to the official appeal.

COUCH HAMMOCKS

It's quite possible to have a Couch Hammock without a Summer Home (a modest porch is sufficient reason for owning one), but it's hard to conceive of a true Summer Home without a Couch Hammock.

We believe our collection of Couch Hammocks to be the most comprehensive in the city. We know it to offer the same or better quality merchandise at a much lower price than elsewhere.

The Jersey is a soft, light weight quality, yet with just enough firmness to hold its shape well. Remember, Wool Jersey does not crush nor does it soil easily—practical, indeed!

Handkerchiefs

There are handkerchief styles that conform to good usage as conscientiously as any other item of attire.

Fashion decrees the daintily colored square of linen or lawn as the proper accessory to the smartly tailored suit.

A simply hemstitched kerchief should be identified with the quaint organdie frocks in vogue. An elaborately embroidered handkerchief is needed to complete the formal dinner gown.

The fastidious woman is particular about these little niceties of correct dress. We feel sure she will be grateful for our policy, which insists on style and quality, and yet charges for intrinsic worth alone.

Handkerchiefs for every use, priced 12c for a plain "service" handkerchief, to $4.96 for an exquisite example of the Madeira needle-woman's art.

THE money needed must and will be raised during the week of the Drive. The Red Cross is the only national agency, recognized on the battlefields of Europe by all nations. It is the official agency for the relief of the suffering of the wounded, the homeless, the widow and the orphan.

We are asked to give publicity to the Campaign and to urge every one to give freely, voluntarily and liberally, and to urge others to do likewise. It is a pleasure to add our voice to the official appeal.

KARL THE TEMPTER.

A German peace offensive, as we have said before, is not an attempt to get peace; it is a military manoeuvre, the purpose of which is to divide or confuse the enemy. Mr. BALFOUR believes that Kaiser KARL's letter to Prince SIXTUS, offering to recognize France's "just claims to Alsace-Lorraine," was such a peace offensive. There are circumstances that confirm this view in a measure. One of them is KARL's insistence that the offer should be made known only to Great Britain and France, not to Italy and the United States. The letter was written a few days before the United States entered the war, but the prohibition applied to the subsequent negotiations. So far as Italy is concerned, the reason why KARL did not want her to know about his offer is obvious. He hoped by the offer of Alsace-Lorraine to bribe France and Great Britain to desert Italy; and then he could deal with Italy separately.

As for the United States, Mr. BALFOUR plainly implies that the negotiations were going on after this country entered the war, indeed while he was over here at the head of the British Mission; that England was not taken into the conference by France until he had left for the United States. There was every reason, if KARL had been honest in his intentions, for letting the United States know about it, but he was strict in his prohibition. Why did he not wish the President to know that he had offered Alsace-Lorraine to France? It is true that Austria was not then at war with us, but that is of no consequence; Austria was even then flirting with us, laying the basis for that pretense of friendship and willingness for an honorable peace with which Count CZERNIN so long entertained President WILSON. The conclusion that he did not wish us to know about it because he wanted to play on a different string with us, just as he intended to play on a different string with Italy, is hard to avoid.

Nevertheless, Mr. GRASTY's dispatch of yesterday informs us that French opinion holds Kaiser KARL's proposal to have been sincere. It was dealt with seriously, he says, and > the matter was dropped only when it appeared that * * * Austria was still unprepared to accept certain essentials to which the Allies were bound by interest and honor.

We can only conclude that when France and England came to inquire what Kaiser KARL wanted in exchange for his concession they found he wanted them to abandon Italy and Serbia, and perhaps Rumania and Russia. This would explain, as well as would Mr. BALFOUR's theory, why Italy was not permitted by Austria to know of the negotiations. It would also afford a guess about why the United States was not permitted to know of the treachery KARL proposed. Then, and at all subsequent times, Austria was pretending, in her dealings with the United States, to high-mindedness and reasonableness.

Reduced to plain language, what KARL proposed was that France and Great Britain should betray their allies, and that in return he would betray his. They would turn over Italy and Serbia to his mercies, and he would aid them to take Alsace-Lorraine away from Germany. And this he proposed with a straight face and a clear conscience. To him there was nothing about the offer which would excite any disgust in those to whom he made it. It was, he thought, a fair bargain. He must have been greatly surprised when France and England declined it.

The incident shows how hopeless is the idea of negotiating with the Teutons. It is not merely that their terms are unacceptable; it is that the whole basis of their thought is something utterly removed from the world the rest of us are living in. Germany and Austria are still living in the Middle Ages. KARL's proposal is exactly such a proposal as a mediaeval monarch might have made to another, with no more sense of shame than KARL himself felt in making it. When Germany talks of a "negotiated peace," of a peace by "understanding and give-and-take," this is the sort of thing she means. Now, the allied nations cannot even consider a peace of that kind, or any negotiations based on the ideas that prevail in Germany and Austria. The century for that kind of thing has gone by. If the allied Governments were willing to consider a peace of theft and treachery—which is what a "peace by understanding and give-and-take" means—their peoples would not permit it; it would be fatal to any modern and democratic Government to be suspected of such willingness.

Whether KARL proposed this treachery and countertreachery sincerely, as the French believe, or at the instigation of Germany, as Mr. BALFOUR believes, makes no difference in the moral. It makes no difference in the moral whether he hoped to divide the Allies by a bogus offer or hoped to divide them by a sincere one. The moral is that these mediaeval people talk a different language from ours; that their tribe is a different tribe; and that we cannot talk about "negotiating" with them in any such sense as that in which we speak about negotiating with each other. They are centuries away from us, and they no more know what we mean when we state our war aims than ROLLO the Norseman would have known.

THREE CANDIDATES.

The primaries have been understood to be peculiarly the Governor's, "a poor thing, Sir, but my own"; and Mr. LEWIS and Mr. SWEET are guilty of a certain presumption in proposing to invade that private preserve of the Governor's. Still, if they should dare to ask boldly for the restoration of the State Convention, much would be forgiven them. The Governor has run on a platform favoring the State Convention, and then run away from that platform. That is his privilege. That is a common political habit.

Reformers may be lost to Mr. LEWIS and Mr. SWEET if they repudiate the machine of the people's will. How could the primaries be kind to men who long for that engine of bossism, the State Convention?

Still, Mr. SWEET and Mr. LEWIS, so far as is known, have no designs on 1920.

RED CROSS WAR FUND WEEK.

The American Red Cross asks the people of this great patriotic city to contribute $25,000,000 to its War Fund this week. In the whole country the appeal is for four times that amount. New York's share will be less than $5 per capita. Our population exceeds 5,500,000. The mite of the poor will be as precious for the spirit it reflects as the gift of those who do not let their left hand know what their right hand doeth.

The society asks for nothing on faith; it points to its heroic and compassionate work in Belgium, in France, in Italy, wherever battle is joined between the forces of despotism and savagery and the allied armies of civilization, bearing, besides their national banners, the gleaming cross which is the symbol of humanity and mercy. It will be a reproach not to give something; it is a duty, and should be a joy, to give generously. Some can contribute very little; therefore others should give with a full hand, if they can.

The Red Cross wants every man, woman, and child whose heart is in the war to help fill its war chest. If all give, it will mean that New York understands what the society is doing in the battle-stricken countries—and a wonderful, moving story it is; it will mean that New York is standing behind the President and the soldiers and sailors for the triumph of the grandest cause the world has ever known. It would be a bitter memory in the day of final victory to look back and confess failure to sustain the Red Cross in this crisis of the war, the withholding of even a small gift to ease the sufferings of wounded soldiers and to relieve the hunger of homeless fugitives.

The American Red Cross has proved a powerful ally to the armies in the field because it has fought German cruelty by succoring distressed peoples and saving their morale, actually their souls—bruised by the most terrible experiences. The men and women of the Red Cross have met retreating armies of destitute and bereft, fed them, nursed them, given them shelter, restored their faith in Providence. Of the first aid campaign in Italy, when her army was driven back to the Piave, Commissioner GRAYSON MURPHY, a regular army officer, has said:

> I am prouder of the part that I have been permitted to play in the work of the Red Cross than I am of any other thing that I ever did in my life, or of all other things put together. I am prouder of it, and I will be prouder of it, I know, than of anything else that will ever be given me to do in this life.

Imagine the allied battleline in France without the Red Cross, alert and ready with its stretcher-bearers, and doctors and nurses to care for the wounded, to ease the last moments of the dying, and with its cheerful canteens to nourish and sustain the soldiers who have fought themselves to a standstill and can do no more. It was estimated that in the period before our own troops were actively engaged the Red Cross canteens had been instrumental in raising the morale of the French soldiers to a degree that astonished their officers. In America enemy aliens have assailed the integrity of the Red Cross; that would be dangerous in France in the presence of a poilu. To him the symbol signifies womanly tenderness, the heroism of noncombatants under fire, sympathetic nursing, and the comfort and good cheer of canteens when he is battle-stained and weary almost to death.

It has been well said that the Red Cross represents the mothers of America. Its solicitude for, its kindness to, their sons who are serving in France could not be better described. The women of America know that when the Red Cross volunteers mother their soldiers wounds heal more quickly, war's hardships are softened, and an atmosphere of home envelops the ministering girls in white. "Mother is a mighty factor in the winning of this war," says Private PEAT, who also declares: "You are quite safe in denying anything derogatory to the Red Cross before you get the proof, because the Red Cross service is above reproach."

"Every act of the Red Cross is done in the name of the American people," says Chairman HENRY P. DAVISON of the War Council of the society. Thereby are the American people honored and glorified. The expression is not too strong, for the worth of the Red Cross in France is both spiritual and militant, and mightily has it raised us in the eyes of the people of Europe, even the enemy as well as our allies.

New York cannot give too much and too quickly to the War Fund. New York must go "over the top." Its contribution should exceed what is asked for.

THE PRIMARY ENROLLMENT SUPPLEMENT.

Next Saturday, May 25, the woman voters of this city are to enroll if they choose—and they should choose—in the political party of their choice. Between July 2 and Aug. 6, petitions designating candidates for party nominations on the primary ballot will be in circulation. Such petitions can be signed only by enrolled members of the party circulating the petitions. In the primary election, Sept. 3, only enrolled party members can participate. Without enrollment, then, no voter will have a hand in making nominations. For the information and convenience of the woman voters of Greater New York THE TIMES prints this morning a supplement containing, with other useful and instructive matter, a map of the Assembly districts of the five boroughs, with clear directions for use, so that each woman consulter of it can find her own district and a full list of enrollment places. This supplement should be kept and studied.

OUR PATRIOTIC COUPON CLIPPERS

The announcement that 17,000,000 have subscribed to $4,170,019,000 of the Third Liberty Loan comes just as 9,500,000 owners of the Second Liberty Loan are cashing their coupons, for the first time in most cases. The third loan was oversubscribed 39 per cent. by about one in each six of the population. The Treasury receives from the third loan twice as much as from the first, and $362,000,000 more than from the second, but the oversubscription is larger than appears on the comparison. It was known that only half of the oversubscription for the second loan would be accepted, and many subscriptions were made large to get the half which would be allotted. To that extent the subscriptions to the second loan were inflated, or fictitious.

These comparisons are useful as proof that the appetite for Liberty Loans grows with each issue. If there is similar growth for the fourth loan—and the signs are that there will be greater growth—there ought to be 30,000,000 to 40,000,000 of coupon clippers, and as many billions as the Treasury asks for. This is creditable, because each loan has gone to a discount immediately after issue, without cooling the ardor of the subscribers. It is a demonstration that the subscriptions were on patriotic rather than financial grounds. These coupon clippers were not profiteers or tax slackers. That is proved by the fact that the loan with greatest tax exemption privileges was smallest in amount and in number of subscribers. The prime motive of the later bond takers is to beat the boches. There are more alluring securities on offer, but the financial return is nothing compared with the privilege of supporting our men in the trenches and bearing our share of the burden of fortifying civilization against the barbarians.

While the defeat of Kaiserism is our main aim, the secondary result is comparable with it. No nation with such a horde of coupon clippers is in any danger from the forces existent in every land, and which have done their perfect work in the ruin of Russia. The larger the national loans the stronger is the affirmation of Americanism, even though the first intent is to negative autocracy. Another indirect benefit is the conversion of a nation of wasters into a nation of investors. Before these loans we were a nation of economic and financial illiterates. Capitalists and coupon clippers were abhorred by many who now are coupon clippers themselves. Few, indeed, who possess property are sympathisers with attacks on property. Our idealists and parlor Socialists, who propound their views with a view to shocking their hearers, will talk to deaf ears and oftener see the backs of their audiences.

Thus the Liberty Loans are the antiserum against our domestic diseases, as well as the heaviest weapon against the deluded foreigners who have ruined their fatherlands in the name of benefits to a world citizenship. The world is burdened with debts, but they are the guarantee that the internationale can never be erected on the ruins of the nations. Our Liberty Loans would never have made such appeal to such multitudes if they had not seen through and behind the masks of autocracy and socialism, ravaging the world hand in hand, although nominally antagonists. The larger the Liberty Loans and the greater the number of our coupon clippers, the greater our security against the conversion of our institutions into those favored by the Prussians and Junkers and the Bolsheviki. Their repudiation and the affirmation of American citizenship are the greatest benefit from the Liberty Loans.

MORE TURKIFICATION?

According to the Jewish Correspondence Bureau at The Hague, DJEMAL PASHA is at congenial work again. He became famous, as Military Governor of Syria, for his wholesale court-martial hangings, without trial, of Syrian Arabs. Some 800 rich, important Arabs, Sheiks, men of authority and influence, he put out of the way in his zeal and that of the Young Turks generally for the Turkification, the all-Ottomanization of the Turkish Empire. To the poor Arabs hunger and typhus attended. He started to deal with the Jewish colonies in Palestine. The Jews were to be deported from Gaza, Jaffa, all the Jewish farming country. We know what "deportation" meant to the Armenians. It was a cynical synonym for death.

From Jaffa 8,000 Jews were driven, not without robbery and murder. A general slaughter of Palestinian Jews seemed inevitable. Germany intervened, it is supposed. "Pan-Turkish ideals," said the Frankfurter Zeitung unctuously, "have no sort of meaning in Palestine, where, practically, no Turks dwell." The Jews driven out of Jaffa were repatriated at the instance of the Spanish Government, acting, of course, for Germany. Germany must miss the Armenians in Anatolia, which she is exploiting copiously. Their labor is needed. Palestine, of course, is ultimately to be hers. Why deplete its agricultural resources unnecessarily?

According to The Hague dispatch, DJEMAL "since the beginning of April has ordered all Jews to evacuate colonies and towns near the front." He drives out Jews only. "Of 4,000 Jews in the city of Safed, near the Sea of Galilee, 3,000 are without bread." Inventions, lies, anti-Turkish propaganda, dreams of romantics in Amsterdam? Possibly, but we know what the Pan-Turkish policy is, what DJEMAL PASHA, ENVER PASHA, and TALAAT BEY have done to the Armenians, attempted in the case of Greeks and Jews, what DJEMAL did to men of his own religion—if he has any—in Syria. Dr. STUERMER, sometime Constantinople correspondent of the Kölnische Zeitung, speaks of DJEMAL's "admitted deep hatred of Germany and his personal animosity toward pro-German ENVER PASHA." This continuing persecution, if it be a fact, of the Palestine Jews indicates a firm Young Turk attitude. DJEMAL may also take a special pleasure in thwarting the German Government, which, of course, was far from feeling any humane nonsense about the Palestine Jews. It needed them in its business in 1915 and 1916. Its recent conquests and the spoil it has given to the Turks may have made it indifferent to later happenings in Palestine.

NANTUCKET CHANGES.

Tuckernuck and Muskeget, Gravelly and Swyle,
Islets appertainin' to old Nantucket Isle;
Sankaty Head and 'Sconset, where the breakers bile,
Weep and make moan! Satan has got busy;
O'er that Eden insular clatters the "tin Lizzie."

Last week the people of Nantucket took a momentous decision. For twelve years the island has been practically automobileless. The appearance of rare, sporadic cars or motor cycles inflamed conservative sentiment. The courts were asked to stay those rattling invaders. In 1914 an act of the Great and General Court, ratified by the voters in town meeting, 376 to 234, forbade the use of road or street to motor vehicles. Nantucket, like Bermuda, was a paradise of repose, safe from the wild honk and perfume of the chariots of swiftness.

It is a great Summer colony. The guests of Summer were generally averse to motors. The resident citizens were divided into modernists and ancients. The Siasconset-Nantucket leisurely "huckleberry" train, dear and memorable for its eccentricities, divagations, and miscellaneous didoes, and drawn or dumped motionless by the undoubted senior locomotive of the world, has retired from business. From 'Sconset to the boat for the mainland, "America" and New York, this narrow-gauge of genius had been the erratic carrier. Carryalls, buggies, and what not thrived after its extinction.

To a man the drivers were "agin" the horseless machine. But independent Nantucket—and who is more independent of opinion than the Nantucketer?—murmured and growled. Why should the Summer folks deprive the aborigines of the car? Why should the islander be less privileged than the mainlander? Then the real estate people argued that the automobile was necessary to the development of their property, since the "huckleberry" had been scrapped. There was a lovely special town meeting last week. "Literally the lame, the halt, and the blind were brought to the polls." Ancient, decrepit voters were lugged to the polling places by strong, sympathetic friends. The poorhouse—why does happy Nantucket have one?—was emptied of all inmates "who had not lost their legal standing as citizens." The Australian ballot was used. At the 1914 town meeting the ballot was open, and it was charged that some voters didn't dare to vote as they felt, on account of their fear of irritating the Summer folks. The friends of the car won, 336 to 296. Of the 816 legal voters 140 are in the army or navy. The opponents of the car will probably make new application to the Legislature. Meanwhile Nantucketers are buying or pricing automobiles.

It remains to be seen how the Summer visitors will take their defeat. Sympathize as we may with the charm of a carless Eden, the Nantucketers are free to regulate their island. So Florence, to the wrath of all Baedekerdom, destroyed some of her mediaeval picturesqueness and clutter. After all, cities and islands don't exist for the sole benefit of tourists.

Praise for a Camp Hospital.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The inclosed communication might be of interest to your readers. So much has been said and printed about the mistakes of the Medical Department that I think you will agree with me that some of its good points ought also to be put before the public.

J. P. YODER,
Captain Sanitary Corps.

Washington, May 10, 1918.

[Inclosure.]

April 23, 1918.

Major Renn, Adjutant, Base Hospital, Camp Greene, N. C.:

Dear Sir: I wish to express to you my thanks for your kind attention shown me and my brother-in-law on our visit to the base hospital during the serious illness of my son, James C. Amy, from April 4 to 11.

I cannot too highly praise the efficient treatment which was given my son. I consider he received equally as good care and attention as he could have received in any of the best hospitals in New York City.

I also desire to commend the doctors and nurses for their efficiency and attention.

Yours very sincerely, ERNEST J. H. AMY.

Serious View of Mail Delay.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

If "military red tape" is keeping our soldiers without word from home, and ourselves with no news from them for months together, those responsible for such an abuse should be promptly investigated and checked, no matter where the blow shall fall or who shall suffer.

My own experience leads me to think that much of the trouble may originate in our own Post Office. Three of my sons are serving our country. Two are now in France, one of them with the Red Cross in Paris, the other a member of the Marine Corps near or at the front. The former gets his mail through the Paris branch of a New York bank, while the other is addressed through the A. E. F.

I write to each about once a week, but a late cable from Paris and a soldier's card from "somewhere in France" tell the same story of five weeks or more with no word from home. One wonders if "military red tape" is wholly to blame. For the sake of our boys we parents want a satisfactory answer to this vexed and burning question.

Brooklyn, May 16, 1918. M. M. S.

Trouble with Cuban Mails.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The letter of "K. J." under date of May 14, voices well the attitude of many other people in regard to Cuban mail. We are all willing to submit to all reasonable inconveniences in postal matters, or otherwise, that may directly further the cause of the Allies in the war. But it is hard to see how delays in mail between Cuba and the United States can be of material benefit in the prosecution of the war.

Between Dec. 1 and now, my personal mail has been most irregular between here and Cuba. One correspondent (writing always on only personal and family matters) has written me fourteen letters, of which I have received only four. Another friend wrote three letters, of which I received only one. And an important business letter was sent me by another person, which did not reach me. These we know about, and one never knows what others may have been sent and not received.

H. F. GONZALEZ.

New York, May 18, 1918.

A Daring Italian Exploit.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I notice in this morning's papers that the Italians have accomplished the most extraordinarily daring feat of entering the strongly fortified and almost inaccessible Harbor of Pola and succeeded in blowing up one of the largest Austrian battleships. This was only a repetition of another equally daring exploit on the night of Dec. 9-10 when they blew up the Wien and badly crippled another cruiser in the Harbor of Trieste, and recently a transport in Durazzo.

Italy has done more than her share in this war, and the disaster that befell her last Fall was to be blamed on the lack of assistance on the part of her allies. Italy has fought this war gallantly, against great odds, accomplishing wonders in both mountain and sea warfares. Why not cheer her up whenever possible by giving her at least consideration and moral support equal to the other allies!

"SQUARE DEAL."

Aviation Casualties.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Reading all the war news daily in your so fair-minded paper I was glad to see you are taking up the matter of the large number of casualties of recent dates in the different aviation fields.

Are we training our boys for actual flight too rapidly? Are the officers in charge permitting their youthful fearlessness and enthusiasm to lead them forward too rapidly? Are our flying machines what they should be?

We women are doing our share in giving our boys and in many other ways. Is our Government safeguarding our most precious possessions—our sons—in every way possible?

A MOTHER.

FORTUNATE AUSTRALIA.

Though Spared Many Burdens, She Does Her Part in the War.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your paper of May 9 I noticed a letter in which a paragraph is quoted from a letter received from Sydney, Australia. The letter says that there are no "meatless or wheatless days" there and also says that "the city is full of Easter country folk and money flowing like water."

Surely when there is such an enormous surplus of wheat in Australia, which has practically been going to waste owing to lack of transportation, it would be very absurd to have wheatless days. I conclude the same would apply to the meat situation. I am sure that when it is found necessary for Australia to follow the lead of the United States and Canada regarding food conservation she will not be proven a slacker.

With regard to conscription, it should be remembered that in no other country has the question of conscription been put to the people to decide. Perhaps, had there been a referendum in either Canada or the United States, results might possibly have been just as disastrous.

As to the matter of the country people who spend lavishly when they visit Sydney and other cities, I have no argument to offer, excepting that, if they did not spend generously of their wealth, trade must necessarily suffer very considerably as a result. It must not be forgotten that Australia, owing to her present rather isolated position on account of shortage of shipping, is very dependent upon her own resources, and it seems a very fortunate thing that there are so many wealthy people to help her through this crisis. These "country folk," to the best of my belief, have given very largely, as is only right, to England and her allies, as well as spending their money in the various cities of Australia.

I think I know a good deal of the subject, as I am an Australian by birth, and have lived there until recently. Surely all must agree that, in spite of conscription having been turned down, Australia has responded splendidly to the call of her mother country, though many thousands of miles away, being practically at the other end of the world.

The Germans in Finland.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

You published on May 15 Santeri Nuorteva's views on the Finnish question. In those views lurks the most insidious foreign Bolshevism that is being perpetrated in America today. Signing himself the "Representative in the United States of the Provisional Revolutionary Government of Finland," he is in reality the leader of a party of mischievous Finns who, for the last two months, have been making collections among their number in this country to provide the Red Guard in Finland with arms and ammunition, so that they might destroy the last vestige of law and order remaining in that luckless country.

Mr. Nuorteva accuses the forces of decency in Finland of being pro-German. The fact that Prussia's heel is on the neck of a prostrate land proves nothing today save the helplessness of the one and the ruthlessness of the other.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Santeri Nuorteva, who styles himself "Representative in the United States of the Revolutionary Government of Finland"—which, by the way, is not a "government" at all but a lawless mob—now professes hatred of Germany and a desire to see her defeated. But it was the same Mr. Nuorteva who so loudly supported the majority Socialists at St. Louis in their infamous attack on America, and who joined in pledging that party to resist the selective draft and all war measures. He bitterly assailed John Spargo and other loyal Socialists. In the last city campaign he supported Morris Hillquit.

General Maurice.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A letter in THE TIMES this morning under the head "Maurice's Blunder" offered the inquiry, Where is Wellington? To that query, if made, the answer were swift and decisive: Wherever the fight is thickest; wherever the line was most vulnerable and vital, from the retreat at Mons, during which the French flank was covered, to the offensive of March, when the deadly thrust was parried, where British battalions fought German divisions, and fought them to a standstill.

If the writer of that letter will take the trouble to read the history of the war carefully, he will find there were many occasions when reinforcements were sent to the British front or the French front to tide over a critical period without any "definite obligation" or generalissimo co-ordination.

Enough has been written, said, and sung about this Maurice episode by politicians and newspaper correspondents, but when the history of this war shall have been written by military historians with true perspective and inward sight into the devious ways of War Cabinets, both home and abroad, many things will be revealed to us.

THE MYSTIC.

"Thou wilt make me to understand Wisdom secretly."

Thou makest me to understand—
But secretly! Not my right hand,
Nor left, nor kin of closest ties,
May I of certain Truth advise
Which Thou, at moments, dost impart—
Not to my mind, but to my heart!

There is no fear that, indiscreet,
Wisdom thus lodged I might repeat;
For not in words of any speech
Its intimation Thou dost teach!
(Yet, grant to me, that I express
Some sign thereof—or more or less—
A touch, a deed, that has its seal,
So may some other know—or feel!)

Thy Message comes with sweet access
Of tender joy—of blessedness,
Like the new zephyr's sudden birth,
At evening on the sultry earth,
To breathe the lips of fainted flowers:
Thus, vitally . . . but, not all hours,
It comes, nor that my choice might name;
Nor for desert, or any claim
Of excellence, worth such reward;
Nor when I am on wistful guard—
But secretly . . . and, oftenest,
At the gray dawn, when Sleep hath blessed
Deplenished powers, and then retires
Ere day shall blow abroad its fires.

A FRENCH OFFICER'S OPINION OF "LE FEU."

That Picture of the French Soldier and Life in the French Army Wholly Rejected by a Veteran.

A French soldier's hostile opinion of Barbusse's book, "Under Fire," was voiced in an article published recently in The Chicago Tribune. The author, Major L. C. Eckenfelder, is an Alsatian, who had served in the French Army at the front and came to the United States on a mission for the French Government. He writes:

"I am a French soldier. I fought in this war during three years. The first six months I was a cavalry officer, after which, in answer to a request for volunteers, I made a demand to fight in an infantry regiment. During one year I was a company commander, and during seventeen months I commanded a battalion. I spent most of that time in the trenches in Argonne, at Verdun, and north of the Aisne. In the latter sector I had the honor of leading my battalion over the top in a difficult operation, with much success—success due mainly, as it was acknowledged then, to the pure enthusiasm of the soldiers, their perfect discipline, and their devotion to their officers.

"During these months I lived among my men. I loved them, and in return they gave me proofs of affection. I pretend to know something about the war, the trenches, the French poilus, and that is the reason why today I give my opinion on Barbusse's book, "Under Fire." Everybody else is doing it, anyhow. I meet so many old ladies, so many college professors, so many journalists who tell me 'This book is the real representation of war.' And then I cannot help wondering, How do they know?

"Barbusse has certainly a great talent for the realistic representation of mud, filth, bad smells, (so much so that one has the impression that he was born to be a scavenger). He certainly did not leave undescribed any hardships, misery, toil. He delighted in showing the soldiers, 'pitiful wretches and savages as well, brutes, robbers, and dirty devils * * * having every evil instinct save none, mischief developed into lustful cruelty, selfishness into ferocity, the hunger for enjoyment into a mania.'

"I cannot help remembering all the French soldiers with whom I lived, marched, and fought during months and months, as being good, average, honest human beings, and the way they kept the Germans at bay seems to be the best proof that they were fighting heartily for home and country. How this book was spread rapidly before the public is worth knowing. When it appeared, the sound part of the French press, such as Le Tempes, L'Echo de Paris, Le Petit Parisien, Le Victoire, &c., protested against the fact that the censorship did not stop it. The censorship was then under the care of Malvy, (by real name Malbach Levy, born in Austria,) who was Minister of the Interior and Caillaux's man. On the other hand, this infamous book was recommended very warmly by L'Humanité, a Socialist-Internationalist newspaper, and especially by the Bonnet Rouge newspaper 'defaitiste' financed by Caillaux and Bolo Pacha and managed by Alameida. The latter committed suicide in jail when tried for treason.

"The book, besides, was offered to the public with the words printed on the top, 'Prix de L'Academie Goncourt.' If you examine the records of the authors and writers who have composed this 'Académie Goncourt,' since its foundation, you will find out easily how deeply they were infected by the pacifist doctrines which poisoned our country before the war. Paul and Victor Marguerittte wrote a book in 1897, 'Le Désastre,' in which you find the same kind of spirit as in Barbusse's book. It is not surprising that Paul and Victor Marguerittte voted a reward to Barbusse.

"Where is Barbusse today? Certainly not in the trenches. Early in 1916 he was in Paris, sheltered in a quartermaster staff, (22me section C. O. A.) What kind of a soldier he was in the trenches I do not know, but, I dare say, I would not care to lead a platoon composed of soldiers of his like. * * * And I would loathe commanding a squad such as the one we read about.

"The opinions which we should have on patriotism are dictated to us by a barkeeper of the 'Throne Tavern,' a farm servant, a porter, a carter, a peddler, a newsboy, &c. You would believe after this enumeration that the French infantry is solely drawn from the proletariat. I am sorry to say that Barbusse lies when he says: 'Hardly any intellectuals, or men of the arts, or of wealth, during the war will have risked their faces only at the loophole, &c.'

"When Barbusse does not lie openly, he lies hypocritically. I refer to the fact that he never mentions the presence of an officer living among the men. Did you suppose that the French infantry won the battle of the Marne and repulsed the Germans at Verdun only with the men of the stamp of Barbusse's Volpatte, Paradis, Pepin, and Conon led by Corporal Bertrand—Corporal Bertrand, who assumes admiration for only one man in the world, Liebknecht?

"I remember when, on April 16, last, my battalion on the morning of a great battle was preparing to jump over the parapet. I went through the trenches to see if everybody was ready before going myself to my place at the head of the battalion. I shook hands with many of the soldiers, who looked at me for the last time affectionately; their officers were among them; I felt everywhere a wave of sacred brotherhood, devotion, feeling of duty, grim determination—nothing like the abject description of the same situation which you may find in this book. Part of the officers were killed during the battle, and they were buried close by the following day. One of them was a young priest, a company commander named Marck. He was beloved by his men. When we were relieved on April 20, those men went across to his grave. Nobody could stop them. They disinterred the corpse and carried it with them wrapped in canvas, though we had a very hard march of ten miles in the mud during the night, pitch dark, and under a continual bombardment. Those men wanted to give to the chief they loved a solemn funeral.

"That feeling of affection between men and officers gives to a regiment an atmosphere which purposely is not described in the Barbusse book. Barbusse is more than an unbeliever, he is a bitter enemy of every belief and shows it when he says, speaking about a priest orderly, 'I remember the time when he exasperated me so much by his dissertation on France and the Virgin Mary.' Barbusse does not like people having opinions different from his own. He lies again when he writes, 'For you know, parsons with knapsacks on, I haven't seen a devil of a lot of 'em, have you? * * * Nor me, either. In the papers, but not here.' I must say that in all the battalions of infantry I came across I knew many priests with knapsacks. I shall never forget that on the date mentioned before, waiting for the signal of the attack under a terrific bombardment, I saw one of them close to me, a young curate, a private in the machine gun company; all his comrades loved him for his bravery, his devotion to all of them. There was another young priest in my battalion besides, a stretcher bearer, who was killed that day picking up the wounded on the battlefield. Of course Barbusse would not mention such things.

"How could a battalion achieve any good work with a spirit as hateful as the one which you breathe in the squad of Barbusse? He represents that particular squad as being composed of inferior physical and mental types, repulsive human beings, marked only by hardship and sufferings, speaking only and entirely a low kind of slang. We have, to be sure, a special trench slang developed by the war, but not of the vile type he describes. His characters invariably mix this Barbusse made slang with curses and insults. The language of the real poilus is picturesque and lively; the vocabulary of that squad is only filthy. But it appears that it is necessary that the poilus should employ only 'big words.'

"And now to complete the picture of those poor specimens Barbusse wants to throw some mud on their wives. You will find in the chapter 'The Doorway' a soldier named Poterloo is possessed of the idea to go through the German trenches to Lens, where his wife is living in their home, prisoner of the Germans since August, 1914. He gets acquainted with the German soldiers of the opposite trench, who procure him a German uniform, and he goes with them to Lens. Well, for any one who knows what the trenches are this episode is absolutely impossible; no use even to discuss it, it is ridiculous. But the idea is that Poterloo must go in front of his home and see through the opened door his own wife enjoying herself with two German N. C. O.'s. What does he want to prove? Does he want to add to the misery of the thousand French soldiers who have their wives in the invaded country? That is disgusting.

"But here we are; we must all say that Barbusse is 'an immortal genius and a benefactor of humankind,' as says a critic in a weekly newspaper, the Nation, 'this is the greatest of the books that voice the new soul of France.' Well, then, the old soul of France is good enough for us; we do not need a new one."

FRENCH MASONS IN THE WAR

Co-operation with Those in Service from the United States.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In THE NEW YORK TIMES of Sunday, May 12, Charles Johnston renews his attack upon French Masonry which he instituted in THE TIMES of Feb. 24. In his first article Mr. Johnston denounced French Freemasonry as pacifist and pro-German. He declared that Masonry stood behind Caillaux and others in treasonable conspiracies directed toward ending the war and bringing about a German peace. This is not true. He accounted for this by stating that Caillaux was the dominant power in French Masonry. This is not true. He declared that French Freemasonry is atheistical and anti-clerical. This is not true.

To M. Raymond's calm and convincing denial on behalf of the Supreme Council of the Ancient Accepted Scottish Rite and of the Grand Lodge of France—in which denial he included the Grand Orient in his general defense—Mr. Johnston replies in THE TIMES of May 12, utterly ignoring or forgetful of his accusations against French Masonry, and merely harking back to 1877 and 1904, in similarly groundless charges that "have nothing to do with the case."

It is ancient history that Freemasonry everywhere is opposed to the union of Church and State in Government; and no better evidence could be given of the united and whole-hearted loyalty of the French people than is afforded in the forgetfulness of all such differences and the union of all efforts manifested in the French Republic of today.

The charge that French Freemasonry is atheistic originated forty years ago, and has as little foundation in truth as the similar accusations that have been made against Freemasonry in general, in America as much as elsewhere, during the last one hundred years.

The letter from M. Corneau, President of the Grand Orient of France, in THE TIMES of May 13, thoroughly confirms the statement previously made by M. Raymond.

Thousands of Freemasons of the United States, who are now in France in the army and navy service of this Government, are finding hospitable and helpful welcome from the Freemasons of France, and the following announcement from the Secretary of the Masonic Bureau for Allied Armies in France, sent from Paris on March 20, shows not only the war spirit of French Masonry, but also the welcome they give to the American Army entering into the war:

> The worldwide conflict for the liberation of oppressed nations and for the triumph of the principles of justice and liberty in which a good many allied countries now take an effective part has assembled on French soil most of the glorious armies fighting for right, who are now to be joined by an imposing contingent of your noble country.
> In the first rank of these gallant troops, their arm strengthened by their ideals, we are sure to find, more numerous every day, Freemasons of the United States of America, and we have thought of offering them, as soon as they arrive in the French capital, a warm, fraternal welcome becoming among brother Masons.
>
> Under the auspices of the Grand Orient of France our worshipful lodge La Fraternite des Peuples has formed a Reception Committee for Masons belonging to allied countries, with its seat at the Temple of the Grand Orient, 16 Rue Cadet, a real Masonic home. Here our brethren will always find devoted Masons, speaking their language, ready to answer all inquiries and furnish any useful information they may require, to assure them fraternal help in all circumstances, to keep in touch by corresponding with them, to visit them in case they are ill or wounded, to serve as intermediary between them and their relatives, &c.
>
> The usefulness of this central bureau will at once be apparent to you, not only for our brethren in the army, but also to those near and dear to them who in their thoughts will follow them across the Atlantic, and will know that they are not left to themselves and abandoned among the dangers of everyday life, but that a fraternal and helping hand is always extended to them in case of need.

Of itself this is a just rebuke to Mr. Johnston, and emphatic disproof of Mr. Johnston's charge that French Freemasonry is pacifist and pro-German.

APPEAL FOR MILLION FOR NAVAL RELIEF

Rear Admiral Charles O'Neil Issues Statement Showing Needs of Society.

OVER $1,000,000 FOR POLES

Art War Relief Committee Sends 46,731 Surgical Dressings to Allies in Europe.

The Navy Relief Society, which is officially recognized by the United States Government, its headquarters being in the Navy Department at Washington, needs an endowment of at least $1,000,000 in order successfully to carry on the work that it is doing in behalf of the mothers, widows, and children of the men of the navy and Marine Corps who give up their lives in the service of the country. Rear Admiral Charles O'Neil, U. S. N., who succeeded the late Admiral George Dewey as President of the society, submitted last week a report covering the activities of the society during the first year of this country's participation in the great war.

"As this is practically the anniversary of Admiral Dewey's death," Admiral O'Neil says in his report, "it is well for us to call to mind his services in behalf of this society and his earnest desire for its welfare and success, but above all his deep sympathy for the families of the men of the navy and Marine Corps who died in the service of their country. His devotion to the flag and to the navy in which he had so honorably and gallantly served should be an inspiration to us, and we should resolve to give our best efforts faithfully to administer the affairs and promote the interests of the society with which he was so closely identified and in which he took so deep an interest.

Trustees for Fatherless Children.

"Let us remember that we are not only trustees for the money which is intrusted to us, but in a larger sense we are the trustees for the fatherless children, and the widows and mothers of men of the United States Navy and the Marine Corps who die in the service of the country. It is the unwritten law of this society that every dollar intrusted to it, except for life memberships, which goes into its permanent endowment fund, and the least possible amount for administration, shall be used exclusively for relief purposes, and I trust we shall always rigidly adhere to that principle.

"During the year 1917, the fourteenth since the incorporation of the society, and the most eventful one in the history of the country, events of transcendent importance have transpired, and today we find ourselves involved in a war, not of our seeking, with a foreign and formidable foe, in which our navy must play a prominent part."

Of the work of the society in 1917 and the tasks that are ahead, Admiral O'Neil says:

Our disbursement for the year 1917 practically equaled our receipts, and I regret to say that we did not add a dollar to our interest-bearing fund. Fortunately for the society some of the auxiliaries have been alive to the importance of preparedness, and I am pleased to announce that since Jan. 1 I have received from the Massachusetts Auxiliary the handsome sum of $100,000; from the New York Auxiliary $20,000, and lesser sums from other sources, which will enable us to continue our relief work and add a considerable sum to our interest-bearing fund, as we may also expect contributions and renewals of membership from the ships of the navy and elsewhere. It took this society thirteen years to accumulate $100,000, though during that period it paid to beneficiaries $116,536, whereas the Massachusetts Auxiliary raised a like sum in one year.

Fund of $1,000,000 Needed.

The society should have an interest-bearing fund of at least $1,000,000 to enable it to continue its work regularly without having to make frequent appeals for more memberships and for money to be raised by means of entertainments, &c. If we had more money we could and would make greater allotments to beneficiaries; as it is, we give as liberally as our resources permit.

On April 6, 1917, when war was declared, the personnel of the navy numbered 64,000 men and 4,376 officers. On Dec. 31 of the same year it numbered 166,939 men and 6,912 officers. In addition, there are 23,380 marines, with 1,218 officers, to which must be added 54,000 reserve men and officers, and 16,500 men and 856 officers of national volunteers, a total of 280,000 in round numbers. If the hospital apprentices are added, we have in the neighborhood of 300,000 men in the navy today.

These figures alone indicate the necessity for this society and the great responsibility imposed upon it by the war in which we are engaged. This fourfold expansion of the navy would under normal conditions probably increase our list of beneficiaries fourfold, to say nothing of the casualties due to war, and yet we have no assurance that our resources will be increased in like proportion.

While thus far the death lists have not been as great as might have been apprehended, the possibilities which confront us should stimulate us to use every effort to be prepared to meet the emergencies which may at any time arise, and we must exert ourselves to add to our resources, that when necessity does arise we shall be in a position to render prompt and substantial relief to those who have lost their means of support and are in dire distress.

While the Government has made liberal provision by means of war-risk insurance, death compensation and family allowances for the dependents of men who die in active service, there will always be a considerable number who will not profit by it, especially in the early days of bereavement when it is most necessary.

Dependent on Auxiliaries.

As most of our money is derived from fees for membership, much of which is contributed by the officers and enlisted men of the navy and Marine Corps, and from entertainments given under the auspices of our auxiliaries, the importance of the latter cannot be overestimated, and the reports of the auxiliaries, soon to be published in our annual report, show conclusively how dependent the society is upon their efforts.

Some new auxiliaries have been formed during the last year, the most notable of which is in Illinois, known as the Great Lakes Auxiliary, its headquarters being at the Great Lakes Training Station in that State, where several thousand members have been enrolled; another is at Milwaukee, Wis., and still another is being formed at Detroit, Mich., which is particularly gratifying, as heretofore we have depended principally for new members on the seaboard States, where people are more closely in touch with the navy and Marine Corps through our ships and naval stations, but now that men for the navy and Marine Corps are drawn from all over the country, we may hope to obtain many members from the interior, and especially from the great centres of population near the Great Lakes and rivers of the Central States.

Checks for the work of the Navy Relief Society should be made payable to "Assistant Treasurer, Navy Relief Society," and sent to "The Navy Relief Society, Navy Building, Washington, D. C." Edward T. Stotesbury is the Treasurer, and Captain E. J. Dorn, U. S. N., the Assistant Treasurer of the society.

Armenian and Syrian Relief.

New contributions to the fund of the American Committee for Armenian and Syrian Relief amount to more than $251,000. In the little California town of Claremont reports to the committee show that the population has averaged $2 per person for the relief of sufferers in the Near East. In Derby Line, Vt., out of a population of 466 a fund of $425 was contributed.

A recent cablegram from agents of the committee in the Near East refers as follows to conditions in Persia:

The sum of $[illegible] is accepted with thanks. There is a great epidemic of typhoid and typhus, and famine conditions are unexpectedly growing worse. Other Persian cities are similarly affected. The prices of foodstuffs are enormous, and they are almost unobtainable. An additional $100,000 should be sent, if possible. More could be used.

Cleveland H. Dodge is the Treasurer of the American Committee for Armenian and Syrian Relief, the office of the committee being at 1 Madison Avenue. These new gifts of $100 or over have been acknowledged:

I write to tell you that I have safely received the splendid hospital supplies from the British War Relief Association, and I cannot tell you how grateful we are for such a very kind and useful contribution.

Please convey our most heartfelt thanks to your committee. We think it doubly generous in these times, when you now have your own hospitals and wounded to look after.

Our little hospital has been open since October, 1914, and we have lately increased our number of beds from twenty-five to thirty-three, so your gift comes in most opportunely.

This association solicits donations of money, these funds being applied to the purchase of materials which are made into surgical dressings, bandages, &c. Henry Clews is Treasurer of the association.

Aid for Training Camps.

An appropriation of $50,000, constituting an additional contribution to the Training Camp Activities Commission of the War and Navy Departments, brings the total contributions for that work from the American Red Cross war fund to $300,000. The original contribution was one of $200,000, the appropriation therefor having been made on Sept. 20, 1917. On Jan. 9 last a further contribution of $50,000 was made. The third contribution, just made, was the result of a request by Raymond Fosdick, Chairman of the Commission on Training Camp Activities, asking for this additional help. The request was accompanied by a statement showing the auxiliary funds needed to finance the commission's activities to June 30, 1918.

All the money contributed to the Army and Navy Training Camp Activities Commission will be expended in the interests of the soldiers and sailors of the United States.

Sedgwick, Treasurer, 107 East Thirty-seventh Street, New York.

COLUMBIA REFUSES PENSION TO CATTELL

Trustees Also Decline to Reopen Hearing for Dismissed Professor.

SUIT IS NOW EXPECTED

University Had Held His Anti-Draft Agitation Hurt the Institution.

The Trustees of Columbia University have refused a request by Dr. J. McKeen Cattell, who was dismissed from the Columbia Faculty last October on a charge of encouraging disloyalty, for a rehearing of his case and for his retirement on a pension, in view of the fact that he had been in the service of the university for a year more than the twenty-five-year period at the time that he was dismissed.

Dr. Cattell, who was a professor in the Department of Psychology, was found guilty by the Trustees of sending letters to Congressmen urging them to vote against sending drafted men to Europe and of other acts of agitation, held by the Trustees to have done "grave injury to the university." Professor Henry Wadsworth Longfellow Dana was dismissed at the same time for agitating against the war.

Dr. Cattell's action was taken as the forerunner of legal proceedings to attempt to force a public hearing of the charges against him and his retirement on a pension. The correspondence, which has been printed in the Bulletin of the American Association of University Professors, is as follows:

Garrison-on-Hudson, N. Y., March 26, 1918.

To the Trustees of Columbia University in the City of New York.

Sirs: I beg to submit to you the following requests:

(1) That the proceedings which resulted in the passage of the resolution removing me from the Chair of Psychology on Oct. 1, 1917, be reopened, and that at a hearing before an impartial body and on properly specified charges I be given opportunity to defend myself against the accusation of "treason," "sedition," and "opposition to the enforcement of the laws of the United States."

(2) That my salary be paid for the present academic year.

(3) That, in accordance with the terms of the statutes of the university, I be retired from active service on July 1, with the pension due me.

Presentation of the first request has been postponed until the American Association of University Professors had made its report. The association has now investigated the charges, and on a full review of the facts has stated its conclusions in the following words:

"It is a grave abuse of the power of dismissal when it is used to deny to members of university Faculties the enjoyment of their fundamental constitutional rights as citizens; and an institution in which dismissal is possible upon such a ground as was officially put forward in this case is one in which adequate guarantees of academic freedom and manifestly lacking. It is in some respects a still graver abuse of power when administrative officers or governing boards attempt by their official declarations publicly to attach the stigma of treasonable or seditious conduct to an individual teacher because of acts of his which are in fact neither treasonable nor seditious.

"When charges are brought against a member of a college or university Faculty upon any ground, the proceedings should, as a matter of course, be strictly judicial in character, and should be in accord with the principle of Faculty responsibility. In other words, the person accused should be entitled to have the charges against him stated in writing in specific terms, and to have a fair trial on those charges before either the judicial committee of the Faculty or a joint committee composed of an equal number of professors and Trustees, which should render definite findings, stating, in case of a decision adverse to the accused, the precise acts on which the decision is based. The importance of maintaining these procedural safeguards against hasty or unjust action is, if possible, even greater at a time of popular excitement and heightened passions than under normal conditions."

These findings of the American Association of University Professors are in consonance with Anglo-Saxon conceptions of elementary justice. The charges on which I was dismissed after twenty-six years of continuous service as a full professor of Columbia University are exceedingly grave in character, and are by law made crimes punishable by the most severe penalties. A proceeding by which a body of men undertake to adjudge a university professor guilty of such heinous crimes without trial and to publish its findings broadcast is revolting to the sense of fairness and of justice. It cannot be allowed to stand.

My second request is based on the fact that my tenure of office was at least from year to year—i. e., from July 1 to June 30.

As to my request for retirement on pension on July 1 next, I beg to remind you that I had completed the full period of twenty-five years of service as professor of Columbia University prior to Oct. 1, 1917, and that on the completion of this period my right to the pension provided by the statutes of the university became an accrued and vested right of which I cannot be deprived by any subsequent acts on my part or by any resolution of the Trustees.

In this connection I desire to call your attention to a letter written to me by the President of the university on May 9, 1913, stating that I became entitled to the pension under section 67 of the statutes of July 1, 1913. Respectfully, (Signed.) J. McKEEN CATTELL.

The Trustees of Columbia University in the City of New York.
John B. Pine, Clerk.

63 Wall Street, New York, April 3, 1918.

J. McKeen Cattell, Esq., Garrison-on-Hudson, N. Y.

Dear Sir: I am instructed by the Trustees of Columbia University to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of March 26, and to inform you that they decline to comply with each and every of the requests therein contained. Yours truly, (Signed.) JOHN B. PINE, Clerk.

At the time Professors Cattell and Dana were dismissed, Frank D. Fackenthal, Secretary of the university, made this explanation:

"If Professor Cattell had been retired it would have meant that he would still receive a pension and so be in a manner connected with the university. That is not the case, however. The two men were expelled."

This Is the Song the Colonel Likes
"We'll Lick the Kaiser If It Takes Us Twenty Years."

You will like to too, and you will sing it and whistle it, for it is catchy and full of swing and go. Here are Colonel Roosevelt's words about the song, in Carnegie Hall:

"I like that song. I like the way you people seem to like it. But I want to feel that your approval comes from deep in the heart. I am for it. It is the real stuff. I hope you will back it up."

Buy a copy, take it home and have her, or yourself, try it on the piano.

Take Colonel Roosevelt's word for it. All money realized from the sale of this song will back up the Four Minute Men's fight against German whispering propaganda.

For sale at music stores and department stores, or at Four Minute Men Headquarters, 53 East 44th Street, corner Vanderbilt Avenue. Out of town music lovers can get it by enclosing stamps to above address. It will be sent postage free.

Price, only 25 cents.

CUDGEL TRIUMPHS IN THRILLING RACE

Western Son of Broomstick Battles to Fore in Kings County Handicap.

SPUR IN SECOND PLACE

Cheers Great Conqueror of Omar Khayyam as He Passes Thunderer and Then Butler's Crack.

Cudgel, the Western son of Broomstick, for which Commander J. K. L. Ross of the Canadian Navy gave $30,000 last Fall, won the Kings County Handicap at Jamaica yesterday in a race that thoroughly tested his gameness. His owner, who saw the great four-year-old run for the first time, said after the event that the one thrill as he saw Cudgel sprinting through the stretch was worth the money he gave for him.

The crowd, which was the largest seen at the Jamaica track for many a long day, must have shared the feelings of the Canadian sportsman, for Cudgel was the first winner of the season to be greeted by a salvo of cheers, when he returned to the stand after his victory for the weighing out of his jockey, L. Lyke.

The critical racegoers who thronged the stands from end to end to the number of 12,000 realized that they saw a sturdy competitor for such a crack as Omar Khayyam, when the Western wonder came tearing along through the last quarter of a mile to pass the broken-down Thunderer, which had threatened in the Whitney colors, and then overtake James Butler's Spur and gain the hard-earned victory by the narrow margin of three-quarters of a length.

Cudgel carried 130 pounds, which is more weight than any other horse has borne successfully in this early handicap. The time of 1:46 1-5, though not a record, compared favorably with the average for the event.

Interest in Cudgel.

There was great curiosity to see Cudgel, which was the first horse to start in the colors of Commander Ross on a metropolitan track. His victory over Omar Khayyam at Pimlico had served to confirm the opinion of the Kentuckians that only his presence in the West prevented the three-year-old honors of last season being fought out by a trio of thoroughbreds, instead of being confined to Omar Khayyam and Hourless.

In the paddock the crowd was so great around his stall that only a fleeting glimpse could be obtained of the rugged lines that marked his undoubted strength, but when he paraded past the stand he elicited general admiration, though he is by no means as daintily formed as Thunderer, the Futurity winner of 1916, which came back to the races after a long rest as fit as Trainer Rowe could make him. Spur, the three-year-old champion of two years ago, also gained many admirers. He was of the same rugged type as Cudgel, and looked better than at any time last season.

The speculation was chiefly confined to the heavily weighted trio, but there were five others in the field, and all but the extreme lightweight, Green Gold, were admitted to have chances. In spite of heavy support for Thunderer and Spur, the public confidence in Cudgel was so great that he started an odds on favorite at 9 to 10.

It was a spectacular contest from start to finish, and the distance of a mile and a sixteenth gave the spectators a good view of the start, which took place in front of the grandstand. There was a little disorder after the field of eight was aligned, for which Andrew Miller's Ticket was responsible. He kicked and wheeled, but it was only a few minutes before Starter Tribe had the field straight and the flag fell to a good start, with the lightweights racing like mad for an advantageous position at the first turn.

Stargazer Takes Lead.

Macomber's Stargazer rushed into the lead going around the turn, with Thunderer, Green Gold, Gex, and Spur in close attendance. Lyke appeared to be in no undue hurry with Cudgel, and while Stargazer was leading Green Gold by a length in the back stretch the top weight was being rated along in fifth place with his head under a pull.

Going around the second turn Shuttinger shot Spur into the lead, while Cudgel moved up a little under gentle persuasion and was in fourth place. Just before making the stretch turn Robinson made his move with Thunderer, and this full sister to Regret shot into a lead of two lengths so quickly that the race appeared to be over. There was a weak spot, however, in the former two-year-old champion, and his tender legs gave way, so that Spur was again left in command.

Spur was full of running, and at least four lengths ahead of Cudgel at the top of the stretch, but the Western champion began to run in earnest, and the supporters of both horses yelled wildly as he gained on the leader at every stride. Then, as the steadily increasing pace of Cudgel forecast the result, the crowd began to shout in accord for the top weight.

Lyke was riding his mount hardest, and his mount was straight as a string as he ranged alongside of Spur at the sixteenth pole. But Cudgel, with victory in sight, did not falter, and he kept his even giant stride until he had safely passed the judges.

Thunderer's breakdown was so effectual that he was unable to withstand the rush through the stretch of R. T. Wilson, Jr.'s Straight Forward, and this son of Star Shoot finished so strongly that he was only a length and a half behind Spur. There was a gap of six lengths between Thunderer and the rest of the racers, with Gex, Stargazer, Ticket, and Green Gold finishing in the order named. The defeat of Thunderer was explained when he limped back to the stand after the race, a very lame horse.

Commander Ross was delighted at the result of his first visit to a New York track. He is stationed at Ottawa, but said that he would come back to New York as often as possible during the season. He spoke of the necessity of breeders keeping up the good work of supplying thoroughbreds, with a view to the urgency of the war, as well as the sport of racing. The Canadian has his own stud at Vercheres, Quebec, where he has thirty-seven brood mares.

In addition to the big race there was an all-around program of more than usual interest. Harry Payne Whitney's colors were carried here for the first time this season in the opening race for two-year-old fillies. His Purling, a daughter of Peter Pan, made her bow to the racing public, and in the hands of Robinson was only galloping at the end to defeat the 11-to-10 favorite, Nelle Yorke.

Old G. M. Miller ran one of his good races and confounded the talent by winning the second event at a mile and seventy yards, just lasting long enough to gain the verdict by a nose from extreme outsider, Pierre-A-Feu. Robinson rode his second winner when A. Simon's Home Sweet Home won the third race handily. Etruscan, the early favorite for the fifth race, was displaced from that honor by the Quincy's Stable's Compadre.

There was reason in the change, as Compadre galloped away from Etruscan and won by six lengths. George D. Widener provided another surprise in the closing event for three-year-olds, his imported Colt Abadane winning by three lengths from Nepperhan, with Royal Ensign in third place. The favorite, T. P. Thorne's Sycamoor, finished sixth.

ARMY NINE IS IN FRONT.

Team of Substitutes Defeats Johns Hopkins by 3 to 1.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., May 18.—In a loosely-played game Army won from Johns Hopkins University today, 3 to 1. The Army's lineup got a severe jolt when Hans Lobert, the coach, was obliged to use many substitutes in place of the upper class men who are unable to play. The two plebe pitchers used were wild as hawks, and forced in the collegians' only run.

The score by innings:

STEARNS SHINES IN POLY PREP VICTORY

Wins Sprinting Honors in the Schoolboy Track Games at Horace Mann Field.

RUN AWAY WITH MEET

Brooklyn Lads Lead Other Private School Competitors by Overwhelming Margin of 121 Points.

By the overwhelming margin of 121 points over the score of its nearest rival, Poly Prep School of Brooklyn yesterday won the second annual athletic meet of the Athletic Association of Private Schools of New York City, held at Horace Mann Field, 246th Street and Broadway. Youthful representatives of this Brooklyn school, one of the eleven schools of the association which had representation, corralled the commanding score of 164 points, and their nearest competitors in the point tabulation were the athletes of Horace Mann School. The latter had forty-three points to its credit. Tied for third honors were the schoolboys of St. Francis Prep, Brooklyn, and Barnard School, each with twenty-one points.

The meet, from start to finish, gave the Poly Prep schoolboys a field day through the afternoon. They virtually "ran away" with everything in sight and at no time was their overwhelming majority of points in the battle for the premier cup even seriously threatened. At the end they had a score forty points better than their tally for last year's meet. A small crowd witnessed the performances, and there was, therefore, little cheering or enthusiasm, except for that displayed by the other participants in the events. This was, however, voluminous enough in the early afternoon, as victory after victory was registered for Poly Prep. When it became evident that the Brooklyn athletes had the cup in their possession, however, the cheering became an unknown quantity and the events were run off with monotonous, machinelike precision, until near the end there was hardly a ripple of enthusiasm.

A program of twenty-eight events was run off, starting early and continuing to late afternoon. Students who had not reached their twelfth birthday, competing in the sub-junior class, vied with the competitors in the junior, novice, and senior class, the latter branch of the sport including athletes up to 21 years of age.

In the twenty-eight events, Poly Prep victories were registered in seventeen, nine of these being in track competition and eight in field events. This gave the Brooklyn school the upper hand in the meet, and to it was added numerous point placements, with an occasional event where Poly Prep representatives occupied the leading places uninterrupted. This was particularly demonstrated in the junior pole vault, where three Poly Prep representatives finished tied for first laurels, at 7 feet 1 inch. They disdained jumping off the tie, being content to gain the three important point positions for their school.

Leading the victorious school's competitors was J. Stearns, who captured three first prizes in the senior class events, and finished third in another. He was the individual star of the day. He won the 100-yard dash, 220-yard dash, and 440-yard run, and gained third in the running broad jump for novices. Aiding Stearns materially was Leeming Jelliffe, the Poly Prep star swimmer.

Jelliffe accounted for two victories, gaining laurels in the novice pole vault and the 220-yard hurdles race for seniors, in addition to a second placement in the senior pole vault. In both vaults Jelliffe's effort was nine feet. He gained his second place in the senior pole vault through luck at tossing a coin, for he was tied with S. Blundell, another factor in the Poly Prep landslide, who also negotiated nine feet in this event.

Another capable performer was found in Minakakis of Marquand School, who won both shotputting events. He threw the twelve-pound shot 36 feet 8½ inches, and his distance for the eight-pound weight was 43 feet 3¼ inches. In both events he was an easy winner over his rivals. In the sub-junior division W. Dunning gained laurels for Poly Prep, winning the fifty-yard dash, gaining second in both the running broad and running high jumps, and helping to bring a sub-junior relay victory to the triumphant Poly Prep team.

OUIMET LOSES TO TELLIER.

Brookline Professional Takes 36-Hole Match by Margin of 5 Up.

BOSTON, May 18.—Louis Tellier, professional of the Brookline Country Club, defeated Sergeant Francis Ouimet, Western open champion, in a thirty-six-hole golf match at the Woodland Golf Club by 5 up today. The proceeds of the game go to the athletic fund at Camp Devens, where Ouimet is stationed. The pair will meet again at the Brookline Country Club June 12.

Ouimet was decidedly off form, especially in his short game. At the end of the morning round Tellier was 4 up. He increased the margin at the twenty-seventh hole in the afternoon to 8 up.

TALCOTT IS MASTER OF TIGER BATSMEN

Yale Wins Baseball Series from Princeton by Taking Second Game, 2 to 0.

JERSEY MEN BATTLE HARD

Clever Pitching and Fast Fielding by Victors Twice Avert Possible Disaster at Hands of Guests.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, May 18.—Helpless before the pitching of Frank Talcott, Princeton today went down to defeat before Yale, for the second time this season. The Tigers were beaten 2 to 0, and, as Yale captured the first game, at Tigertown, 4 to 3, this afternoon's victory gives the Blue the annual series. Talcott held the visitors to four hits, one of them an accident.

Yale's fielding, although marked by two fumbles, was fast, and the batting of the Elis threatened runs in seven of the nine innings.

Captain Lyman's handling of several difficult grounders, his timely batting, Boyd's running catch of Stribbing's fly in the eighth, Parker's all-around game, and two long throws by Rogers, each of which nailed a Yale base runner at the plate, were features of an unusually brilliant game, which was witnessed by a crowd much smaller than Yale's usual annual meeting here with its ancient Jersey rival.

Taylor's fly, which Massey lost in the sun in the third inning, which went as a two-base hit, gave the Tigers their first opportunity. Taylor rounded third on Stribbing's out, but was marooned when Madden skied to Lyman. Madden, in the sixth, figured in the Tigers' nearest approach to tallying. Singling to centre, he took third on Lyman's poor throw of Horne's bounder. He attempted to cross the plate on the squeeze play, but ran into the hands of Catcher Holmes at the plate. No other Tiger reached the midway station.

Parker figured in Yale's first near approach to a score. In the opening inning he reached first on a single through the pitcher's box, took second on Holmes's sacrifice, and third on Taylor's fumble of Prann's grounder. Massey's strikeout and Talcott's roller to Bade ended the inning.

Although Massey singled and Gordon was passed in the fifth, a neat double play, Bade to Madden to Horne, snuffed out Yale's chances of scoring, and another killed off Yale runs in the sixth. Boyd was passed. Lyman scratched a single to Bade, and Parker's pass filled the bases. Holmes drove Boyd to the plate with a single, scoring Yale's second run, and Captain Lyman tried to follow him, but was nailed by Rogers's throw. Prann's fly to Rogers tempted Parker to try for home, but another throw by Rogers, completing a fast double play, throttled the effort.

Strickland, who entered the box in the seventh, held Yale safe till the eighth, when Gage opened with a single, Boyd sacrificed, Lyman singled, but Gage was thrown out at third by Thompson. Parker walked, but Holmes's fly to Trimble closed the rally.

EASY VICTORY FOR STEVENS

Temple University Team Beaten at Hoboken by 10 to 2 Score.

The Stevens baseball team had little difficulty in hammering out a 10 to 2 victory over the Temple University nine at Castle Point Field, Hoboken, yesterday. Stevens scored four runs in the first inning on three hits and a base on balls. This was followed by four more runs in the third and two in the eighth inning.

Temple scored their first run in the second inning on an error and a hit. The fielding of both teams was ragged and errors were frequent, especially on the Temple team.

PRINCETON FRESHMEN WIN.

Capture Honors in Annual Track and Field Championships.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., May 18.—The Princeton freshmen won the university track and field championships today in a meet well up to the usual standard, which was closely contested throughout and was not decided until the last event was over. The feature of the day was the hurdling of Carterman, who ran the 120 high hurdles in the fast time of 15 3-5 seconds, and who negotiated the low sticks in 24 4-5 seconds.

Erdman would probably have broken the Princeton record of 24 2-5 seconds in the low hurdles if he had not been thrown out of his stride by striking the third hurdle. He also took third place in the broad jump, and was the highest point scorer of the afternoon. Randolph Brown, a sophomore, was next in the point score with first place in both sprints. He ran the 100 in 10 1-5, and the 220 in 22 3-5 seconds.

COLUMBIA LOSES TO FRESHMAN PITCHER

Halloran Twirls Fordham to Victory Over Blue and White by 7 to 1 Score.

MAROON RALLY IN EIGHTH

Fusillade of Five Hits Nets Victors Six Runs When Score Is Tied—Lucey's Great Catch.

Fordham defeated the Columbia nine 7 to 1 on Fordham Field yesterday afternoon in the second clash between the two local rivals this season. The game was hard fought until the eighth inning. In this frame, the Bronx collegians started a heavy batting rally, getting five hits which, combined with a pass and some slow work in the Columbia infield, netted six runs and settled the issue in favor of Fordham.

Halloran, who was selected by Coach Keane to do the twirling for Fordham at the eleventh hour, when McQuade and Finn were unable to take their turn, proved the surprise of the game. The freshman was in fine form, allowing only five singles and yielding not a pass.

Tommy Farrell did good work in the five innings he worked for Columbia. He was forced to retire in favor of Koenig on account of a sore arm.

The fielding was the best seen at Fordham this season. Houlihan, for Columbia, made several good catches. In the eighth inning Dwyer, Coletti, and Lucey made stops that cut off sure hits. Lucey's catch was easily the fielding feature of the game. With the score tied at 1-1, Johnny Houch drove a terrific smash to deep centre. Lucey was on the run at the crack of the bat and caught the ball coming over his shoulder after a hard run.

In the second inning Fordham scored when Dwyer singled, stole second, went to third on an infield out, and scored on Keough's scratch single.

In the seventh, with two down, Clarke singled past Shankey, Wris hit safely over second, Halloran hit Koenig, filling the bases. Carroll grounded to Dwyer, who tried for a play at second and then was too late to get Carroll at first, Clarke scoring on the hit.

Columbia made two double plays which cut off Fordham's chances in the fifth and seventh innings.

TILDEN POUNDS WAY TO TENNIS VICTORY

Triumphs Over Bassford in the Final Round of Open Tourney on Harlem Court.

WINS IN STRAIGHT SETS

Philadelphian Hard Pressed at Times, but Gains the Laurels with Score 6—2, 7—5, 6—0.

Displaying much of the skill which has characterized his work of other years, William T. Tilden, 2d, of Philadelphia yesterday won the first of the sanctioned outdoor tennis fixtures of the season when he defeated Henry Bassford in the final round of the singles event of the Harlem Tennis Club's open tournament. In view of the fact that there has as yet been little time for practice the play of Tilden was of especially high calibre, and while Bassford put forth a sterling game in an effort to stay the victorious march of his rival, the Philadelphian succeeded in winning the match in straight sets at 6—2, 7—5, 6—0. The score of the last set fully indicates that Bassford was weakening, the element of fatigue entering into the contest to cause his complete overthrow. In the other two sets, however, he was a player to be feared, and Tilden was at times sorely pressed to maintain the upper hand.

In the second set, in fact, it seemed for a time as if Bassford would be able to pull it out of the fire. He came to the net and volleyed unerringly at sharp angles, and Tilden was often caught out of position for a return. Passing shots, too, flew from Bassford's racquet to points of vantage, and after the score had been 2 all, Bassford succeeded in gaining a lead at 5—3. In the next game he was at one time set point only to have the honor of a victory snatched away from him by the brilliant play of Tilden who, facing defeat in this clash, summoned all his reserve strategy and strength to the playing of an uphill struggle. How well he succeeded is shown by the score. He brought the match to deuce and won his own service to bring the set to 6—5. From then on the match was almost a romp for the Philadelphian. Bassford had played his limit and he could not do other than compete defensively during the rest of the contest. In the final game of the second set Bassford was broken through in a love game and the indications pointed to any easy triumph for Tilden.

Third Won in Straight Sets.

The latter opened the third set with a pretty bit of play that won the first game and swept along through four more without Bassford being able to interpose any serious opposition. In the final game Tilden was called upon to face a rally on the part of his antagonist, but it was not such as to really worry Tilden in view of the commanding lead which he had established. After going once to deuce the game reverted to Tilden and with it the match.

In many respects the game which Tilden set forth did not resemble largely his accustomed style of play. The one feature which has always stood out in the minds of spectators has been his severe service, a delivery that has been rated as harder to handle than that of Murray, McLoughlin, or any of the others who place such a premium on severity in serving the first ball. Yesterday this style of game was missing from Tilden's play. Only once in a while did he exert himself in serving, and even then the sphere was not propelled with such terrific force as usual. It seemed that Tilden did not have his customary control over this bullet delivery, but that is hardly the reason why it was not attempted more often. The Philadelphian, in the first place, did not need to bring his greatest strength into play, and, furthermore, he wished to conserve his arm as much as possible thus early in the season.

It was for this reason that the twist service was sent bounding from his racquet, and it appeared to be quite as difficult for Bassford to handle this as it was to return the extremely fast one. Tilden was not content to play the ordinary twist. He used an exaggerated form of the Amercan service, which almost reminded one of some of Kumagae's looping drives. The ball went high over the net and dropped so nearly straight down that the bound was extremely high. The result was that Bassford was frequently reaching over his head to make the returns. He was, therefore, often robbed of an opportunity to make a driving shot and had to be content to tap the ball across the barrier. Such strokes should have been easy returns for Tilden, and many of them were, but there was a tendency to errors on the part of the Philadelphian, which aided Bassford somewhat.

Winner's Chop Stroke Effective.

It was noticeable that in the first and second sets Bassford, who was driving with remarkable accuracy, played the ball steadily to Tilden's backhand. At first there was a bit of weakness in the latter's returns, but as he warmed to his task he employed a backhand chop stroke that proved exceedingly puzzling even on the clay court.

Doubtless the most discouraging feature from Bassford's point of view was the deliberate manner in which Tilden every now and then played him out of position and finally dropped a tantalizing shot just over the net when Bassford was far out in the deep court. These shots brought Bassford racing in toward the barrier, but it was seldom that he succeeded in reaching the ball for a return.

TO PLAY FOR CHURCH CUP.

Intercity Tennis Matches Will Be Held in Philadelphia.

The first tennis match between teams representing New York, Philadelphia, and Boston for the Church Cup will take place at the Merion Cricket Club in Philadelphia on June 7 and 8. Plans for starting this intercity competition last season were upset by the war, but under conditions now prevailing it is thought best to proceed with the events.

The trophy, given by George M. Church of Tenafly, N. J., is a perpetual prize, put up for annual competition between the cities named. The Presidents of the Longwood Cricket Club, the West Side Tennis Club, and the Merion Cricket Club are its trustees and are in charge of arrangements for the matches.

The articles of agreement provide that each city shall be represented by a team of not more than twelve players. There shall be six singles and three doubles matches; each match is three out of five sets. The trustees appoint committees to choose the teams, and also appoint a referee.

New York and Boston play on the first day, and the winner meets Philadelphia on the second day of the match. Richard Bishop, C. Johnson, and Nat Niles are selecting the Boston team; Frederick B. Alexander is choosing the players to represent New York, and Howard W. Lewis will name Philadelphia's representatives.

SHOCKER TUMBLES YANKS TO DEFEAT

Urban Avenges His Transfer from New York Before Joining Army.

BROWNS RALLY IN NINTH

With Huggins's Clan 5 to 2 in the Lead, St. Louis Garners Victory by 6 to 5.

Urban Shocker wound up his baseball career in New York in a blaze of glory up at the Polo Grounds, and the cup of joy was filled to overflowing when he got sweet revenge on Miller Huggins for trading him to St. Louis last Winter.

It was Shocker who was called upon in the ninth inning, when the bases were filled and the Yanks were leading by a score of 5 to 2. Urban didn't make a hit, but he greased the way for the Yanks along the slippery chute down which they slid to defeat by a score of 6 to 5.

Shocker has been drafted, and will leave the Browns in a few days to join the national army. This was the last chance he had at the Yanks, and he made the most of it. He went into the box in the last of the ninth and pitched so well that Huggins's humiliated lads went down in order.

More than 15,000 spectators were all ready to go home with the firm belief that the Yanks had won, 5 to 2, when the Browns unpeeled a rally which furnished the biggest baseball explosion of the year. The Yanks were stunned, and before they recovered from the terrific shock of the Browns' uprising they had lost the ball game.

It was Captain Peckinpaugh of the Yanks who threw the game away. After Gedeon had filed out in the ninth, Johns, batting for Demmitt, singled to left. Maisel, batting for Earl Smith, skied to Miller. Mogridge, who had relieved Caldwell, thought that it was about all over with two out. Nunamaker singled to right, and this unbalanced Mogridge and he hit Johnson with the ball and filled the bases.

Shocker Hits a Grounder.

Fielder Jones, who had carried a worried look all afternoon, waved his hand to the outfield and called in all his reserves. He told Shocker to go in and bat for Rogers, the pitcher. Urban jammed a grounder at Peck, which bounded so elusively that Peck's effort to grab it pulled him off his balance and he threw the ball past Pipp to the field boxes.

The applause and admiration of the crowd, which had been lukewarm toward the Yanks all afternoon, suddenly switched in favor of the Browns and the crowd broke into a boisterous cheer for the boys from Missouri. It was rather odd to hear the home crowd cheering like mad for the invaders, but they did it without restraint. As the noise broke loose after Peck's lurid heave, Johns and Nunamaker crossed the plate, and Johnson pulled up at third, while Shocker himself didn't stop until he reached second.

Little Johnny Tobin, the youngest and newest addition to the Browns, now came to the bat and whaled himself to fame by stinging a hit to left which pushed Johnson over the plate with the tying run, closely pursued by Shocker with the winning run. Shocker was even more overjoyed than he was when he pitched the Browns to victory over the Yanks early in the week. He was out to show Huggins that he made a mistake in trading him, and Urban surely did considerable showing along those lines.

After crossing the plate with the winning run, Shocker asked Jones if he could go in and pitch the last inning. He pitched as he never did before in his life, and he burned the ball through the plate so fast that all that Peck and Baker could do was to pop the ball into the air, while Derrill Pratt, for whom all the Yanks were sent to St. Louis in the now famous trade, palpably fanned. It was a great day for Shocker, and he said he would report to the national army in a happy frame of mind.

Caldwell in Trouble.

Ray Caldwell pitched for the Yanks, and was always in trouble. He was always in a hole, and it was only by the narrowest squeeze that he was able to pull out of difficulties. When he had loaded up the bases in the eighth, Huggins subtracted him from the game and sent in Mogridge. When the ninth inning calamity broke, Mogridge extended a lot of sympathy to Caldwell.

The Yanks were not at all brilliant on the bases yesterday, and missed many fine opportunities to score. The game looked so easy for them with their big lead that they were careless and overconfident. The Browns were scrappy and fighting from the start, and gave many evidences of the trouble which was coming.

A round of applause greeted George Sisler when he came to the bat in the first inning, with two men out. The St. Louis boy wonder spanked a single to left and promptly stole second. Joe Gedeon was again on hand to make Miller Huggins sorry he traded him. Joe singled to centre and sent Sisler home.

The Yanks took the lead away from the Browns in a jiffy. After Gilhooley fanned, Peck singled to right. Sisler made a great stop of Baker's grounder, but in throwing to second to force Peck Sisler hit the runner with the ball and Peck was safe. Pratt rolled a bouncer to Lawdermilk, who was so slow in getting the ball to the plate that Peck counted. Pipp forced Pratt at second, Baker going to third. Lawdermilk then uncorked a wild pitch and Baker crossed the plate. Nunamaker retrieved the ball in time to cut Pipp down at third.

With one down in the second Miller doubled off the left field fence. Hannah hoisted a pop fly to Gedeon and Lawdermilk [illegible] as a bit scared of Caldwell's big bat and gave him a pass.

Gilhooley raised a high fly behind short, and Gerber muffed the ball, Peck seizing the opportunity to score. If Gedeon was out for revenge, he had a good chance in the third, when he came up to bat with two runners perched on the corners and two out. When Gedeon whiffed Huggins began to think that he used pretty good judgment in selling Joe after all.

Bases Are Filled.

Miller fanned at the opening of the fourth, and Truck Hannah walked. Caldwell rolled to Sisler, who threw to second to force Hannah. Gerber muffed the toss, and Truck was safe. Gilhooley shot a single to short right and jammed the bases. Peckinpaugh lifted a sacrifice fly to Smith, and Hannah scored. This was the place for Baker to introduce one of his familiar home runs, but his fly to Smith ended the inning.

Jimmy Austin's sleepy base running cost the Browns a run in the fifth. After Tobin had been retired at first, Austin singled to short left. Sisler cracked a sizzling two-bagger to right, but Austin, for some reason known only to himself, pulled up at second and took a long look at the landscape. It wasn't until he saw Sisler tearing down to second that Austin decided to go to third. When Austin reached third, he received a hurried message from Manager Jones to do his sleeping at the hotel.

The Yanks did considerable threatening in the sixth, but nothing more. Miller singled to centre and Hannah walked. Caldwell rolled a grounder to Gedeon, who tossed to Gerber, getting Hannah at second. Gerber whipped the ball to first and, much to everybody's surprise, Umpire Evans called it a double play. Gilhooley walked and he and Miller tried a double steal. Nunamaker made a bluff to throw to second and Miller was caught like a mouse in a trap.

Caldwell, after being on the ragged edge on several occasions, finally succumbed in the eighth after he had loaded the bases. Smith popped to Pratt and Nunamaker singled. Gerber singled and Johns was substituted to run for the shortstop. Hendryx, batting for Lawdermilk, fouled to Hannah; Tobin singled to right, scoring Nunamaker. Austin walked and filled the bases. Caldwell was chased and Mogridge came in to find the sacks choked and Sisler at the bat. As the populace held its breath Sisler grounded to Peck and Austin was forced at second for the third out. The Yanks got their fifth run in the eighth. Miller got his third hit and Hannah walked. Mogridge sacrificed and Huggins gave the signal for a squeeze with Gilhooley at the bat. The squeeze was a dismal failure and Miller was out at the plate, Hannah going to third. He scored on Gilhooley's single.

Defeat Senators in Fourth Game That Went to Extra Play.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—For the third time in four days Chicago and Washington played extra innings, the visitors getting an even break in the four games by winning in the thirteenth, 5 to 3.

Yingling and Faber went the full distance, but the Washington pitcher weakened in the last inning, allowing two hits and issuing one of his seven bases on balls, which, with a stolen base and error, gave Chicago two runs. The teams played a total of fifty-one innings in four days.

Boston Makes It Four Straight by Beating Detroit 3 to 1.

BOSTON, May 18.—Boston made it four straight over Detroit today, winning 3 to 1. Singles by Erickson and O. Bush, a bad throw by Agnew, and J. Bush's wild pitch gave Detroit its run in the third.

Ruth's double in the sixth, a sacrifice hit, and an infield out tied the score. In the seventh, Strunk's single, with the bases full, scored two runs, after J. Bush had singled and Erickson had issued two passes.

PELHAM BATSMEN BUSY.

Naval Reserves Again Defeat St. John's College on Diamond.

The hard hitting of the Pelham Bay Naval Reserves, coupled with airtight pitching by Coffey, proved too much for St. John's College yesterday at Pelham Bay and the Collegians were beaten 10 to 3. The game was the second of a series between the two nines and also marked the second victory for Pelham.

The Navy batsmen collected twelve safe drives off Waters's service, including a triple by Pfluger and two home runs by Bauer and Gordon. The Pelham nine combined their drives with errors by the St. John's infield and manufactured ten tallies. Lou Waters, Red and White twirler, led his teammates with the willow with a triple and a single in three trips to the plate.

BUCCANEERS TAKE LAST FROM ROBINS

Subdue the Superbas by 11 to 4, Making Series an Even Break.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., May 18.—The Pittsburgh Pirates sent the Brooklyns away tonight on an even split for the series by stinging them with a 11 to 4 defeat, in a game that amounted to a farce at the finish. After the Buccaneers had garnered eleven runs off the weak pitching of Griner and Grimes, Miller of the home team got careless in the ninth inning and on four hits and two glaring errors by the Pirate fielders the Brooklyns tallied four runs. These came on singles by Olson, Daubert, and Johnston and a triple by Schmandt. In all the other innings Miller mowed down the Superbas with very little trouble.

The Pirates got after Griner heavily in the third inning, when Archer was passed to begin with, followed by Bigbee's double, Mollwitz's single, a double by Carey, and Stengel's single, the last two players staging the double steal. In the fourth inning they kept up their cannonading on Dan Griner, another run coming on Archer's triple and Bigbee's single.

Burleigh Grimes, the former Pirate, then relieved Griner, and what the Pirates did to their former teammate was a shame. Four hits, three stolen bases, a walk, a hit batsman, a wild pitch, and an error netted five runs and settled all chances of the visiting team.

The Buccaneers weren't done, however, and scored another run in the sixth inning on two hits and another double steal, which they seemed to be able to pull off without any trouble. In the eighth inning Carey got his fifth hit and tallied when Casey Stengel hit to the score board for three bases.

Carey's all around playing was the feature of the game. In the seventh inning he made a very difficult catch off Johnston's bat and threw to first in time to double up Myers, who had singled just previously.

The Brooklyns and Pirates will play an exhibition game at Meyers Lake, Canton, Ohio, tomorrow.

Eighth Inning Rally Brings Garnet Victory by Score of 7 to 4.

Special to The New York Times.

SCHENECTADY, May 18.—Union annexed its second victory from New York University here this afternoon, the score being 7 to 4. The visitors got off to an early lead by scoring three runs in the second inning when they bunched three hits with a pair of errors. They gained their final tally in the fourth inning when Bromley walked, was sacrificed to second by Cavello and scored on Klaess's single.

After this inning Ed Beaver tightened and N. Y. U. was able to get only two hits for the remainder of the game. The Garnet sprung an eighth inning rally that netted them three runs and victory. A base on bals and three successive hits, one a double, furnished the runs.

GIANTS HALT REDS' VICTORIOUS CLIMB

George Smith's Pitching Riddled by Old Teammates in Cincinnati Clash.

CATCHER ALLEN BREAKS LEG

Reds' Backstop Painfully Injured When He Collides with Zimmerman at Plate—Score 4 to 2.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, May 18.—George Smith, the young pitcher recently released by the Giants to the Reds, failed to hold his former teammates in check today, and the Giants broke Cincinnati's string of victories by taking the fourth game of the present series, 4 to 2. Smith remained in the game for only three innings; but they were three fruitful stanzas for the league leaders.

In that length of time they combed the offerings of the former Columbia pitcher for seven blows, which netted them four runs. Smith retired in favor of Schneider at the end of the third, and Pete allowed only one hit during the five innings of his occupancy of the box. However, the lead gained by the Giants in the early innings was too great for the Reds to overcome in the face of gilt-edged pitching on the part of Harry Sallee. The Higginsport pitcher had only one troublesome inning, the seventh, in which he allowed two hits, which, combined with a sacrifice fly, gave the Reds their two runs.

Nick Allen, the Reds' catcher, sustained a broken leg in a collision with Heinie Zimmerman at the plate in the seventh inning, and was carried from the field. That was not the only casualty of the day. In the first inning Ross Young and Lena Blackburne collided with great force at second base when the Reds' shortstop attempted to block Young off the bag. Young was badly shaken up and Blackburne was spiked in the left foot, but both players remained in the game. Time was taken to permit the Cincinnati Club trainer to dress Blackburne's wounds.

Young opened the Giants' offensive with a single through the box in the first inning, and promptly stole second. It was on this play that he and Blackburne came together with such force as to render both dizzy for a moment or two. After Kauff had fanned, Young scampered to third on a passed ball. Burns drew a walk and Zimmerman lifted a sacrifice fly to Neale, scoring Young. Burns stole second, and Fletcher drove the ball with terrific force to deep centre. Roush, however, racing with his back to the diamond, stuck his gloved hand into the air and dragged down the speeding pellet.

In the third the champions launched the attack that marked the end of the reign of George Smith. Kauff singled to centre and Burns singled to right, putting Kauff on third. Zimmerman hit to Smith, and Kauff, who had no chance to score and who should have remained at third, was cut down at the plate on Smith's toss to Allen. Fletcher followed with a single to left, scoring Burns. Holke forced Fletcher, Zimmerman reaching third. Holke pilfered second and McCarty poked a single to centre, scoring Zimmerman and Holke.

Schneider batted for Smith in the Reds' half of the same frame, and remained in the pastime until the eighth, when he stepped down to allow Hal Chase, making his first appearance in a game for some time, to bat for him. Prince Hal expired on a fly to Kauff, and Regan finished the game in the box for Cincinnati.

The Reds' brace of tallies was hung up in the seventh. Griffith bounced a single to left and Neale tripled past Young, scoring the flaxen-haired Tommy. Neale scored on Blackburne's sacrifice fly to Young.

Bert Niehoff failed to report to Manager McGraw today, and Joe Rodriguez again played second base. Niehoff is expected tomorrow.

ST. JOHN'S PREP VICTOR.

Conquers Manual Training Nine by Score of 9 to 7.

St. John's Prep followed up its 10-to-0 shutout of the Brooklyn Prep nine with an easy 9-to-7 victory over Manual yesterday morning at the Prospect Park parade grounds. Prep ran up a nine-run lead and George Casazza, Red and White twirler, loosened up a bit but was able to check Manual's rush abruptly. Tobie, the Manual twirler, lasted two innings, and during his stay he was reached for five hits, four bases on balls and six runs.

TIGER CUBS BEAT YALE.

Margells Shuts Out Eli Freshmen by Score of 3 to 0.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., May 18.—In a hotly contested and well-played pitchers' battle the Princeton freshman nine defeated the Yale freshmen here today by a score of 3 to 0. Margells, who pitched for the Tiger cubs, was steady and effective at all times, and his speed and curves proved too much for the Yale men.

After six scoreless innings, Princeton started the lucky seventh with a rush. Brauner got an infield hit, and went down to second on a passed ball. Craig walked, but was forced at second by Harvey, Brauner going to third on the play. Kopp, the diminutive Tiger middle fielder, dropped a Texas Leaguer over first base, and Brauner romped home with the winning run.

Harvey made third on the hit, and, when Kopp had stolen second, both of them counted on Sheerer's infield hit. After two more scoreless innings, the Tigers snake danced in celebration of the triumph. Keyes, the Princeton Captain and third baseman, played a strong game, despite a spiked hand.

Smartness—Beauty—Thoroughbred Quality

The car of today must have smartness—beauty of line and finish to a superlative degree. But it must also have that thoroughbred construction, that perfection of every mechanical part which means 100% staying power.

The Moon Six-66 registers perfect on these requirements. It has the individual, custom-made look which is associated with the highest price cars. Its graceful lines, body design and coach work have the snap and trimness which make it stand out by itself in the mass of motor traffic.

Internal construction and dependability are backed by fourteen years of Moon factory methods which are based on the unvarying policy of "Build the Best."

As to equipment—such units as Red Seal Continental Motor, Delco Electric system, Timken Bearings and Fedders Radiator are unmistakable evidence of quality and thoroughgoing reliability.

The Moon Six-66 has all the features of a high-priced car except the price itself. In economy of tires, gasoline and oil it effects an additional saving which is today well worthy of consideration.

The newer color shades in which these models are finished will appeal particularly to the discriminating purchaser. The trimming is in soft, tan Spanish leather or long-grain, high gloss black leather of unusual quality.

AUSPICIOUS START FOR LOCAL RACING

Banner Season Predicted, Following Display of Interest at the Outset.

WEEK'S PROGRAM IS GOOD

Many Starters in Preakness Stakes Are Eligible for Stuyvesant Handicap Tuesday.

That racing appears to be destined for a banner year is evident from the interest shown in the first three days' sport of the local season at the Jamaica track, together with the recent arrival at the Long Island courses of many crack thoroughbreds which have wound up their campaigns in Maryland and are ready to meet the best of the stay-at-homes which have been trained with the idea of capturing the rich stakes to be decided at Belmont Park. Good racing is promised from now on, and it will improve every day until the zenith in these parts is reached after the close of the meetings in Kentucky.

It is quite probable that racegoers will not have to wait for the opening of Belmont Park for another meeting of Omar Khayyam and Cudgel, the two great four-year-olds which raced at Pimlico when victory went to the better conditioned Cudgel. Both are entered in the Long Beach Handicap on Saturday and, as indicated by the allotments for the Kings County Handicap, run yesterday, it is likely that they will carry equal weights.

Neither J. K. L. Ross, the owner of Cudgel, nor Wilfrid Viau, who controls the destinies of Omar Khayyam, is likely to dodge the issue, and the distance of a mile and a furlong is suitable to both the Eastern and Western cracks. There was every reason for not starting Omar Khayyam yesterday, as he had only been placed in the hands of his new trainer, Sandy McNaughton, following his defeat by Cudgel in his first important contest. McNaughton will have more time to devote to the Viau horses than did Richard Carman, a capable horseman, but one who had a fair-sized stable of his own to look after.

Omar Khayyam, Westy Hogan, George Clark, and the rest of the Viau string arrived at the Aqueduct track on Friday, and those who had a chance to look over the three-year-old champion of last year were enthusiastic over his appearance. As soon as McNaughton took charge of Omar Khayyam he was treated to a dose of physic. His eyes are bright and clear now, and he gallops as though he enjoys the outing. This is in marked contrast to his disposition in Pimlico, where he cut up and showed evidence of bad temper.

There are other choice treats in store for this, the closing week of the first Jamaica session, as important events are carded for Tuesday and Thursday. On Tuesday the Stuyvesant Handicap for three-year-olds will be run over a distance of six furlongs, and many of the starters in the Preakness Stakes are eligible, including Jack Hare, Jr., the winner of the second division. G. D. Widener's Lanius, which disappointed his connections by running only third to War Cloud in the other half of the stake, also is among those entered and, no doubt, will try to show that his race in the Preakness was not his true form.

There are other possibilities provided by the nominations, which include both Sun Briar and Papp, the leading two-year-olds of last season. Sun Briar declined his Kentucky Derby engagement because of a poor race run previously, while Papp was coughing before the Preakness and did not go to the post. It is on the cards that one or both of these may recover in time to measure strides with Jack Hare, Jr., which at present is entitled to rank as one of the leaders in the three-year-old division.

Some of the best two-year-olds which were not seen in action in Maryland are likely to put in an appearance for the Colorado Stakes on Thursday, which has a cash value of $3,000. Harry Payne Whitney has nominated seven for this event, and they are evidently the pick of the Brookdale establishment. Judging from the performances of the Whitney second string in Maryland, which included such speedy youngsters as Blue Laddie and Cresson, Trainer Rowe must have some real good material with which to tackle the big stakes.

The Belmont Stable also is reported to be strong in two-year-olds this season, but the only one named for the Colorado is Mad Hatter, a son of Fair Play-Madcap. A. K. Macomber has named three colts by Star Shoot. P. A. Clark has entered Lion d'Or, which won the opening day at Jamaica, and the list of nominators contains the name of nearly every prominent owner on the turf.

Though some impatient sportsmen are already trying to solve the problem as to which is the best three-year-old it is scarcely likely that that question will be satisfactorily answered until the Saratoga meeting, if indeed the matter of supremacy is decided then. The Withers and Belmont Stakes at Belmont Park, which are depended on to give a good idea at least of the best of that age, certainly will not do so this year.

Jack Hare, Jr., though named for both the Metropolitan and Toboggan Handicaps, is not among the eligibles for the stakes exclusively for three-year-olds, while another of the important omissions is Willis Sharpe Kilmer's Exterminator, which caused such a surprise by winning the Kentucky Derby. Escoba, second in the Derby, and rated one of the best on a fast or good track, is another that has not been named, but War Cloud, Papp, Sun Briar, and Lucullite are all entitled to race for the honors in the East.

Henry McDaniel, who trains for Mr. Kilmer, thinks well of Exterminator, and at Jamaica yesterday said that the surprise horse would be ready to try conclusions with the other cracks of his age at Saratoga. Exterminator has been entered in the Saranac and Huron Handicaps and the Travers and Benner Stakes, all exclusively for three-year-olds, and which mostly proved victories for Omar Khayyam last season. He will be trained for these events and in the meantime will not dodge a meeting with the Easterners if a suitable occasion offers.

One of the pleasing features of the opening at Jamaica was the number of new men to the turf who were present and whose horses sported silks. The most prominent of these, although he did not actually win a race, was Thomas F. Thorne, who raced a few horses last year and who has greatly increased his stable for this season. Mr. Thorne showed how thoroughly he has prepared for his campaign by starting a horse in every race, and he was rewarded by having three of them finish in the money at long odds.

P. A. Clark also gained distinction by winning the last race for maiden two-year-olds from a good field, which included some rated as cracks. Lion d'Or carried the Clark colors and won so impressively that many good judges think he will have to be reckoned with in the big stakes. A. K. Macomber and Willis Sharpe Kilmer were two other comparatively newcomers, who attended but did not figure in the actual racing. Another young enthusiast was Walter J. Salmon, who started the two-year-old Teddy Rousseau, which has been a sort of trial horse for Ultus, the two-year-old son of Sardanapale, which is believed to be a formidable candidate for the juvenile honors.

HORSE PLAYS PART IN WAR.

England's Remount Stock Proves Superiority in Battle.

"The announcement by a German military expert," said Frank K. Sturgis, Chairman of the Jockey Club's Breeding Bureau, the other day, "that the failure of their recent drive was due to a lack of horses, should carry its own lesson and convince even the most confirmed skeptic that there are conditions in this great world struggle where the horse as well as the man plays the dominant part.

"It is agreed by the most eminent authorities that cavalry has saved the day on many occasions on the western front. Professor Robert Wallace of the University of Edinburgh, who is Great Britain's foremost authority on horse breeding, in a recent letter to a friend in this country, stated that at the Marne, generally conceded to have been one of the crucial points in the war, 14,000 British cavalry routed a German force of almost three times their number. The superiority of the English horses, many of which were clean-bred, and none of them less than half-bred, having been recruited from the racing and hunting stables of British sportsmen, was responsible for this splendid achievement.

"England was unprepared in many ways when war was declared. She would have been in sad straits for cavalry but for the material which was thus obtained for remount purposes. More than 17,000 head of crack horses in prime condition for hard work were available at once because of the fact that the British have long been devoted to the turf and the hunting field.

"While Germany had built a horse fabric of remarkable quality, her native mares, particularly those in the marsh regions of the empire, did not have the same flintlike quality of bone that has made Irish dams in particular so famous, and in the hour of trial they were unable to stand the strain against animals from stock nurtured in a limestone country. That and the extra cross of warm blood accounted for the superiority of the British cavalry. Again to quote Professor Wallace, 'it was demonstrated that a cross of blood is worth an inch of bone.'

"The frequent and successful employment of cavalry, especially in the rough country, in this campaign has settled forever the question of necessity of army horse-breeding.

"England had no settled plan for the production of horses of the army type until Colonel Hall Walker donated his famous Tully Stud to the nation. The successes achieved by the British cavalry have brought a realization of the value of the gift, and it is significant that there is to be a greatly augmented program of racing tests for the current season in England, and that animals from the National Stud will be given a chance to demonstrate their fitness to reproduce themselves.

"While we in the United States, who believe in the horse of blood and his ability to improve all the other grades, have had long to wait for recognition by the country at large, there are signs that the question of the production of army remounts will shortly get the consideration it deserves. It is a healthy indication to find the matter being discussed in the public prints. It would appear that a majority of our experts favor the method of sending thoroughbred stallions into communities where horses of the proper type are to be found.

"This is the plan pursued by the Jockey Club's Bureau of Breeding, and wherever tried its success has been demonstrated. This is particularly true of the Genesee Valley district, where the work has been in exceedingly skillful hands, the Genesee Valley Breeders Association having gone about the work in a thorough and painstaking fashion.

"The breeding season is now at its height," said Mr. Sturgis in conclusion, "and every farmer and horsebreeder in the country should see to it that his mares are given a chance to help relieve the draft made upon us by the war. More than one million horses have gone abroad, and they must be replaced. The better the type, the greater the efficiency, and now is the time to profit by former mistakes. Horse production is equally as important as crop production. Communities which haven't sires of the proper type should make their wants known through their State or Federal representatives. The horse may yet be a determining factor in the winning of the war."

MORGAN HORSES IN JAPAN.

Dr. J. R. Mohler Declares Breed Is Popular with Nipponese.

Saddle horses are much used in Japan, according to Dr. J. R. Mohler, an expert of the Animal Industry Bureau of the Department of Agriculture, but when a Japanese is in the saddle he wants his feet to be close to the ground. They prefer a small horse also for driving, of the useful rather than of the display or speeding types. The native horse is descended from Tartar strains, and in the war between Japan and Russia the observers for foreign military establishments severely criticised the Japanese cavalry mounts.

"They are looking for horses that will help their cavalry; also their riding and driving horses," said Dr. Mohler at the dinner of the Morgan Horse Club at Delmonico's recently. "Mr. Tanomura, Live Stock Commissioner for Japan, who is now on his fifth tour of breeding farms in the United States and Canada, at his own expense, has told me that the Japanese must have a horse from 14.2 to 15 hands, and that he was perfectly satisfied the Morgan horses are what they want, to develop horse-breeding in Japan."

"Dr. Mohler, who is now directing the Government farm at Middlebury, Vt., where Morgans are being raised, said also that the Department of Agriculture advocates the perpetuation of the Morgan type.

"We have in view the regeneration and perpetuation of the Morgan horses," added Dr. Mohler. "I have only had this position for a few months in Middlebury; we are doing this work, but you must realize that we have only $15,000 to work with. We have high-grade men connected with this work, whose salaries come very high, and we had only $23,000 for our annual appropriation, $3,000 being expended on five Morgan horses for Eastern Vermont and $10,000 in Virginia, North Carolina, and Tennessee, while the remaining $10,000 is being expended on work in Kentucky. In other countries they appropriate millions for work of this kind.

"The general breeding of Morgans on the farm at Middlebury is intended for the regeneration of the breed, the finer type, and I suggest, as the objects are the same, that the Morgan Horse Club appoint a committee to co-operate with the Federal Government in this work."

The suggestion has been favorably received and a Morgan Horse Club committee will visit the Middlebury farm early next month to consult with Dr. Mohler on weeding out the stock and to decide on the mating of some with stallions outside those owned by the Government.

ALL CAPTAINS IN SERVICE.

Williams Leaders in Five Sports Have Joined Colors.

WILLIAMSTOWN, May 18.—With the departure of Ted Brown, Williams hockey Captain and football Captain-elect for next year, to Camp Devens to enroll in the Fourth Officers' Reserve Corps Training School, the Purple lost its leaders in all five of the leading sports.

Clifford, football Captain-elect for last Fall, joined the Naval Reserves and failed to return to college at the beginning of the year while Halstead, who succeeded him at the head of the eleven, recently joined the colors.

In basket ball, Hal Wright, the original choice for the leadership, was found holding a commission as Lieutenant in Uncle Sam's Army when the season started. Dayton, who was chosen to take his place, is listed to go to Camp Devens with Brown.

Coleman was to have captained the hockey team but he enlisted during the Summer and Brown was later honored for the place. In track, three elections have taken place, Matz and Putnam both leaving college to join the colors, leaving Stewart, the present Captain, as the third choice.

Kingsley, baseball Captain-elect for this Spring, went to the Officers' Reserve camp last December and recently received a commission. Dunn was selected to take his place at the head of the Purple nine.

NAVY'S FOOTBALL SCHEDULE IS OUT

Only One Team Listed That Has Met Middies Before—Service Game in Doubt.

ANNAPOLIS, May 18.—The increasing difficulty which the Naval Academy has had of late years in securing suitable opponents for its football team has culminated in the arrangement of the poorest schedule for next season which the institution has had since the days of modern football began. Two dates are still lacking. One of these is Nov. 23, which is reserved for the game against the West Point eleven if permission to play the game can be obtained, but no opponent has been secured for the previous Saturday, which will be the final game on the local grounds.

The greatest difficulty was encountered even in arranging the present unsatisfactory schedule. Teams which were approached asked exorbitant guarantees, and said frankly that, as football had to bear the expenses of practically all their sports, they had to go where the largest guarantees were paid. Thus, one team, an old opponent of the Naval Academy, which is located so near Annapolis that the expense of a trip would not be $100, wanted $2,000 to come to Annapolis, and another team, from an adjoining State, asked for $2,500. Such guarantees are out of the question at the Naval Academy, where there are no gate receipts and athletics are supported by subscriptions of officers and midshipmen.

The games, as arranged, are: Oct. 5, Lebanon Valley; Oct. 12, North Carolina State College; Oct. 19, West Virginia Wesleyan; Oct. 26, Virginia Military Institute; Nov. 2, Western Reserve; Nov. 9, Colby. Western Reserve is the only team which met the midshipmen last Fall and which will play again next season. Every effort was made to secure a strong team for Nov. 16, Georgia Tech being one of those invited, but there has been no favorable response. The management is still anxious to fill this date.

The failure to secure a schedule which would really try the midshipmen out is particularly regretted because everything points to a remarkable year for the navy team. Doble developed a wonderful scoring machine last season, and will have nearly all of his old men next year. Besides, he will have the pick of a new class of 1,000 members. Under such conditions the navy should have one of its best years in football, but will lack the opportunity of making a real comparison of its strength with the other strong teams of the country.

Failure to secure a good home schedule, however, is quite secondary compared with the uncertainty as to the playing of the service game. Both teams have kept the date open for the great contest, but it is barred unless the Secretaries of War and the Navy make an exception to the rule that no games are to be played away from home by the service teams.

Those at the Academies are not in a position to ask for this exception, but it is hoped that the matter will be put up to the department heads in a way that will secure favorable action. It has been proposed that the game be played in New York and the proceeds devoted to the Red Cross, the Army and Navy Relief, or some other war charity.

DE PALMA TO COMPETE.

Enters Harkness Handicap at Speedway on Decoration Day.

Ralph De Palma, a leader among auto racers, will start in the Harkness Handicap of 100 miles, which will feature the track meet at the Sheepshead Bay Speedway on Decoration Day. The sprint champion of 1917 finally came to terms last night with Promoter William H. Wellman.

The Italian pilot all last week indulged in secret trials at the Sheepshead track. Gradually he worked his machine up to the point which led him to believe he could meet Dario Resta, his rival in many races.

A record-breaking competition in the Harkness race is expected, for the double reason of the notable field entered and because the 100-mile battle will be run under a handicap system for the first time. Even though Resta is his natural rival, De Palma declared that under the new conditions he wouldn't be able for a second to overlook the fact that Louis Chevrolet, speedway champion last year; Barney Oldfield; Ralph Mulford, Vanderbilt Cup winner, and Ira Vail, the 22-year-old Brooklyn youth, who is a prime favorite with motor fans, have fine chances of going to the front.

De Palma last year set a new world's mark by driving 633.12 miles in six hours. De Palma drove alone the entire distance. The previous record of 506 miles was made by three pilots, who drove in relays. This is only one of the Italian's many remarkable achievements.

He won the sprint title last season from Oldfield, beating the veteran in three straight heats. During his ten-year racing career he has won more than $150,000 in prizes. The veteran also holds a double victory in Vanderbilt Cup events and Elgin road competitions. He finished first in 1916 for the $30,000 Indianapolis Sweepstakes. De Palma has the distinction of being the only one who ever defeated Dario Resta in a race in which the latter went the full distance. This was the 1916 Indianapolis contest.

De Palma, Oldfield, Chevrolet, Mulford, and Vail are well known, and their number will be increased by the presence of several Western stars who are strangers to Eastern circles. In this detachment will be Omar Toft, the Pacific Coast sprint champion, and Louis Le Cocq, his teammate, who will drive the Deusenberg which Eddie Hearne piloted to third place in the Harkness Trophy race last September.

Dan Hickey, who finished fifth in the Harkness Trophy contest, and Jack McCarty, a young Middle West sensation, will be among the starters. "Red Flash" Fetterman, a Pennsylvania youth who twice won the Grand Prize at Uniontown, Penn., will represent that section of the country in the Harkness Handicap.

BAYSIDE YACHTS TO RACE.

Regatta Committee Arranges Tentative Schedule for Season.

Although sixty-five of the 300 members of the Bayside Yacht Club are in the service, and all the others are doing some kind of relief work, the regular racing schedule will be carried out this year the same as for several seasons past. From among the older members who remain at home there will be recruited skippers to man the fleet of the club, which has been increased by several recent purchases.

The club will, like last year, hold races among the "birds," "butterflies," "stars," and the old Bayside one-design classes.

William T. Haskell, Chairman of the Regatta Committee, has arranged a tentative schedule for the season. It cannot be announced as final because of uncertainty regarding Larchmont week, and also because of the possibility of an arrangement which will give the star class a chance for wider activities.

CORNELL TO SEND TEAM OF TWENTY

Coach Moakley Announces Trip to Title Games of the I. C. A. A. A. A.

FINANCED BY SUBSCRIPTION

Voluntary Contributions by Individuals Make Journey to Philadelphia Possible.

ITHACA, May 18.—That Cornell will enter a team of approximately twenty men in the annual championship games of the I. C. A. A. A. A. at Franklin Field, Philadelphia, was announced today by Coach Jack Moakley, who said that the generosity of the undergraduate body in raising a fund of some $900 to finance the trip had made the entry of a representative team possible. Moakley is holding special trials this week and plans a final series of events next week, after which he will choose his team. It is expected that Cornell will enter men in both sprints, both hurdles, all of the runs, the broad and high jumps, and the pole vault. Coach Moakley is still undecided as to the weight events.

Without the generous support of the undergraduate body Cornell could not have entered a team. The athletic association had decided that it could put up the money to send perhaps a half dozen of the most consistent athletes to the games, but beyond that it could not go. So an appeal was made by undergraduates for popular subscriptions. The authorities would not permit a systematic canvass, nor would they sanction the solicitation of fraternities and organizations, but there was no objection to the voluntary subscription by individuals.

On one day, about $40 was collected on the campus, and at the Penn baseball game $80 was raised, and the balance came in later in the day. The sum of $360 plus what the association can turn over will finance the trip properly.

Cornell most emphatically will not use any freshmen on the Varsity team at the intercollegiates, nor has Cornell used any freshmen on the baseball team, nor has Cornell ever had any intention of using freshmen on Varsity teams at any time. The eligibility code has not been changed; our eligibility rules have not been relaxed because we have lost many prominent Varsity men who have gone to war. On the contrary, we have felt that this was just the time when the eligibility rules should be strictly enforced and lived up to in every respect."

This was the statement of Graduate Manager Kent of the Cornell Athletic Association to THE TIMES representative. Circulation of reports in certain quarters that Cornell had used two freshmen on the baseball team and would use freshmen on track has aroused a great deal of indignation here, where athletics have been carried on despite lack of material and heavy financial losses. Cornell has been going behind steadily this year financially, but every schedule has been met and played, for the most part with athletic material much inferior to the usual standard.

Professor Eugene P. Andrews, Faculty advisor of track, and Registrar David F. Hoy, Faculty advisor of baseball, also authorized an emphatic denial of the charge for their respective branches of the sport.

WILLIAMS MAY LOSE COACH.

Walker Unlikely to Return as Football Mentor.

WILLIAMSTOWN, 18.—While the Williams Athletic Council has made no official statement, it is unlikely that Fred Walker will return as coach for the Purple eleven this Fall. His success a year ago, when he turned out the first undefeated football team in the college's history, speaks for itself, but Williams does not feel in a position to grant him a substantial increase in salary.

The college is cutting down expenses in connection with its athletics as much as possible. Walker stopped off here for a brief time on his way to report to the St. Louis Nationals, and he is credited with saying then that it was very doubtful if he would return to Williams.

LATE ENTRIES NOT BARRED.

I. C. A. A. A. A. Expected to be Lenient in Accepting Nominations.

PHILADELPHIA, May 18.—From the opinions expressed throughout the collegiate world since the announcement of the entry list for the forty-second annual track and field championships of the I. C. A. A. A. A., scheduled for Franklin Field, May 31 and June 1, it is evident that all the colleges and universities which make up this association will take a lenient view of entries which were not received on time. On account of the war conditions it is felt that the association should not be too strict on this point. This means that the University of Pittsburgh, which this year has one of the best teams in the East, will have its entry list O. K'd and that the Panthers will have an even chance for the intercollegiate championships.

There has been a very strong tide toward a wider competition in track and field sports than was thought possible at the time of the Pennsylvania Relay Carnival. It is true that the meet will lack as many star performers as have featured these games in the past. But the situation is relieved by the fact that virtually all the colleges will enter the meet on even terms. In other words, there will be more dark horses not only among the individual competitors, but the teams as well. This means that no university will enter the meet an overwhelming favorite, as Cornell and Pennsylvania teams have usually done in the past.

Enough meets have already been held to demonstrate the fact that most of the teams are likely to be rather lopsided. Cornell, for example, promises to be unusually strong in the hurdles and the track events from the quarter-mile up. On the other hand, the Ithacans are not so strong in the sprints and the field events. Dartmouth participated in a New England meet last week and overwhelmed all her competitors with a score of 88 points. In this meet the Hanover men uncovered a very high class hurdler in Shea, who is in the same class as Erdmann of Princeton and Cleminshaw and Smith of Cornell and Johnson of Michigan. Dartmouth likewise looks to have the champion pole vaulter in Myers, who has already cleared the bar at 12 feet 6 inches and better.

The entry of the University of Michigan was a distinct surprise to Eastern men. It was feared when Michigan returned to membership in the Western Conference Association this Winter that the Wolverines would forsake the I. C. A. A. A. games. There are two reasons for Michigan sticking to her Eastern alliance. One is that when Michigan was admitted to the association in 1906 it was with the definite promise that she would retain her membership. Michigan has competed regularly ever since, but when peace was made with her Western rivals and she rejoined the conference association it was expected that Michigan would run the risk of displeasing her Eastern friends by coming exclusively in the West. The second reason that Michigan will send her team to Franklin Field this year is the fact that the Western championships will not be held until June 8. This will give Michigan an opportunity to try out her team fairly before sending them up against the pick of the West. Michigan has a very well rounded team. The particular star is Johnson, who won the broad jump at Pennsylvania Relay Carnival and performed splendidly in both the hurdles and the 100-yard dash. Johnson did not quite live up to his reputation at the relays but it should be remembered that he is only a sophomore.

The performance of Cornell in the dual meet with M. A. C. has convinced Jack Moakley's coaching rivals that he is counting on winning the games by scoring heavily in the hurdles and the middle and long distance runs. The Ithacans have a flock of star performers in the mile and two mile runs, and it may be that they will duplicate in one of these events what Cornell did in 1916, when the Ithacans captured every available point in the two-mile run—the first time that the trick was ever turned in the history of the games.

The particular star of the Cornell team is Dresser, who, in the M. I. T. meet, won the two-mile run in 9:22. Dresser won this race so easily, just as he did the cross country title last Fall, that he is the general favorite, not only to win this race on Franklin Field, but to smash all previous records. He has a very dangerous sidepartner in the mile in Maynard, who won this event against the M. I. T. in 4:30. In Mayer the Ithacans have a middle-distance star, whom they are training to do the Ted Meredith act. Mayer is equally at home in the quarter and half mile runs, and with the exception of Shea of Pittsburgh, is easily the best quarter miler in the East.

FAILURE OF TITLE BOUT NO SURPRISE

Abandonment of Heavyweight Championship Had Been Expected.

PUBLIC WAS OPPOSED

Adverse Sentiment Steadily Increased and Many States Refused to Allow Contest.

The abandonment of the proposed heavyweight championship boxing bout between Jess Willard, titleholder, and Fred Fulton, challenger, of Minnesota, which was scheduled to be held somewhere in the United States July 4, has been taken more or less agreeably by the followers of boxing. The announcement which came from Colonel J. C. Miller of Bliss, Okla., potential promoter of the biggest event in pugilism, had been expected for weeks past, and, strange as it might seem for an event of such importance, the eventual turn of events has not occasioned remorse.

Willard's retirement, following so closely the abandonment of the title bout, likewise will be taken calmly by followers of the sport, who have long held the opinion that Willard would not again be seen in a public ring encounter where his laurels were at stake.

Since the news was first sent broadcast that the men had signed articles for the bout under the direction of Colonel Miller, public sentiment experienced a great change. Taken at first with a display of enthusiasm and expectation, principally through the announced intention of the principals to make it a fitting war-time championship bout, feeling against the contest took a turn. Disapproval made itself manifest when, instead of a championship bout over a distance, the contest was reduced to a ten-round affair, in which it was the universal opinion Willard's title would be safe. When it began to be evident from public opinion that it was demanded, arrangements were proposed to give the match an air of patriotism.

All the time, though, public feeling against the contest had advanced, and the patronage, which was at first expected, was shown to be a doubtful quantity. And then came a series of rebuffs from various States in the Union, whose Governors prohibited the bout, and frustrated the attempts of the promoter wherever he turned.

The first rebuff to Colonel Miller and the boxers came from the civic officials of St. Paul and Minneapolis. Colonel Miller's announcement some time ago that the bout would be held at a point midway between these two cities seemed to show that at last a battleground where there would be no opposition had been found. The enthusiasm was short-lived, however, for the match attracted a storm of protest in these two cities, as it had previously at other places, where it was rumored it might be held, until the plans were abandoned.

Governor M. H. Holcomb of Connecticut closed the gates of that State to the match just when negotiations to have it staged there were to be renewed. And subsequently the bout was banned by the Governor of Utah. This left only New Orleans and Baltimore as possible battlegrounds, as the feeling in the western part of the country was of such a nature as to make ineligible any thought of taking it West. It was even considered doubtful that the respective Executives of Louisiana and Maryland would permit the bout on soil in their jurisdiction, which left only one course for Colonel Miller to follow, and he did.

Harry Greb, Pittsburgh's representative middleweight; Charlie Weinert, the heavyweight of Newark, and Eddie McGoorty, of the Oshkosh, Wis., middleweight, are among the latest boxers to join the fighting forces of Uncle Sam. Greb and Weinert have been enrolled in the Naval Reserve forces at local stations, and McGoorty was drafted to Camp Grant, Rockford, Ill.

Joe Welling, Chicago's lightweight boxer, who is now a member of the United States Navy, will engage in his next ring bout Friday night, when he faces Ritchie Mitchell, the Milwaukee lightweight, ten rounds at Milwaukee. Mitchell is also one of the country's sailors, and before enlisting was regarded as among the leading lightweights in the ring. In tomorrow's bout both boxers have agreed to donate a share of their earnings to the Soldiers and Sailors' Fund.

According to reports from the West, Mike Gibbons, regarded as the leading middleweight in the country, has permanently retired from the ring. Gibbons is now boxing instructor at Camp Dodge, Iowa, and it is because of added weight he has taken on since assuming his duties in this capacity that he is retiring from the ring, says the report.

The ban which was placed on Igish Patsy Cline, the Harlem lightweight, in Cleveland recently, because of the Harlem lad's inability to go through with a contracted bout, has been lifted and Cline will again be allowed to participate in bouts at Cleveland clubs. Cline was matched for a bout in Cleveland nearly a month ago and because of illness was unable to face his opponent. The ban then was then indefinitely suspended, but upon receipt of information from his doctor that Cline was really too ill to go through with the bout his suspension has been lifted.

Entries are reported coming in rapidly for the amateur boxing tournament which will be held at the 69th Regiment Armory Thursday and Saturday. The tournament was originally scheduled for May 2 and 4, but because of the Government taking over the regiment for the purpose of holding rallies for the Third Liberty Loan, it was temporarily abandoned. The event has been arranged as an entertainment for the members of the Sixty-ninth and the proceeds will go toward the regiment's athletic equipment fund. The Clark House A. A. has entered its full team of amateur boxers for the three classes, as follows:

One-hundred-and-ten-pound class, Dave Kamins, Sam Nable, Meyer Brown, Sol Goldsmith, and Paul Richman; 120-pound class, Sam Deutsch, Harold Fenster, L. Levy, and I. Berjensky; 130-pound class, Benjamin Jacobs, M. Neiman, and Joseph Blau.

OUTLOOK IS GLOOMY FOR HARVARD TEAM

Chance of Success for Track Athletes in Meet with Yale and Princeton Regarded as Slim.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 18.—Harvard's chances of even a fair showing in the triangular track meet with Yale and Princeton at New Haven next Saturday appear slim. There are no stars among the seventeen men who will represent the Crimson, and while Coach Donovan is hopeful that his charges will accomplish the unexpected, he is reconciled to being a good third.

Princeton, according to Donovan, has a corner on the stars entered for the meet. Harvard has only taken part in one track event, that with Technology, when Freshmen were allowed to compete and scored the greater part of the Crimson's total.

In the dashes, Fred Williams, Bill Swart, Fred Fishback, and Bill Haggart will carry the Harvard colors. None is ranged as especially fast. Fishback was centre on the informal football team. Paul Stevenson, Dan Duggan, and Captain Costigan are entered for the 440 and 880. Stevenson is fast over both distances, and Costigan is a capable half-miler. Duggan will probably run the mile. In the Tech meet he finished second to Captain Halfacre of Technology. Corning, Lucas, and Wason are slated for the two-mile, the first mentioned being the best of the trio.

Fishback, Sherman, and Atkinson will try their luck over the hurdles. None of them has had any experience worth mentioning. Fuller Albright is Harvard's only Varsity pole vaulter, and no entries are to be made in the jumps. Flynn and Stevenson have been entered in the hammer throw and Linder and Batchelder, the 'Varsity oarsmen, in the shotput.

The freshman track team which will meet the Yale cubs at New Haven Saturday has been weakened by the loss of several stars who left college during the past month for war service. In Chris Krogness the freshmen have had a consistent point winner so far this season. He has been getting about 20 points in each meet, but will have difficulty in beating Shedden, Yale's young hurdler.

Krogness has captured both hurdle events in his four meets this season, but is not apt to repeat this stunt against Yale. Shedden is expected to win the high hurdles. Krogness has a fine chance to win the shotput, but may not get first in the high jump one of his specialties, if Landon of Yale is performing up to standard. Gourdin in the dashes and broad jump, Nally in the mile, Monks in the hammer throw, and McAdams in the 880 may pick up points for the Crimson.

The annual Spring regatta will be held here Saturday afternoon. One of the important races will be that between the Harvard and Yale freshmen. A number of school boys' races will also be held.

GOLF BENEFIT ARRANGED.

Matanwok G. C., at Bayside, to Conduct Tourney for War Fund.

An open golf tournament will be held under the auspices of the Matanwok Golf Club, Bayside, L. I., beginning with a qualifying round on the morning of May 30, Decoration Day. There will also be a ball sweepstakes and a flag contest for those interested.

An entrance fee of $1, which will include greens fees, will be charged for the tournament. Entries will close on Wednesday evening, May 29.

On Sunday, June 2, there will be an exhibition match between four well-known professionals. For this exhibition it is hoped to enlist the services of Louis Martucci and Arthur Lyons, both one-armed players. The entire proceeds will be donated to the War Department Commission on Training Camp Activities.

DOINGS AND SAYINGS IN THE REAL ESTATE WORLD

REVIEW OF REAL ESTATE MARKET

Business Centres on West Side Apartment Houses—Operators Active.

COMMENT AND OPINION

Standard Rate for Management Urged—The Save New York Movement.

No change was recorded in the real estate situation last week, trading continuing moderately active along the same lines that have characterized the business of recent months.

Washington Heights and other west side apartment houses have attracted the attention of professional buyers, who have been for so long a time strong supporters of the market, and a good deal of the buying and selling is centring upon this class of principal.

There was a fair demand for small residential properties in many sections of the city, and a few more deals, principally on Barclay and Front Streets, involving commercial properties.

The New Law and Lease Holdovers.

The amendment to the real property law which became effective April 23, 1918, limiting unwritten agreements of lease to a tenancy from month to month, does not apply to oral leases for a year which were made previous to April 23, 1918, and probably does not apply to holdovers, which will continue to be for a renewal of the original term of the lease, but not exceeding one year, in the opinion of members of the Buillding Managers' Association.

The courts may construe a holdover as an implied agreement, in which case no lease could hold over except from month to month. A lease "from month to month" requires a notice of one month to terminate, effective the end of a rent month. Such a lease differs from a "monthly lease" or a lease "by the month." Until the courts have passed on the subject, it is safer to suppose that the change of law does not relate to holdovers.

Wants a Standard Rate for Management.

Rising costs of office management, increases in salary, and other important factors tending to raise overhead charges of real estate managers have resulted in the advocacy of a uniform and standard commission rate for the general management of properties.

A well-known broker, in discussing the need for this action, said yesterday:

"As it is now, some agents will take over the management of real estate holdings at a commission as low as 2 per cent., while others accept the responsibilities at 2½ and 3 per cent. If they would all co-operate with one view in mind, that of charging the owners the maximum rate of 5 per cent., there would then be a chance for the agents to cover expenses and to make a small profit in their efforts in the owners' best interests.

"With the shortage of help and the necessary increases of salary, the agent of today is barely covering overhead expenses; hence the making of a demand for a standard rate of 5 per cent. commission for the general management of all real estate would relieve and better the condition of all agents, as well as render greatest efficiency for the owner."

Active in the Save New York Movement.

Evidence of the continued efforts of the men supporting the Save New York movement is furnished through a decision reached last week by a large cloak and suit manufacturer to remain outside the restricted area.

E. J. Wile, head of the firm of E. J. Wile & Co., announces that he has decided to remain permanently at 160 Fifth Avenue, having made a new lease for the four lofts which he is now occupying.

This is a matter of special interest to the manufacturers in New York, in view of the fact that E. J. Wile & Co., at the time that the Save New York movement started, had decided that the downtown location was a matter of the past, and had leased the two top floors in the Johnson Building at Broadway and Thirty-fifth Street.

At the time that the Save New York movement started, Mr. Wile was one of the first to realize that the uptown movement of the manufacturers would be a menace to the city and would, in the end, work a harm to the manufacturers themselves. Therefore, at that time, and at a great financial sacrifice, he purchased a cancellation of lease in the Thirty-fifth Street Building and decided temporarily to remain at 160 Fifth Avenue until the question was finally settled as to whether the manufacturing trades would continue to move uptown or remain where they were.

The Save New York Committee, of which J. H. Burton is Chairman, announces that it is its intention to continue the work, not only until the manufacturers of lines affected who were in the zone had moved out, but until additional facilities were provided for manufacturers in the manufacturing zone, which it is proposed to establish in the section from Sixth to Eighth Avenue, below the Pennsylvania Station.

As soon as the war is over, and it is proper to begin erecting new buildings, it is planned to push this development of factory buildings in the new manufacturing centre. It is also the intention of the leaders of the cloak and suit, fur, and other needle trades of New York to establish in this section a manufacturers' club for members of all firms engaged in these lines of manufacture.

Special Sales Day.

At the special real estate sale to be conducted in the Real Estate Exchange, on Vesey Street, on Tuesday, May 28, Joseph P. Day will offer a number of New York City and out-of-town properties. The Manhattan offerings include 250 Manhattan Avenue, 215 West Eighteenth Street, and 224 First Avenue.

Long Island.

Guy Bolton, the playwright, has purchased from Oscar B. Taylor his estate on Beverly Road, Kensington, Great Neck. Mr. Bolton also purchased an adjoining plot from the Finlay Realty Company. I. G. Wolf was the broker.

Fewer Immigrants Now.

Only 400,000 immigrants were admitted into this country last year; 1,400,000 arrived in 1906.

PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION FIXES JULY 15 FOR OPENING OF THE NEW SEVENTH AND LEXINGTON AVENUE SUBWAY LINES

Will Afford Better Service and Less Crowding—Shuttle Service for Forty-second Street—How the Various Lines of the Dual System Are Grouped for Operation and List of Stations on All Lines.

The Public Service Commission announced yesterday that it had fixed June 15 as the date for the opening of the new Lexington and Seventh Avenue lines of the dual subway system.

Work is being rushed with all possible speed on the two lines, and there is every indication that all will be ready on the date named except minor details to stations.

James Blaine Walker, Secretary of the Public Service Commission, discussing the possibilities of the two latest additions to the ever-growing system, said:

"The opening of H system, as the Seventh and Lexington Avenue lines are known to the engineers, will offer new and improved traveling facilities for the great mass of population in the Bronx and upper west side.

"Under the present system both the Bronx and upper west side residents use the Broadway line. When the two new lines are opened Bronx residents will go straight down the east side by way of the Lexington Avenue route, which connects with the old subway at East Forty-second Street, and those on the west side by way of the Seventh Avenue route, which branches off from the old Broadway line at Times Square.

"Neither express nor local trains will run across Forty-second Street between Times Square and Grand Central Station, as they do now. This traffic will be cared for by a shuttle service. It is expected that far better service will be given both the east and west side residents and the crowding during rush hours will be done away with to a great extent, as the Bronxites will use the east side line and those who live on the upper west side and Washington Heights the Seventh Avenue extension and present Broadway line."

The lines of the dual system of rapid transit are divided into two main groups, viz., those for operation by the Interborough Rapid Transit Company and those for operation by the New York Consolidated Railroad Company, (B. R. T.)

They are again subdivided into city-owned subways and extensions and company-owned elevated railroads and extensions. The following list comprises the stations on lines in existance at the time of the signing of the dual contracts in 1913, those completed since, and those awaiting completion.

While the grouping here made does not cover conditions of operation as they exist at the present time, an effort has been made to arrange the list to conform to contemplated dual system operation, inasmuch as many of the lines still remaining unopened will be placed in service during the present year.

DEMAND FOR BRONX BRIDGE

An important advance in the long drawn-out campaign conducted by Bronx property owners to obtain authorization for the construction of a bridge across the Bronx River at 174th Street was recorded last week, which forecasts a possible early solution of the problem.

The Board of Estimate has set Friday, June 7, as the date for a public hearing on the application of Borough President Bruckner of the Bronx that the Public Service Commission be requested to determine in what manner East 174th Street shall be carried across the right of way of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad and of the New York, Westchester & Boston Railway.

This application of President Bruckner was presented to the Board of Estimate last month and then referred to its Committee on City Plan and Public Improvements, which has now reported back, and a date has been set for a public hearing.

In his communication President Bruckner refers to the action of the Board of Estimate on Oct. 7, 1910, in approving the plan for the bridge over the tracks at this street, and also to the agreement between the City of New York and the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company relative to the six-tracking of the railroad and the construction of bridges at street crossings.

The bridge crossing these two railroads, which are contiguous to each other, has already been constructed, but the approaches to it have never been built. The improvement has been delayed for so many years as a result of complications which developed in apportioning the cost of building the approach.

For many years the property owners in the immediate vicinity, transportation companies, boards of trade, and civic organizations of the Bronx have been agitating the construction of a bridge across the Bronx River at 174th Street. By means of this bridge the Clason's Point section of the Bronx would be made accessible to the Lenox Avenue branch of the subway, and the trolley which now runs from Clason's Point to Westchester Avenue could continue across the 174th Street bridge to Boston Road, where there is a station of the subway. In the anticipation of this improvement the American Real Estate Company many years ago developed the tract, which they called the Watson Estate, with five-story apartment houses.

Robert E. Simon, President of the Henry Morgenthau Company, pointed out the importance of the proposed improvement to real estate in the immediate neighborhood yesterday, calling attention to the early advantage that would accrue to large tracts of land directly within an area of benefit. He said:

"One Hundred and Seventy-fourth Street and Boston Road is destined to be one of the important centres of the Bronx; it is the junction of Boston Road, Southern Boulevard, and 174th Street, and with the completion of this bridge would have three trolley lines, the subway and elevated, making it most accessible.

"During the year ended July, 1917, more than 3,000,000 subway tickets were sold at the 174th Street subway station. The bridges heretofore erected across the Bronx River at important thoroughfares are the best testimony which those interested in the improvement at 174th Street could bring to bear upon the subject. These bridges have more than paid the cost by the increased assessed valuation of the property in the immediate neighborhood and the increased income to the city in the shape of taxes therefrom, to say nothing of the great convenience to the pedestrians and vehicular traffic.

"At the present time there are only two bridges from Long Island Sound to Tremont across the Bronx River, one at Westchester Avenue and the other at 177th Street. This bridge would be between the two existing ones, and a glance at the map will show the immense relief which will be afforded. It is probably three miles from the end of Clason's Point to the Bronx River, and about one mile between the existing bridges.

"This large area therefore will be left isolated and inaccessible to the property immediately lying to the west, except by a circuitous route, unless relief is afforded by the construction of this bridge, which has been so long under discussion, and has, so far as I know, been favorably acted upon by the various authorities having to do with it."

BOMBING INSURANCE RATE

Insurance against bombing in Paris costs $2 per $1,000, according to the Insurance Committee of the Building Managers' Association of New York. The same committee also reported that plateglass had increased about 20 per cent. The cost of setting one window has been: Spring, 1915, $211; December, 1915, $480; April, 1918, $560; May, 1918, $640.

Plateglass insurance companies complain that they are unable to sell insurance at prices at which they can break even.

Boiler insurance companies have been asked by David Moffatt Myers, Advisory Engineer, United States Fuel Administration, to report on efficiency of isolated plants in office buildings, apartment houses, and other buildings.

The Fuel Administration is said to be of the opinion that 20 per cent. of the fuel now used can be saved by improvements in operation alone, with an attendant saving of over twenty-five million tons of coal a year. At the conference, at which boiler insurance companies agreed to make the requested reports, the New York State Fuel Administrator was represented by W. M. Rumney.

April Building Permits.

Present day building construction, no doubt, represents to a greater degree than ever before imperative work—housing for war workers, factories for war material and supplies, schools for children in new industrial towns, theatres, necessary to keep workmen contentedly at their jobs, &c.

The April building, as indicated by the permits issued in the principal cities, shows expansion, and this means, therefore, that essential construction work is increasing.

This necessary work, one of the main auxiliaries in winning the war, will probably continue to expand, for construction work has been seriously neglected on account of alleged high costs for perhaps two years.

The resources of the country have increased enormously since the Summer of 1914, but buildings have not kept pace, and the dearth has now become so great in many places that increased rents and privations of various kinds are entailing a multifold distress.

Official reports of the building permits, issued during April in 116 principal cities of the United States, as received by the American Contractor, New York, total $51,296,161, as compared with $85,902,006 for April last year, a decrease of 40 per cent. This decrease, while decisive, is the least for the calendar year to date. By a like comparison, January permits decreased 46 per cent.; February, 44 per cent.; March, 55 per cent. Moreover, the total estimated cost of the buildings is showing a steady gain. It was $26,889,062 for January; $29,074,332 for February; $33,044,182 for March, and, as noted above, $51,296,161 for April.
